COACHES

Head Coach Keith Gilbertson

A well-respected coach in the Pacific Northwest for more than 20 years, Keith Gilbertson was named the head football coach at Washington on July 29. The Husky job is Gilbertson's third stint as a head college coach.

The 2003 season will be the ninth year of coaching at Washington for Gilbertson. He is currently in his third term of service with the Husky program. He was a graduate assistant coach in 1975, an assistant coach from 1989-91 and again from 1999-2002.

Gilbertson becomes the 24th coach in the program's history. At age 55, he is the oldest individual to be named Washington's head coach. Gilbertson replaces Rick Neuheisel, who was terminated by on June 12 after guiding the Huskies to a 33-16 record over the past four seasons.

Gilbertson's previous head coaching experience includes stints at Idaho (1986-88) and California (1992-95). He has a combined record of 48-35 at those two schools over seven seasons.

Gilbertson has been the Huskies' offensive coordinator the last three seasons. He was also a graduate assistant coach at the UW in 1976, as offensive line coach in 1998-90 and as the offensive coordinator in the national championship season of 1991. In 1999, he returned to Washington as assistant head coach and tight ends coach before being named offensive coordinator prior to the 2000 season.

In his two terms as the UW's offensive coordinator, Gilbertson built a reputation for varied and potent offenses. Gilbertson was instrumental in developing Washington's offense into one of the most explosive in the nation between 1989 and 1991. He was the Huskies' offensive line coach his first two seasons and took over as the offensive coordinator in 1991 when Washington won the national championship. The 1991 Washington team led the Pac-10 in total offense, rushing offense and scoring offense, relying on a balanced attack.

In 2002, that offense was the most potent passing attack ever seen not only at Washington, but in the Pac-10. Junior quarterback Cody Pickett smashed the Pac-10 record for single-season passing yardage and completions while the UW threw for 4,501 yards as a team, breaking the old Pac-10 record by 712 yards.

In 2001, with a sophomore Pickett taking over the signalcalling, the Husky offense was second in the Pac-10 in passing, averaging 279.5 yards per game. A year earlier, behind senior quarterback Marques Tuiasosopo, UW's option-oriented rushing attack led the Pac-10 and was 16th nationally. The Huskies' ability to come from behind in the fourth quarter helped UW to the Pac-10 title and the 2001 Rose Bowl Championship.

Gilbertson began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Idaho State (1971-74) and earned a degree in education from Western Washington, where he was a grad assistant in 1975.

After serving the 1976 season as a grad assistant at Washington for Don James, he was the offensive coordinator at Utah State from 1977 to 1981. In 1982 he joined Dennis Erickson's staff at Idaho for one season as the offensive coordinator. The Vandals recorded an 8-3 regular-season record and advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA I-AA playoffs.

For three seasons, from 1983-85, he coached in the USFL for the Los Angeles Express. He returned to Idaho in 1985 as the offensive coordinator and helped the Vandals to a 9-2 regular-season record and another trip to the NCAA playoffs. The following season he took over as Idaho's head coach when Erickson was named head coach at Washington State.

Gilbertson led the Vandals to an 11-2 record in 1988, the best mark in school history. That year Idaho advanced to the NCAA Division I-AA semifinals and he was named the Big Sky Conference coach of the year. His 1987 and 1988 teams both won the Big Sky championships. His .757 career winning percentage is still the highest in Idaho history.

His three Vandal teams produced a combined record of 28-9 and advanced to the I-AA playoffs all three seasons. When he left Idaho his winning percentage (.757) ranked as the second best mark in the history of the Big Sky Conference. His winning percentage of .826 in conference games (19-4) was the best in league history.

After working on James' staff at Washington from 1989-91, Gilbertson left the Huskies following the team's 1991 national championship season to take over as the head coach at California. His four-year stint as the Golden Bears' coach was highlighted by the 1993 team that posted a 9-4 record and defeated Iowa 37-3 in the Alamo Bowl. That win stands as California's last bowl victory. Gilbertson was also the last Cal coach to pin a loss on arch rival Stanford until 2002.

