Husky Olympians

Washington rowers have been a fixture in Olympic competition, dating back to the 1936 men's eight-oared boat that won the gold medal in Berlin. Altogether, Husky men and women have participated in 12 Olympic Games.

Most recently, Washington was represented in the 2004 Athens Olympic Games by David Calder, Michael Callahan, Matt Deakin, Anna Mickelson, Erik Miller and Mary Whipple. Deakin came home with a gold medal with the U.S. men's eight while Mickelson and Whipple collected silvers with the U.S. women's eight. Callahan and Miller were spares.

At the 2000 Sydney Olympics, Marc Schneider, David Calder, Phil Henry and Katie Maloney. Schneider's four without finished sixth in its final while Calder's Canadian eight won the B final. Henry traveled as a spare. Maloney was a part of the women's eight that finished sixth in its grande final. In addition, Husky men's coach Bob Ernst was the course announcer at the rowing venue.

In the 1996 Atlanta Games Huskies Schneider, Jason Scott, Roberto Blanda, Hana Dariusova and Sabina Telenska participated. Schneider was a part of the four without that won a bronze medal. Telenska and Dariusova rowed for the Czech Republic as a part of the women's eight in 1992 and as a coxless pair in 1996. Ernst worked as a commentator for NBC Television while Jan Harville served as coach of the U.S. Women's Quad and Eleanor McElvaine was manager of water activities at the rowing venue.

Anna Mickelson was part of the 2000 U.S. Olympic Team that won a silver medal in Athens.

Celebrating a Century of Husky Crew

Washington Has International Impact

By Dick Rockne (January 2003)

More than 44 years later, Lou Gellermann vividly recalls the incident — a pep talk by Al Ulbrickson that was as uncharacteristic of the legendary University of Washington crew coach as was the event that spawned it.

Gellermann, in July, 1958, was one of nine Huskies thrust into the midst of a Cold War venue — Russia — for a rowing race against the Trud Club of Leningrad and four other Soviet crews on a reservoir near Moscow. In what was billed as the first appearance by a United States sports team behind the Iron Curtain, the Huskies were hoping to avenge a loss they had suffered two weeks earlier to the Trud Club in the first round of the Henley Royal Regatta in England.

Ulbrickson, prior to what would be his last race, broke with a personal tradition established during his 31-year UW coaching career.

Gellermann was as shocked as he was inspired by what he heard.

"Al gave us a pep talk before the race and he'd never, ever done that," Gellermann said. "The most words he would ever utter to a Washington crew, at least while I was there, was 'good luck fellows.'"

"But that day, he sat us down and he said: 'Just forget doing this for the country, forget doing this for your family, forget doing this for the University of Washington. Let's do it for ourselves.'"

Gellermann said he suddenly felt "an obligation, even more than normal, to these other guys in the boat. It just bonded us."

Positively bonded and suitably prepared by Ulbrickson, the Huskies went out and won one for themselves. They avenged the Henley loss by beating the Trud Club eight on its own Khimkinskoe Reservoir water by a decisive 1-3/4 lengths. They did it on a windy day while, 12 miles away in front of the U.S. Embassy, thousands of Russians were protesting the landing of U.S. Marines in Lebanon.

That race, broadcast by Keith Jackson on KOMO Radio, is believed to be the first sporting event broadcast to the West from behind the "Iron Curtain."

Because of the international significance, locale and the reversal of fortune by the young Huskies against the older Russians, the race left Georg N. Meyers with a lifetime memory.

"I'll tell you this: When I'm asked what is the most thrilling sporting event I ever saw it was that one," said Meyers, who can count several Olympic Games among the sports events he covered during his career as a Seattle Times columnist.

In this 100th anniversary year of UW rowing, the Huskies' 1958 victory over the Russians serves as a prime — maybe the foremost — example of what has made Husky crew so special: international impact. The Olympic Games and World Championships, Henley, the annual Windermere Cup/Opening Day Regatta through the Montlake Cut and that Moscow reservoir have been outlets where so many Huskies — men and women — have competed and excelled against foreign rivals.

Beginning in 1936 in Berlin, where a Husky eight won the gold medal, a total of 42 Washington men and 10 women have rowed on Olympic Games' crews. In 1948 in London, Huskies won the four-oared-with coxswain gold medal; in the same event in 1952 Huskies captured a bronze medal.

Washington rowers have been a part of the Henley Royal Regatta on an irregular basis starting with the experience in 1958. In 1977, Coach Dick Erickson's Huskies became the first U.S. crew in 18 years to win Henley's most prestigious prize, the Grand Challenge Cup. In 2000, Coach Jan Harville's Huskies won the Henley Prize, the first trophy awarded to women since the regatta began in 1839.

Significant contributors to the international lore were Hiram Conibear and George Pocock.

Recognized as the "Father of Washington Crew", Conibear invented a rowing stroke which remains the accepted standard throughout the world. Pocock, the builder of shells used by crews everywhere, became a consultant and confidant of UW coaches beginning with Conibear in 1912 until his death in 1976.