Following his head coaching tenure at California, Gilbertson worked as an assistant coach for the Seattle Seahawks on Erickson's staff for three seasons. In 1996 he served as a defensive specialist and took over as the tight ends coach for the 1997 and 1998 seasons.

Gilbertson grew up in Snohomish, Wash., where his father, Keith, Sr., has been a long-time prep coach. He attended Snohomish High School before going on to play football at Central Washington in 1967, Columbia Basin Junior College in 1968, and Hawaii from 1969-70.

He later returned to earn his bachelor's degree in social sciences from Central Washington in 1971. Gilbertson earned a degree in education from Western Washington in 1974.

Born in Snohomish on May 15, 1948, he attended Snohomish High School. Gilbertson and his wife, Barbara, were married in 1988 and have two children, Kristin and David. Gilbertson also has an adult daughter, Ann, who resides in Los Angeles.

What They're Saying About Keith Gilbertson

"Those who know Gilbertson call him a players' coach and a great motivator. They say he fosters a sense of family with his players, but never lets them forget that he is the patriarch. He is a patient listener who doesn't have to scream at players to make his point. And for his fair treatment, the players respond by playing their hearts out for him."

— Gary Nelson, Everett Herald

"He does a good job remembering what it's like being a player. If you go out and do your best - that's all he expects. If you can do that for him, he's happy."

— Ed Cunningham, former Husky Center

"He's a down-to-earth, easy-going kind of guy whose unpretentious manner makes him a hit with his players and peers. He has earned their respect and praise."

— Gary Nelson, Everett Herald

"One of his strengths is his ability to communicate with the players. A lot of coaches have great knowledge and expertise, but don't seem to get that across to the players as well as guys like Keith. The players sense that Keith really cares for them and is on their side trying to help them, and they respond in a big way."

— Skip Hall, former Husky assistant coach

"When Keith Gilbertson was hired as an assistant coach after the 1988 season, the Washington Huskies were the second-best college football team in the state. Three years later, the Huskies, ranked No. 3 in the nation, are contending for the national championship. The innovative Gilbertson, has had a lot to do with Washington's success."

— Jim Cour, The Associated Press

"Gilbertson's down-to-earth nature has impressed players, alumni and reporters alike. It goes back to his roots, in Snohomish County, which is gaining a reputation as the West Coast cradle of coaches, our version of Massillon, Ohio."

— Blaine Newnham, Seattle Times

"Things just changed, it seemed, overnight. Before, in the offensive-line meetings, a couple of guys would sit here, a couple over there, more over there. He said 'Hey, why don't you guys try sitting together?' Thursday night, all the offensive linemen would have pizza together. Before, we never even would have thought of that."

— Kris Rongen, former Husky Offensive

"Keith Gilbertson is a tough guy. Just as tough as the offensive linemen he coaches at the University of Washington."

— John Sleeper, Everett Herald

"Gilbertson threw in with Neuheisel a year ago and did a remarkable job, better perhaps than he had done as Don James' offensive coordinator in 1991. He took an offensive line regarded by no one and had it block better than Washington lines before it had, with players like Olin Kreutz, Tony Coats and Benji Olson."

— Blaine Newnham, Seattle Times

"Keith Gilbertson isn't one to sugarcoat the truth. Ask any of his players. The University of Washington offensive coordinator gives it straight and often in decibel levels of Shock and Awe."

— John Sleeper, Everett Herald

"He knows his place in life and people know not to mess with him. He's the father. You do what he says and listen to him. He demands that kind of respect. The head man needs to be that way. He needs to be a dictator first."

— Taylor Barton, former Husky Quarterback

Tim Hundley

Co-Defensive Coordinator Linebackers Coach

Tim Hundley is in his fifth year on the UW staff. After spending the last four seasons as defensive coordinator and outside linebackers coach, his role is slightly changed in 2003 as he will share the coordinator duties but will coach all of the linebackers and oversee the punt coverage unit.