It was in a Pocock-built shell, christened the Swiftsure, that Gellermann, who sat in the No. 6 seat, and his mates — bow oar John Svendsen, No. 2 Dick Erickson (the future coach), No. 3 Roger MacDonald, No. 4 Phil Kiebert, No. 5 Chuck Alm, No. 7 Andy Hovland, stroke John Sayre and coxswain John Bisset — achieved so much.

Rowing into a headwind on the white-capped reservoir, the Huskies had the lead with about 500 meters to go.

"And I'm thinking, 'don't catch a crab here,'" Gellermann recalled. "I felt very strong. We were winning. And when you know that, it feels really good. In the last 500 (meters), the joy of it all almost overcame the pain."

Bisset did nothing to disguise how he felt.

"Even over the crowd's bellowing the cries of John Bisset could be heard as he peered over his shoulder and saw the gap growing," Meyers wrote in 1958. "As the Husky shell glided past the finish Bisset, in near-hysteria, nearly swamped the shell, standing, yelling, waving his arms and blowing kisses to his crewmates."

Gellermann recalled how curious the Russians had been about the Husky shell. What happened was illustrative of the lack of trust that existed between the two countries at the height of the Cold War.

"They measured our shell eight ways to Sunday," Gellermann said. "They weren't even hiding it. They took it out of the rack when we weren't there. Sometimes we would show up at the boathouse and it's out of the rack and they're measuring it. They were looking for everything possible on that boat."

Rather than pay the exorbitant cost of having the shell shipped back to Seattle, Ulbrickson decided to just leave it in Moscow.

"I think it was a kind of an in-your-face gesture by Al," Gellermann said. "That was Al."

Twenty-two years earlier, Washington's emergence on the international rowing stage began in Nazi Germany, where the Huskies — coached by Ulbricksen, coxed by Bob Moch and stroked by Don Hume — won the Olympic Games' eight-oared event at Grunau. They had earned the right to represent the United States by winning the Olympic Trials at Princeton, N.J.

Washington gave notice on the first day of competition that it could not be overlooked when it bettered the 2,000-meter course and Olympic records of 6:09 and 6:03.2, respectively, by winning its heat race in 6:00.8. In the final, the Huskies overcame a poor lane assignment and rough water in edging out Italy by less than a second. Germany was third.

"Barely a length covered the three leaders at the end of one of the most spectacular races in Olympic history," the Associated Press reported.

Before the race, the Huskies were concerned about the condition of Hume, who was ill.

"I thought Hume was going to collapse in the last 100 meters," Ulbricksen said after the race. "Where he got the stuff to finish the way he did I'll never know. It was a magnificent performance."

With Moch and Hume in the shell were Joe Rantz, George Hunt, Jim McMillin, John White, Gordon Adam, Charles Day and Robert Morris.

Twelve years later, during the Olympics in London, coxswain Allen Morgan directed Husky teammates Warren Westlund, Bob Martin, Bob Will and Gordon Giovanelli to a gold medal in the four-with event.

While the international accomplishments have been many and varied, Washington's domestic record regionally and nationally is no less exceptional.

Husky men have won 28 of 41 Pacific Coast/Pac-10 championships since 1960. Since 1923, Washington has won 11 Intercollegiate Rowing Association varsity titles.

While it was the men who established Washington as a rowing power, women have added significantly to the Husky legacy since they achieved varsity status in 1975.

Starting in 1980, Huskies won seven of the first nine national collegiate championships. They have won three of the first six national championships sponsored by the NCAA — the only NCAA team championships ever won by Washington.

Much of the women's success has been attributed to an administrative decision made by Erickson, the Moscow oarsman who was Washington's men's coach for 20 years (1967-87). In 1980, when the pressure of Title IX enforcement was beginning to expand, he suggested to the athletic director at the time, Mike Lude, that rowing's resources be divided equally.

"It wasn't a matter of dividing the money equally, it was a matter of taking everything and using it for the whole team," Jan Harville, the present women's coach, said. "There's a difference between drawing a line and saying 'this is the men's portion and this is the women's portion.' That didn't happen here. It was, 'this is the men's and women's program and here's one budget."

Unusual?

"I really don't know of any school that has one (rowing) budget, administered together," Harville said.

Women's collegiate rowing was at a crossroads in 1996 when another key administrative decision was made, by athletic director Barbara Hedges, in response to the NCAA adding the sport to its family. Among other things, the NCAA provided schools with a structured outlet for helping them meet gender-equity requirements through the issuance of athletic scholarships to women rowers.

Harville and men's coach Bob Ernst provided Hedges with three alternatives.

"We said we can either stay up in the top five in the nation by phasing in scholarships now, or we can wait until we have to (add scholarships) and lose that (winning) tradition, or we can choose not to do scholarships at all and we'll just be a regional rowing team ... a small school," Harville said.

In opting for maintaining the winning tradition at a big school level, Hedges committed to adding scholarships, up to the present NCAA limit of 20, at an annual cost of about $300,000.

So, from modest beginnings 100 years ago, Washington rowing has become synonymous with athletic success throughout the country and the world.

On water in domestic locales ranging from the Montlake Cut to Poughkeepsie and Lake Onondaga and to sites as varied as the River Thames and the Nile River and in events as heralded as the Olympic Games and the Henley Royal Regatta, Huskies have been there and done that.

And chances are good that they will keep on doing it.

UW Crew Historical Timeline

Washington's rowing program, born 103 years ago, is steeped in tradition. A cornerstone for the Huskies' entire athletic program, Washington's history reads like a Who's Who of rowing. From national championships to Olympic glory, the trademark white blades of Washington have cut through the water of race courses around the world.

Rowing at Washington dates back to 1901 when the first Class Day race was held. The Class Day races still mark the end of the winter training period and the start of the spring racing season for the rowers. Rowing was not considered a "major" sport at the University until 1904. That year, James C. Knight, who became the first crew coach in 1903, led the team to its first Pacific Coast Championship, rowing in Seattle in four-oared shells.

The women at the University of Washington began to row informally under the direction of Football and Rowing Coach Bill Knight.

1905

In 1905, Stanford and California joined the UW in the first triangular regatta. A year later racing was abandoned when Cal sent word that its squad would be unable to attend the meet because of an earthquake, bringing the racing scene to a standstill until a revolutionary gentleman came along in the Fall of 1906.

Conibear, whom some recognize as the founding father of Husky crew, started a spectacular coaching career in a rather unspectacular fashion. A one-time athletic trainer, Conibear took over the Husky program without any eight-oared shells and no basic knowledge of the dynamics of rowing. Undaunted by the challenges at hand, he began raising the "voluntary funds" necessary to purchase two new shells.

Conibear converted an old lighthouse from the Alaska Exposition into the first Husky shellhouse. It was not much, but it was a start. Today, Conibear would be proud to know that the Huskies' current shellhouse is named after him. The Varsity Boat Club and the Board of Rowing Stewards were other innovations instituted by Conibear and are still in existence today.

In order to better understand the dynamics of the stroke, Conibear borrowed a skeleton from the medical department and used it to study the most effective and safest body positions for rowing.

The "Conibear Stroke" was born and quickly accepted nationwide. His coaching ability resulted in Washington's oarsmen rowing to a third-place finish in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., in 1917 against the country's fastest crews. Tragically, a few months after the Poughkeepsie race, Conibear passed away and the future of Husky crew seemed uncertain.

Women's crew was formally sanctioned as a University sport by the Board of Control.

The UW women raced against each other over a one mile course on Lake Washington. The Freshman eight beat the sophomore eight.

By October, 40 freshman and sophomore women were training in "Old Nero" the crew's training barge.

The UW women competed in their first ever "Form" contest. Conibear's contest judged the women on form and boat handling skills. The judges awarded 10 points in each of the following categories: loading, the stroke's expertise, starboard and port backing, starboard and port rowing, the coxswain's expertise in handling the crew, general positioning, all backing, and unloading. Form contests would continue in similar structure (during the years that the women rowed) through 1916.

The first ever All-University regatta was held on April 10, 1909. Both the men and the women competed. The women raced a distance of 600 meters. Gretchen O'Donnell (class of 1912) became an assistant coach to Conibear's head coach. O'Donnell was a strong advocate for the women's crew until her graduation in 1912.

Miss Jessie Merrick, the women's Gymnasium Director, forbade the women to race. After many appeals the women acquiesced and held their 2nd form contest.

In October of the same year Dr. D.C. Hall, Gymnasium Director, and Jessie Merrick canceled the women's crew as a sport at the UW. Gretchen O'Donnell, Conibear and the women protested and mounted many appeals but the Administration sided with Dr. Hall and the women's crew was disbanded.

In anticipation of the re-introduction of the women's crew at the UW, Conibear renovated the Tokio (sic) Tea Room as a locker room for the women. However, due to a drop in the level of Lake Union because of a failed dam at the sight of the construction of the new Shipping Canal, rowing for the women was postponed another year.

Ethel Johnson was hired as an athletic instructor and coached the women's crew from January of 1914 through the spring of 1916.

The first women's crew eight oared shell, aptly named "1915 Co-Ed", was christened on December 7, 1915. The boat was built by the Pocock brothers and cost $250.00.

Miss Ethel Johnson left the University for reasons unknown and Miss Ethel Harrington replaced her as women's rowing coach. By April of 1917 there were ninety-two women participating in crew.

The United States entered WWI on April 6, 1917 and the University decided to continue with the Co-ed spring sports. The sophomore women won the 1917 form contest.

Hiram Conibear tragically died in the fall of 1917.

Ed Leader emerged as Conibear's successor and the crew program moved from its makeshift boathouse/lighthouse to the corner of the Montlake Cut into what is now referred to as the Canoe House. With a new home base, and new coach, Husky crews continued the school's winning tradition.