Upon his arrival at UW, Hundley moved the Huskies to a multiple 3-4 scheme after Washington played primarily an eight-man front for 10 years. The results speak for themselves. Washington has finished first once and second twice in his four seasons on the staff.

Hundley's 2000 defense helped the Huskies to the Pac-10 Championship and a Rose Bowl win, where Washington held high-flying Purdue to 24 points.

Hundley is one of four Buffaloes assistant coaches who followed Rick Neuheisel to Washington from Colorado. He coached the defensive tackles for the Buffs during the 1996, 1997 and 1998 seasons.

Hundley is a familiar face in Pac-10 coaching circles. From 1990-95 he was an assistant coach at UCLA, coaching both linebackers and special teams. He spent eight years (1982-89) as an assistant coach at Oregon State. He coached the Beavers' secondary from 1982-85 and the linebackers from 1986-89. He was the team's defensive coordinator from 1984-89.

A graduate of Western Oregon University, Hundley's first coaching job was at his alma mater in 1974 as a graduate assistant. He spent the next two seasons (1975-76) at Clackamas (Ore.) Community College as defensive coordinator. In 1977 he joined the coaching staff at Idaho and mentored the Vandal linebackers. The following season he coached Idaho's running backs, marking the only time in his collegiate coaching career that he has worked on the offensive side of the ball. The following season he moved back to defense and worked as Idaho's coordinator in addition to coaching the secondary and handling recruiting duties.

During the 1980 and 1981 seasons, Hundley was an assistant coach at Nevada-Reno coaching the defensive backs.

As a linebacker at Western Oregon University, Hundley was an honorable mention NAIA All-American in 1973. A three-time all-conference pick, he is a member of his district's NAIA Hall of Fame. He earned his undergraduate degree in education in 1974 and received his master's degree in education and physical education from Idaho in 1978. Hundley was a standout prep athlete in football, baseball and basketball at Forest Grove (Ore.) High School.

Hundley has coached 11 players who went on to the NFL. The list includes three All-Americans: Arnold Ale (UCLA), David Kilson (Nevada) and Sam Merriman (Idaho).

He is married to the former Pam Van Doren. The Hundleys have two sons, Jake and Nick, a catcher on the University of Arizona baseball team.

Phil Snow

Co-Defensive Coordinator Cornerbacks Coach

Phil Snow begins his first season as the Huskies' co-defensive coordinator and cornerbacks coach after compiling an impressive resume of defensive coaching success in the Pac-10 Conference over the last 16 seasons.

For the past two years he worked as the defensive coordinator and safeties coach at UCLA. In 2001 the Bruin defense ranked first in the Pac-10 in total defense. The unit also finished the season ranked second in the league in rushing defense and scoring defense. In addition, linebacker Robert Thomas, a first round selection by the Rams in the 2002 NFL draft, earned 2001 Pac-10 Conference Defensive Player of the Year honors. Kenyon Coleman was the defensive winner of the Morris Trophy as the Pac-10's best lineman.

Prior to joining the UCLA staff Snow spent the previous seven seasons as the defensive coordinator at Arizona State (1994-2000). He was at Arizona State a total of nine years as a member of Bruce Snyder's staff. Prior to that, he also served on Snyder's staff while at California from 1987-91.

During his tenure at Arizona State, Snow's defenses posted five shutouts and held opponents to 10 points or less in 22 games. His defensive units ranked among the top three in scoring defense in the Pac-10 in three of his last five seasons at ASU. In 2000, the Sun Devils ranked first in the nation in fumbles recovered and third in the country in number of turnovers created. The group was headlined by Pac-10 Defensive Player of the Year Adam Archuleta and conference Freshman of the Year Terrell Suggs.

In 1999, Snow's defense finished third in the Pac-10 in scoring defense and featured NFL draft picks Erik Flowers and Junior Ioane on a team which played in the Aloha Bowl. His 1997 group ranked third in the Pac-10, but was first in scoring defense (18.5 ppg). The unit was led by Morris Trophy winner Jeremy Staat and Pac-10 Defensive Player of the Year Pat Tillman. ASU played in the Sun Bowl and finished the season ranked 14th in both polls.