The women's crew was not among those women's sports re-established after the war – the University of Washington would have to wait over fifty years for women's rowing to return.

Taking over the helm upon Leader's departure was Russell S. (Rusty) Callow. Washington Rowing flourished during Callow's tenure (1922-27), winning three Intercollegiate Rowing Association Championships and becoming the first west coast crew to win the Hudson River Classic.

Under Callow, a young man named Al Ulbrickson became the varsity stroke. Following his graduation in 1927, Ulbrickson was hired on as an assistant coach. Courted by the University of Pennsylvania for the head coaching position, Callow took the job on the east coast and Ulbrickson became the fifth coach in UW history.

Coach Ulbrickson took his team to even greater successes. The 1936 crew (bow-Roger Morris, 2-Charles Day, 3-Gordon B. Adam, 4-John G. White, 5-James B. McMillin, 6-George E. Hunt, 7-Joseph Rantz, 8-Don B. Hume, cox-Robert G. Moch) competed in the Olympic trials on Lake Carnegie. In dominating fashion, the Washington crew won the right to represent the United States at the Berlin Games. Coming from behind for an unprecedented victory, the crew of 1936 won the Olympic gold medal.

That was not the only time Ulbrickson escorted a crew to the Olympic Games. In 1948, the Olympics were held in London, England on the Thames River. Washington sent a coxed four that won the gold (bow-Gordon Giovanelli, 2-Bob Will, 3-Bob Martin, 4-Warren Westlund, c-Allen Morgan) and in 1952, another Washington coxed four secured a bronze at the Helsinki Olympics (bow-Fil Leanderson, 2-Dick Wahlstrom, 3-Al Ulbrickson Jr., 4-Carl Lovsted, cox-Al Rossi).

Ulbrickson's 1958 crew had a new challenge. They needed to go undefeated during the racing season to qualify for the prestigious Henley Regatta. The team made quick order of California, Stanford, and the University of British Columbia, to earn the right to row in England. There, a powerhouse team from the Soviet Union handed the Huskies their first defeat of the season. A scheduled side trip to Moscow set up a rematch. This time, on the Soviets' home course, the Huskies shocked the rowing world by overpowering the juggernaut USSR team. The event, broadcast by Keith Jackson on Seattle's KOMO Radio, is believed to be the first sporting event ever aired from behind the "Iron Curtain." Future coach Dick Erickson was a member of the crew that played one of the biggest parts in the program's history.

Ulbrickson retired after returning to the States and Fil Leanderson became Washington's head coach. Leanderson coached from 1959-1967 and then stepped down, allowing Erickson to head up the program after coaching the freshmen for four years.

1968

Women's rowing returned to the UW campus. Joan Bird, a transfer student who had rowed with the Lake Merritt rowing club, suggested that the UW start a rowing team to compete at the 4th annual National Women's rowing Association (NWRA) Nationals to be held at Green Lake in the spring of 1969. Bernie Delke, a rower training with the Lake Washington Rowing Club, agreed to coach the team. Delke coached from the fall of 1968 through the spring of 1972.

Dick Erickson's varsity men's crew won his first IRA championship.

The UW women won their first National Championship title – the lightweight four with coxswain at the 5th NWRA Nationals on Lake Merritt. The UW women competed in the Steward's cup for the first time. They raced for the newly established Dolly Callow Ladies Challenge Cup.

The UW women competed at the 6th NWRA Nationals in 1971, and won gold in the lightweight eight, four and wherry. The women won the lightweight eight again and the lightweight quad at the NWRA national championship regatta in 1972.

1972

Congress passed Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. "No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subject to discrimination under any education program or activities receiving Federal financial assistance."

Coleen Lynch and Paula Mitchell coached the UW women from the fall of 1972 through the spring of 1975. During their tenure, the UW women won gold in the lightweight eight, (for the third year) and gold and silver in the lightweight four at the NWRA national regatta in 1973.

Women's rowing became a varsity sport at the UW. John Lind was hired as the first full time women's rowing coach. Lind coached the women from the fall of 1975 through the spring of 1980. During Lind's tenure, the women participated for the first time in Opening Day, Class Day and the Pac-10 regatta. The women brought home gold at the 1978, 1979 and 1980 NWRA National regatta in the Flyweight four, and gold in the lightweight novice wherry at the 1978 NWRA regatta.

Under Dick Erickson's direction, in 1977, the Huskies won the Grand Challenge Cup and Visitor's Challenge Cup at the Henley Royal Regatta and, as a result, were invited to compete at the Nile Invitational Rowing Regatta in Cairo, Egypt.

Title IX (under the Federal Education Act) allowed members of the women's team to join the Varsity Boat Club which, until that time, had been comprised solely of men. The Varsity Boat Club still provides leadership for the program with a membership of more than 1,000 men and women.

Bob Ernst, the freshman men's coach and Erickson's assistant for six seasons, succeeded John Lind as the women's coach in the fall of 1980. It did not take him long to put his mark on the Husky program.

In Ernst's first season, both the varsity and junior varsity crews won national championships (1981) and repeated the feat for the next two years. The varsity eight won every title between 1981-85.

Dick Erickson's varsity men's crew won the collegiate national championship in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The 1987 season was Ernst's last year as head women's coach. His varsity, junior varsity, and varsity four crews swept at the nationals, capturing all three titles.

Ernst became the varsity men's coach in 1988 when Erickson retired.

UW Crew Historical Timeline

Jan Harville stepped up from the novice women's coaching position, which she held for seven years, to take over where Ernst left off. Harville, who rowed at Washington in the early '70s during the program's revival, also had a stellar head coaching debut.

In her first season, the varsity crew duplicated its performance from the year before and won another national championship (1988). The 1989 and 1994 junior varsity crews also went on to capture national titles.

In 1997, Harville made history as her crews won the first NCAA-sanctioned championship at Lake Natoma in Sacramento, Calif. It was the first NCAA title for Washington in any sport.

That same season, Ernst led the Washington men to a sweep of the varsity, junior varsity and frosh races to capture the IRA Championship in Camden, N.J. It marked the first time since 1950 that Washington had swept the three top races at the IRAs.

The Washington women's team successfully defends its NCAA title, winning the varsity eight and varsity four grand finals en route to the team title.

Washington has the best all-around performance in the country by a men's and women's rowing program at the national championships. The freshman men's eight and men's pair win gold medals at the IRA Championships, together with a silver medal by the junior varsity and a bronze by the varsity eight.

On the women's side, Washington returns to the site of its second NCAA championship to claim its third team title in the last five years. The varsity eight storms from behind to capture the gold medal in its grand final, after the varsity four set the stage with a gold and the junior varsity won a silver medal.

Washington celebrates its 100th year of rowing with numerous special events, including a Centennial Dinner attended by 1,100 rowers. After directing the varsity eight to the Pac-10 Championship and a silver medal performance at the IRA, Coach Bob Ernst brings his crew to England. The Huskies win the Ladies Challenge Plate trophy at the prestigious Henley Royal Regatta.

Hall of Fame Coach Jan Harville retires and Eleanor McElvaine takes over the head coaching duties for the UW Women

In the 47 years that the men's program has competed at the Pacific Coast/Pacific-10 Conference Championships, the varsity men have won 30 titles, including two stints of eight consecutive crowns. The women joined the men at the competition in 1976 and have been competing at the championships for the past 30 years. They have claimed 22 titles and have swept all four races twice.

The varsity men have won a total of 12 national titles, including an IRA sweep in 1997. The varsity women's eight has won 11 national titles, the first in 1981 and the most recent in 2001 and 2002. The varsity four won back-to-back-to-back NCAA Championships, in 1999, 2000 and 2001.

History is hard to miss around the Washington crew program. There are a multitude of reminders for the current Husky oarsmen and women who spend endless hours training and studying at the Conibear Shellhouse. Banners of past regattas are scattered throughout the shell bays while photos of past crews and competitions line the hallways.

Even the shells are daily reminders to the team of the success of the program. New boats are christened and named for individuals who have worked to make the Husky crew program a consistent national powerhouse. Among those honored by this tradition are: The Olympic Champion crew of 1936; the Spirit of '58, the Dolly Callow; Dick Erickson; the Varsity Boat Club and dozens more.

CREW HISTORY

EXPERIENCE

In 1979, the University of Washington inducted its first members into the newly created University of Washington Hall of Fame. Numerous people associated with Husky Crew have been honored.

Russell "Rusty" Callow Crew Coach, 1922-27

Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1982

Rusty Callow competed in football and track & field at Washington, but it was in crew that he made his mark. He was a member of the first UW rowing team to go to the Intercollegiate Rowing Association (IRA) regatta in Poughkeepsie in 1913. Callow rowed in a four-oared shell and was an alternate on the varsity eight. He rowed in the

No. 7 seat on the 1914 and 1915 crews, serving as the team captain in 1915. He returned to Washington in 1922, taking over the coaching reins from Ed Leader. Callow coached the varsity eight to its first IRA championship in 1923. The Huskies won two more IRA titles in 1924 and 1926. His crews were runners-up in 1925 and 1927. His UW junior varsity crews won three consecutive IRA championships from 1923-25.