Snow's 1996 ASU squad played in the '97 Rose Bowl game and finished first in the conference in rush defense (98.0), pass defense (104.2) and total defense (306.2). It held Nebraska scoreless in one game and limited the opposition to under 10 points in five games total that season. The team finished the season ranked fourth in the nation in both polls.

Snow coached former Sun Devil defensive standouts such as Craig Newsome, Lenny McGill, Kevin Miniefield and Jason Simmons who each went on to the NFL.

At California, Snow tutored the secondary in each of his five seasons in Berkeley, improving the unit each year. His philosophy of man-to-man coverage was a key ingredient in the Golden Bear defensive success. The 1990 and 1991 teams won the first back-to-back bowl games (Copper and Citrus) in school history. The 1991 team moved up as high as sixth in the weekly national rankings and played in the school's first New Year's Day bowl game in 33 years.

From 1982-86, the Winters, Calif., native, served on the staff at Boise State for head coaches Lyle Setencich and Jim Criner. Snow was the defensive coordinator for the Broncos in his last four seasons. His 1986 squad was ranked sixth in the nation in total defense, allowing just 269.4 yards per game and recorded two shutouts. It also yielded just 80.3 yards on the ground to rank fourth in the nation in that category. In his final three seasons at Boise State, Snow served as assistant to the head coach in addition to his duties as defensive coordinator.

Before arriving at Boise State, Snow spent three years at Laney College in Oakland, CA, where he was the secondary coach in 1979 and the co-defensive coordinator in 1980 and 1981.

Snow attended Sacramento City College (1974-75) and Cal State Hayward (1977-78) where he earned his bachelor's degree in physical education. He began his coaching career at the high school level with positions at Berkeley High in 1976 and Winters High in 1977-78. Snow was born Dec. 22, 1955, in Woodland, Calif. He and his wife, Debbie, have two sons, Philip (14) and Jacob (11).

John Pettas

Offensive Coordinator Quarterbacks Coach

John Pettas returns to the University of Washington as the Huskies' offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach this season. His return marks the 26-year veteran of the collegiate coaching ranks' second tenure at Washington. During the 2001 season he worked as a graduate assistant coach, handling the wide receivers.

Last year Pettas was the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach for John L. Smith at Louisville. The Cardinals went 7-6 and lost to Marshall in the GMAC Bowl. Louisville quarterback Dave Ragone was named Conference USA's Offensive Player of the Year. As a senior Ragone passed for 2,880 yards and a conference-best 24 touchdowns.

Pettas is no stranger to the Pac-10 coaching circles. Prior to Washington, Pettas spent five seasons at Arizona State where he saw time as both running backs and quarterbacks coach before serving as the Sun Devils' offensive coordinator for the 2000 season.

Under Pettas in 2000, the Sun Devils led the Pac-10 in passing yards per game and finished fifth in the league in scoring. Three members of the ASU offense earned first-team All-Pac-10 honors, including All-American tight end Todd Heap. In 1996, Pettas coached first-team All-Pac-10 Conference quarterback Jake "The Snake" Plummer, who finished third in the Heisman Trophy balloting, to All-America accolades.

Pettas, who was the quarterbacks and kickers coach at Pacific in 1994, helped lead the Tigers to a 6-5 mark, their best record in 17 years. Pettas followed former ASU assistant Lyle Setencich to Pacific from Cal Poly SLO, where Setencich was the head coach. He served as the offensive coordinator at Cal Poly and also served as coach of the quarterbacks, wide receivers and kickers.

In 1992-93, Pettas served as a coaches' assistant on defense for the San Francisco 49ers.

Pettas also served as the offensive coordinator and coached quarterbacks, running backs and kickers at Kent State (1990-92). Prior to that, he served as the running backs, kickers and special teams coach at the New Mexico (1988-90) and as the offensive coordinator and assistant head coach at Nevada (1978-88).

At Nevada he also coached running backs, kickers and special teams, helping the Wolfpack to the 1978, '79, '83, '85 and '86 I-AA playoffs. The 1978 and '86 teams led the nation in scoring and the '86 squad led the country in total offense.

From 1975 through 1977, Pettas was a graduate assistant and head freshman coach at Colorado. Before that, he served as the offensive coordinator and head freshman baseball coach at Gonzales Union High School in Salinas, Calif. (1974-75). He also was a graduate assistant for quarterbacks at Cal Poly SLO in 1973.

A 1974 graduate of Cal Poly SLO, Pettas quarterbacked the 1971 and 1972 Mustang teams. He helped guide them to an 8-1-1 record and an appearance in the Camelia Bowl in '72. As captain of that squad, Pettas earned All-West Coast Conference honorable mention honors.

The 1969 graduate of Monterey (Calif.) High School earned a master's degree in physical education from Colorado. He and his wife Lynn have two children, Amanda (13) and Mallory (11).

Dan Cozzetto

Offensive Line Coach

Dan Cozzetto enters his first season as the Huskies' offensive line after spending the last 13 seasons coaching offensive line and running backs at three different Pac-10 schools. The last three seasons, he coached at Oregon State. He also handles the field goal and PAT units.

Washington is the fourth Pac-10 institution where Cozzetto, a native of Spokane, Wash., has coached. When he joined Dennis Erickson's OSU staff in 2000 it was to coach the Beavers' running backs. Prior to the start of spring drills in 2001 he switched to coach tight ends and assisted with the coaching of the offensive line. Last season the Beavers led the Pac-10 in rushing at 148.7 yards per game. During Cozzetto's first year at OSU, Beaver running back Ken Simonton earned All-America honors after rushing for 1,559 yards and 19 touchdowns.

Cozzetto, who was an assistant coach for Bruce Snyder at California from 1990 to 1992, followed Snyder to Arizona State when he was named the Sun Devils head coach. He was the offensive coordinator and offensive line coach for the Sun Devils.

The ASU offense ranked fourth in the nation in 1996, averaging 492.5 yards per game. The Sun Devils were third in scoring, averaging 42.8 points per outing. In 1997, Cozzetto's offense led the Pac-10 in rushing (193.8) and was fourth in total offense (406.5). Offensive linemen Kyle Murphy and Grey Ruegamer were first-team All-Pac-10, while Murphy was a third-team All-American by the Associated Press. Ruegamer was selected third-team All-American by The Sporting News. Cozzetto's 1998 offense averaged 411.8 yards per game, the third straight season ASU had cracked the 400-yard mark. ASU averaged 259 yards per game passing, the most in school history.

While at California, Cozzetto was the offensive line coach for two seasons. His first year with the Bears resulted in the most productive year on the ground in 15 seasons, collecting 2,235 yards. Cozzetto's offensive line was also responsible for Cal being only the second team in NCAA history to have two 1,000-yard rushers and a 2,000-yard passer on the same team.

Cozzetto's coaching career began at his alma mater, Idaho, in 1979 as a graduate assistant working with linebackers under coach Jerry Davitch. After serving two years as a graduate assistant (1979-80), he moved into full-time status in 1981 as wide receiver and tight end coach. He coached wide receivers and tight ends until 1985 and then moved to the offensive line starting with the 1986 season.

Additionally, he was also the special teams coordinator from 1983 until 1988.

During his final season at Idaho, 1989, Cozzetto served as offensive coordinator and Idaho led the nation in total offense in 1989, registering 495.9 yards per game. The Vandals were also No. 1 in passing offense (374.3) and No. 6 in scoring offense (35.1 points per game). All five of his offensive linemen at Idaho earned some type of all-conference recognition in both 1988 and '89 with three receiving Division I-AA All-America status in '88 and two in '89. At Idaho, he worked under several head coaches, including Dennis Erickson (1982-85), Keith Gilbertson (1986-88) and John L. Smith (1989).