Hiram Conibear Crew Coach, 1907-17

Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1979

Called the "Father of Washington Crew," Hiram Conibear laid the foundation for UW's successful crew program while coaching the Huskies from 1907-17. Dozens of his proteges went on to coach the sport long after his death in 1917. Soon after becoming the Washington crew coach in 1907, his innovations began impacting rowing throughout the world. During his 10-year coaching career, he implemented a rowing stroke -- the Washington Stroke -- that would lift UW into the national limelight and eventually into international fame. Conibear became crew coach almost by default, taking the position because no one else was available. At that time, the long "layback" rowing stroke was the accepted standard. But Conibear felt the layback stroke was unnecessarily long and put undue strain on the rower's back, neck and stomach muscles. He set out to find a more comfortable, rhythmic stroke that would also provide more power. He was originally hired to be Washington's football trainer and track coach in the fall of 1906. Lorin Grinstead, the ASUW's general manager, encouraged him to take the crew coaching job. Conibear remarked that he did not know the bow from the stern, but that he would study up on the sport. And study and coach he did. He founded the Varsity Boat Club and the Board of Rowing Stewards and initiated fund raising activities for the rowing program. He is regarded as one of the great sportsmen in Washington history. Conibear started a tradition of national and international excellence for the Husky crew program.

Dick Erickson Crew Coach, 1968-87

Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1994

Dick Erickson was a member of Washington's 1958 eight-oared shell that traveled to Moscow and defeated the famed Trud Rowing Club on Leningrad. He rowed in the No. 2 seat for the team that won by 1-3/4 lengths on the Khiminskoe Reservoir in Moscow. Erickson was a member of the varsity eight teams as a junior and senior, lettering from 1955-58. He coached the Husky freshmen from 1964-67. During his four-year tenure coaching the frosh, the Huskies lost just one dual-meet race. Erickson was named head rowing coach in 1968. In 20 years as head coach, Erickson led the Huskies to 15 Pacific Coast championships, the 1970 IRA championship and a national championship in 1984. His 1977 crew won the Grand Challenge Cup at the Henley Royal Regatta and went on to compete at the Nile Invitational Regatta in Cairo, Egypt. Erickson was named the Pac-10 rowing coach of the year three times and was a member of the U.S. Olympic Rowing Committee from 1972-75. In 1975, Erickson was instrumental in the creation of the Husky women's varsity rowing team. After retiring from coaching after the 1987 season, Erickson served as the facilities manager for the UW Department of Intercollegiate Athletics until his death in 2001. Erickson was inducted into the National Rowing Hall of Fame in 1992.

Alan Forney Rower, 1979-82

Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1996

Alan Forney led the Huskies to three Pac-10 crew titles, winning in 1979, 1980 and 1981 (going undefeated in 1981). He was a member of the U.S. National team, competing in the 1982 World Championships and the 1984 Olympic Games, where he won a silver medal.

Jan Harville Head Coach, 1987-2003

Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 2006

The Washington women's crew program set the standard for excellence in rowing during Jan Harville's 16-year tenure as head coach. Harville won four national titles at Washington, including the first-ever NCAA team title in 1997, and led the UW varsity eight to back-to-back undefeated seasons in 1997 and 1998. In 2002,

Harville was voted the National Rowing Coach of the Year by her peers at the Collegiate Rowing Coaches Association (CRCA). Harville also collected Pac-10 Coach of the Year honors nine times as Washington won 12 consecutive conference championships between 1992 and 2003. The program accomplished another memorable 'first' in 2000 when Harville's varsity eight won the Henley Prize, the first women's trophy awarded at the Henley Royal Regatta in England since the famous regatta began in 1839. Harville first came to Washington as an undergraduate, when she rowed for the Huskies from 1970 to 1973. The women's team competed in its fourth national championship regatta in 1972, on Green Lake in Seattle, and she won a silver medal in the pairs. She received the team's Most Inspirational Award in 1973. In April, she will also be honored as a pioneer at the Pre-Title IX Celebration, which will award letters to the women athletes who participated in UW sports before the 1975-76 season. Harville is also an Olympian, earning a spot on both the 1980 and 1984 U.S. National rowing teams. At the '84 games in Los Angeles, she finished fourth as a part of the coxed-four.

George Pocock Shell Designer and Builder, 1912-1976

Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1989

World famous boat builder George Pocock set up shop on the Washington campus in 1913 and kept the UW rowers equipped with state-of-the-art shells for the next 53 years. Pocock continued his craft until his death in 1976. His unique relationship with Husky crew began when Coach Hiram Conibear ordered a dozen shells in 1912 from the then-Vancouver, B.C. based Pocock. George and his older brother, Dick, first were exposed to boat building during an apprenticeship in their father's shop at Eton College in England. They transferred their expertise into building wooden pontoons for float planes during World War I. Pocock Racing Shells are still considered the premier boats worldwide.

Al Ulbrickson, Sr. Crew Coach, 1927-1958

Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1979

Al Ulbrickson was the varsity stroke from 1924-26, a time during which the Huskies won two IRA Championships (1924 & 1926). He became Washington's assistant coach in 1927. At age 25 he took over the head coaching duties after Coach Rusty Callow, directing the Husky program for the next 31 seasons. During his career as an oarsman and coach, Washington won more IRA varsity eight championships than any other school. He coached the varsity eight to six IRA titles, placed second five times and third on eight occasions. His junior varsity crews won 10 IRA races and his freshmen boats claimed 12 IRA crowns. His greatest coaching achievements came on international waters. His Huskies represented the United States at the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin and won the gold medal in the eights. At the 1948 London Olympics, the Husky four-oared crew captured the gold. His career was capped by one of the greatest upsets in rowing history. His Husky eight beat the Leningrad Trud crew in Moscow in 1958 for his final coaching win. Nine of his crews are in the Husky Hall of Fame. Ulbrickson served as UW Athletic Director from 1943-46.