Cozzetto earned his undergraduate degrees in history and health and physical education from Idaho in 1979. He attended Spokane Falls Junior College from 1974-75. He earned two letters as a tight end of the football team. He played tight end, linebacker and offensive guard during his career at Idaho.

Cozzetto has tutored a number of standout players who have gone on to have careers in the National Football League. At Arizona State that group included quarterback Jake Plummer (Arizona Cardinals), offensive tackle Juan Roque (Detroit Lions), center Grey Ruegamer (New England), offensive tackle Marvel Smith (Pittsburgh Steelers), running back J.R. Redmond (New England Patriots), fullback Terrelle Smith (New Orleans Saints), offensive tackle Levi Jones (Cincinnati Bengals) and offensive tackle Victor Leyva (Cincinnati Bengals).

The list of standout players at California included All-American Tory Auzenne (Chicago Bears), Todd Steussie (Minnesota Vikings), Eric Mahlum (Indianapolis Colts) and Steve Gordon (San Francisco 49ers).

At Idaho he coached standouts such as offensive guard Mark Schlereth, wide receiver Eric Yarber and quarterback John Friesz.

At Idaho, Dan developed Mark Schlereth and Eric Yarber. Schlereth was a 13-year NFL veteran who played guard for the Redskins and Broncos and earned all-pro honors and three Super Bowl rings. Yarber went on to play receiver for the Redskins and win a Super Bowl. Another standout he coached was quarterback John Friesz (1989). Friesz played a total of 11 years in the NFL with San Diego Chargers, Washington Redskins, Seattle Seahawks and New England Patriots.

He and his wife, Debbie, are the parents of four children, Adrian (27), Rachel (24), Ryan (19) and Tara (15). Last season Ryan was a redshirt freshman safety and punter on the Oregon State football.

Randy Hart

Asst. Head Coach / Defensive Line

Randy Hart has the longest tenure on the Washington staff as he begins his 16th season in 2003. Hart coaches Washington's defensive linemen and added the responsibilities of assistant head coach this year.

In his 15 seasons as the Husky defensive line coach, Hart has guided a number of notable players, including Lombardi and Outland winner Steve Emtman, the No. 1 overall pick in the 1992 NFL draft and a consensus All-American. Last season, he coached senior nose tackle Larry Tripplett, a two-time All-American who was drafted by Indianapolis Colts in the second round of the 2002 NFL draft.

Hart helped to engineer Washington's dominating defenses that led the Huskies to three consecutive Rose Bowl appearances at the start of the decade. The 1991 unit allowed only 101 points and 1,191 rushing yards in 11 regular-season games. That unit still holds six Husky defensive records.

Also under Hart's tutelage were 1993 Morris Trophy winner D'Marco Farr, a member of the 2000 Super Bowl Champion St. Louis Rams, and NFLers Dennis Brown, David Richie, Tyrone Rodgers, Jamal Fountaine, Jason Chorak, Jabari Issa and Mac Tuiaea. In 16 seasons, Hart has coached seven all-conference players, three winners of the Morris Trophy (given to the Pac-10's top defensive and offensive linemen) and two players – Chorak and Emtman – who earned Pac-10 Player of the Year honors.

Hart came to Washington after serving as the defensive line coach at Ohio State, his alma mater, from 1982 to 1987. The return to Columbus also marked the third time he served as an assistant under Earle Bruce. From 1977 to 1981 he was the defensive line coach at Purdue under head coach Jim Young. From 1973-76 Hart coached the defensive line for Bruce at Iowa State.

His first full-time coaching position was at the University of Tampa in 1972, where he was the offensive line coach under Bruce. He served as a graduate assistant at OSU in 1970-71.

Hart graduated from The Ohio State University with a bachelor's degree in education in 1970 and earned a master's degree in higher education administration, also from Ohio State, in 1972. He earned three letters as a 6-2, 234-pound offensive guard on the Buckeye football team under legendary coach Woody Hayes and played for the Ohio State team that beat USC, 27-16, in the 1969 Rose Bowl. That squad, which posted a perfect 10-0 record, was named the 1968 national champion. Hart was also a member of the Ohio State wrestling team for the 1966 season.

The first time Hart entered Husky Stadium was not as a Husky assistant coach. In 1969, his senior season, Hart was a member of the No. 1-ranked Buckeye squad that defeated Washington 41-14.

Hart's second trip to Husky Stadium came during the 1974 season as an assistant coach for Iowa State. The Huskies won that close matchup 31-28.

Hart, who was born March 9, 1948, in Cleveland, Ohio, lettered three times each in football, wrestling and track at South High in Willoughby, Ohio, served as the team captain, and earned league MVP in football.

Hart and his wife Linda have two sons, Jay and John. John graduated from UW in 2002 as a three-time varsity letterman on the Husky football team.

Chuck Heater

Recruiting Coordinator Running Backs Coach

Fifth-year Husky assistant coach Chuck Heater returned to his roots last season when he switched to offense to coach Washington's running backs. The previous three years Heater coached UW's cornerbacks. He also oversees the team's punt and kick return units.

In addition to his on-field coaching duties, Heater will also serve as UW's recruiting coordinator for the fifth straight year. In that capacity, he has helped the Huskies to sign three recruiting classes that have been ranked among the top 15 in the nation. A tireless worker, Heater has helped Washington to reestablish its dominance in the Pacific Northwest, especially with in-state prospects.

In three of the last four years, Heater has seen at least one recruit from each class earn freshman All-American honors. In 2001, Heater saw senior cornerback Omare Lowe selected by the Miami in the fifth round of the NFL draft.

Heater was an assistant coach at Colorado for six seasons before joining the UW staff. He originally joined the Colorado staff in 1993 as the director of football operations and recruiting coordinator. He returned to on-field coaching in 1994 when he took over as the defensive backs coach. He coached the tight ends at Colorado his last four seasons in the Buffalo program.

During his collegiate coaching experience, Heater has been associated with five national coaches of the year (Bo Schembechler, Earle Bruce, Lou Holtz, Bill McCartney and Barry Alvarez). He has coached 15 players who were NFL draft selections and numerous all-conference selections. He coached Jim Thorpe Award winner Chris Hudson at Colorado. Heater has coached in 17 bowl games including five times on New Year's Day. He has also met four American presidents (Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan, George Bush).

Heater began his collegiate coaching career in 1976 at Northern Arizona as the running backs coach. He spent the next five seasons back in the midwest at Toledo. In 1977 and 1978 he was the Rockets' running backs coach and served as the secondary coach from 1979-81. He was promoted to defensive coordinator after the 1981 season.

In 1982 Heater joined the staff at Wisconsin as the secondary coach. He spent three seasons in Madison before accepting a position at Ohio State in 1985 as the secondary coach. After three years with the Buckeyes he worked at Notre Dame from 1988-90 as the secondary coach. In his first season the Fighting Irish won the national championship.

Heater joined former Buckeye head coach Earle Bruce at Colorado State for the 1991-92 seasons as the defensive coordinator. He also coached the inside linebackers at Colorado State.

Heater was a three-time letterman as a running back for coach Bo Schembechler at Michigan. He earned second-team All-Big Ten honors as a junior and was an honorable mention selection as a senior. He finished his career as Michigan's fifth all-time leading rusher with 406 carries for 1,981 yards (a 4.9 per carry average). During his four years as a Wolverine, Heater's teams compiled a 41-3-1 record and placed first or tied for first in the Big Ten every season. Following his senior season he was drafted by the New Orleans Saints.

Heater graduated from Michigan in 1975 with a bachelor's degree in education. He won the school's Fielding Yost Award for outstanding academic and athletic performance as a senior.

Heater was born in Weston, W.Va., and raised in Tiffin, Ohio. He is married to the former Deborah Dariano. The Heaters have three children, Emily, Andy and Adam. Andy is a junior tight end at the UW this season.