The 1923 crew was the first in a long line of national championship squads. After Husky oarsmen tried for 10 years, the 1923 crew finally won the Intercollegiate Rowing Association championship by upsetting Navy in the varsity eight race. This unprecedented win helped put Seattle and the University of Washington on the map. The championship crew consisted of Max Luft, Charles Dunn, Fred Spuhn, Sam Shaw, Pat Tidmarsh, Rowland France, Harry John Dutton, Dow Walling and Don Grant (coxswain).

1936 Men's 8-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1979

This Husky crew earned amateur sports' highest award, the 1936 Olympic Games Gold Medal. Coached by Al Ulbrickson, Sr., the crew of Donald Hume, Joe Rantz, George Hunt, Jim McMillin, John White, Gordon Adam, Charles Day, Roger Morris and Robert Moch (coxswain) brought the United States and the UW one of its greatest honors.

1940 Men's 8-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1986

The 1940 eight rowed to an undefeated season and captured the prestigious Intercollegiate Rowing Association title in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. The crew of Ted Garhart, Dallas "Dal" Duppenhaller, Dick Yantis, Chuck Jackson, Gerald Keely, Sr., Al Erickson, Paul Soules, John Bracken and Frederick P. Colbert (coxswain) picked up an easy, two-length victory over California during the regular season. The crew then met Cornell, Syracuse, Navy, Cal, Columbia, Wisconsin and Princeton on the Hudson River. Washington was challenged at the finish of the four-mile race by Cornell, but the Huskies hung on to win their sixth Intercollegiate Rowing Association championship. The group of four sophomores, three juniors and one senior was the youngest crew ever to row under UW's colors in the IRA championships.

1941 Men's Eight-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1991

The 1941 crew was crowned Intercollegiate Rowing Association champions. The crew consisted of Ted Garhart, Walt Wallace, Bill Neill, Paul Simdars, Tom Taylor, Chuck Jackson, Doyle Fowler, John Bracken, and Vic Fomo (coxswain). Three members of this crew — Bracken, Garhart and Fomo — won every crew race they participated in during their four years. Coach Al Ulbrickson called this crew "as great a crew as I've ever had."

1948 Men's 4-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1981

These five men represented the University of Washington and the United States in the 1948 Olympic Games in England, and returned home with the Four-Oar with Coxswain Gold Medal. Coxswain Allen Morgan, Warren Westlund, Bob Martin, Bob Will and Gordon Giovanelli defeated Switzerland and Denmark in the finals by two full boat-lengths to win the Gold Medal.

1948-50 Men's Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 2000

From 1948 to 1950, the UW men's crew dominated the national rowing scene, winning eight championships at the prestigious Intercollegiate Rowing Association regattas. Four members went on to win a gold medal in the 1948 Olympic Games. Members: John Audett, Roger Baird, Norm Buvick, Ed Hearing, Rod Johnson, Don Landon, Floyd "Bobby" Lee, Carl Lovsted, Charlie McCarthy, Allen Morgan, Al Ulbrickson, Jr., Ken Walters, Bob Will, Bill Works, Bob Young.

This crew is one of three from the UW to win an Olympic medal. Fil Leanderson, Carl Lovsted, Alvin E. Ulbrickson, Richard W. Wahlstrom and coxswain Albert Rossi, despite limited training time, won the bronze at the 1952 Olympic Games in Helsinki, Finland.

1958 Men's 8-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1984

This crew of John Bisset (coxswain), John Sayre, Andy Hovland, Louis Gellermann, Chuck Alm, Phil Kiebert, Roger MacDonald, Dick Erickson and Bob Svendsen rowed to an outstanding intercollegiate season before traveling to Henley, England for the Royal Henley Regatta. The Huskies fell victim to the Leningrad Trud Rowing Club of the Soviet Union in their attempt to win the coveted Grand Challenge Cup, losing by one-and-a-half boat-lengths over the one-mile, 550-yard Henley course. Washington challenged the Soviets to a rematch in Moscow where the Huskies earned revenge, winning the 1958 Moscow Cup by besting the Leningrad Trud crew by one-and-three-quarters lengths on the 2,000-meter Khimkinskoe Reservoir course.

1970 & 1971 Men's Crews Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 2004

The 1970 varsity eight, coached by Dick Erickson, beat heavily favored Penn for the IRA national championship. It was UW's first varsity eight national title since 1951. The 1971 squad placed second at the IRAs, but rebounded to take the eights crown at the NAAO championship. Representing the U.S. at the 1971 Pan American Games, the Huskies brought home a silver medal. It marked the last time a college crew represented the U.S. in major international rowing. The individuals who rowed for both teams included Cliff Hurn (stroke), Greg Miller and Rick Copstead. Larry Johnson, Brian Miller, Brad Thomas, Chad Rudolph, Bill Byrd and Mike Viereck rowed for the 1970 team that included coxswain Jim Edwards. The 1971 team included Jon Buse, Charles Ruthford, Fred Schoch, Bruce Beall, Pete Suni and coxswain Dwight Phillips. 1977 Men's 8-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1999

The team of John Stillings (coxswain), Mike Hess, Jesse Franklin, Terry Fisk, Mark Miller, Mark Umlauf, Ross Parker, Mark Sawyer and Ron Jackman surprised the rowing community in 1977. The Pac-10 and national collegiate champions defeated the British National Team at Henley in the Grand Challenge, earning the first victory for the U.S. at the Regatta in 18 years.

1981 Women's 8-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 1989

Competing in their first Women's Collegiate National Championship, the UW women captured the 1,000-meter title in a time of 3:20.8, defeating Yale by two seconds. The crew consisted of Debbie Moore, Madeline Hanson, Susan Broome, Karen Mohling, Peg Achterman, Kristi Norelius, Shyril O'Steen, Jane McDougall and Lisa Horn (coxswain).

1982 Women's 8-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 2001

The 1982 crew overcame many challenges to win its national title. The race distance was extended from 1,000 meters to 1,500, a length more familiar to the eastern crews. They also had to battle the weather on Lake Waramug in Kent, Connecticut. The victorious rowers: Loren Smith, Karen Mohling, Susan Broome, Peg Achterman, Margie Cate, Kristi Norelius, Julie Baker, team captain Jane McDougall and coxswain Lisa Horn.

1983 Women's 8-Oared Crew Inducted into the Husky Hall of Fame in 2001

The 1983 crew added to UW's legacy at the collegiate championships. Racing on Lake Wingra in Madison, Wis., the Huskies won their third straight title. The winning shell, named Bodacious, was made up of Julie Baker, Eleanor McElvaine, Sara Nevin, Ellen Pottmeyer, Jan Fulton, team captain Karen Mohling, Maureen King, Loren Smith and coxswain Betsy Beard.

In Memoriam

Matthew "Fil" Leanderson 1931–2006

Courtesy of Sarah Anderson and Columns Magazine

Matthew Phillip "Fil" Leanderson, '53, who died Nov. 2, had a dedicated work ethic and an innate sense of leadership that carried him to a stellar career as rower and coach for the UW crew team.

As a junior, he was hand-picked by then-coach Al Ulbrickson for an elite team that would eventually qualify to the 1952 Olympics. Due to a series of misunderstandings, that team ended up in Helsinki without a coach. Leanderson rose to the occasion and led the squad, piloting them to a bronze medal for four-oared shell with coxswain. "He was a fierce competitor," teammate Al Rossi, '53, recalled on the UW crew website. "But it was his rowing ability that helped carry us in the Olympics."

His passion and experience helped Leanderson move on to a coaching position at MIT after graduating. In 1956 he returned to the UW, hired by his former coach to lead the freshmen, and eventually succeeded Ulbrickson as head coach in 1959. In the nine years Leanderson led UW crew, his teams dominated the West Coast and won multiple championships.

From 1977 to 1993 he headed up the Western Washington University crew program, coaching his rowers to a number of small-college championships. He is a member of both the Husky and the WWU Viking halls of fame.

Leanderson met his wife, Jane, '53, in an English class their sophomore year at the UW. Even after his retirement in 1969, the two continued to watch the UW crew team with interest and with stopwatch in hand. They often took their three daughters—Linda, Gretchen and Paula—on salmon-fishing trips on Puget Sound. Leanderson was also an avid gardener and model-airplane flier.

Leanderson remained close with his surviving Olympic teammates—Rossi; Al Ulbrickson Jr., '52; Carl Lovsted, '52; and Dick Wahlstrom, '54—throughout his life. Each year, around the time of UW Homecoming, the men would reminisce over dinner and Rossi's homemade wine. Wahlstrom passed away in 2003.

Leanderson was 75 years old, and is survived by his wife, daughters and three grandchildren.—Sarah Anderson

W. Hunter Simpson

W. Hunter Simpson, longtime VBC member and Rowing Steward, passed away January 20th of heart failure. Simpson was an active participant in Washington Rowing, from his college days at the old boathouse on the Montlake Cut to his recent gifts to the shellhouse renovation. Even at the peak of his career as CEO of Physio-Control, it was not unlike Mr. Simpson to drop everything at one of his lakeside parties and jump into the coxswain's seat of a passing shell. A strong yet humble presence defined Mr. Simpson, and his passion for the sport of rowing and the University will be greatly missed. Our sincerest condolences to the Simpson family and the many friends he had throughout the University community.