Cornell Jackson

Safeties Coach

Cornell Jackson is in his second season on the Washington staff coaching. Last year, Jackson coached the UW's inside linebackers, but will coach safeties in 2003. He has also added the kickoff coverage unit to his list of duties.

His current stint at the UW marks the second time during his career he has coached in the Seattle area. Jackson spent the summer of 1993 with the Seattle Seahawks as the linebackers coach in their minority coaching development program.

Last year, two players performing under Jackson's tutelage, inside linebackers Ben Mahdavi and Marquis Cooper, shared the team lead with 100 tackles each.

Prior to joining the Husky staff, Jackson, 42, worked at the University of Houston. For two seasons Jackson coached the Cougar linebackers. During the 2001 season he tutored Wayne Rogers, who was named Conference USA's co-Defensive Player of the Year.

No stranger to the Pac-10 and Husky Stadium, Jackson coached in Seattle twice during his four-year tenure as running backs coach at Arizona State from 1996-99.

Under Jackson's tutelage, ASU's running game was one of the best in the conference. The Sun Devils led the Pac-10 in rushing in 1996 and 1997. In 1998, tailback J.R. Redmond earned second-team All-America honors and was drafted by the NFL's New England Patriots. In 1997 Redmond led the Pac-10 in rushing, averaging 193.8 yards per game. Sun Devil tailback Michael Martin earned MVP honors at the 1997 Sun Bowl thanks to a 167-yard rushing effort in a 17-7 Arizona State victory. Tailback Terry Battle earned All-American and All-Pac-10 honors in 1996.

Jackson began his coaching career as running backs coach at Butler County (Kan.) Community College in 1987 before moving on to Central Missouri State as a graduate assistant coach from 1988-89.

From 1990-91 he worked as the outside linebackers coach at Utah State and then coached the same position at Pacific from 1992-94. Jackson spent the 1995 season at New Mexico, coaching the outside linebackers.

Jackson has taken advantage of NFL internship programs to work for several of the league's teams during their off season. He was an intern coach for linebackers for the Seattle Seahawks in 1993, worked with the St. Louis Rams' linebackers in 1999 and was an intern coach for the Denver Broncos' running backs in 2001. This summer, he served as an intern with the San Diego Chargers coaching staff, working with linebackers.

Jackson graduated in 1986 from Sterling College in Kansas, where he earned a bachelor's degree in health and physical education. He was a two-time all-conference defensive back in 1982 and 1983 after playing two years at Hinds Junior College in Mississippi.

A native of Jackson, Miss., Jackson, is married to the former Lorri Raser.

Bobby Kennedy

Wide Receivers Coach

In 2002, Bobby Kennedy joined the Husky football staff and was named Washington's first full-time wide receivers coach in three seasons.

His first season as the UW receivers coach was a good one as he tutored first-team All-American Reggie Williams, who broke the UW single-season and career yardage records in only his sophomore season.

Kennedy joined the Husky staff after spending the 2001 season as the running backs coach at Arizona. In 2001, he coached Wildcat sophomore tailback Clarence Farmer, who led the Pac-10 Conference in rushing with an average of 111.7 yards per game. Farmer was a first-team all-conference pick and finished 21st nationally in rushing.

Kennedy, 36, worked at Wake Forest for six seasons under Jim Caldwell before being hired at Arizona. He coached the Demon Deacon running backs for two years (1999-2000) and worked with the wide receivers for four seasons (1995-98).

During the 1999 season, he coached Wake Forest senior Morgan Kane, who rushed for 1,161 yards, 10 touchdowns and finished his career as the third-leading rusher in school history.

From 1995-98, Kennedy tutored the Deacon wide receivers, including Desmond Clark, the leading receiver in ACC history and the school's single-season receiving leader, and Jammie Deese, who ranked second in the conference in receiving in 1998.

Prior to coming to Wake Forest, Kennedy coached wide receivers at Wyoming for Cowboys' head coach Joe Tiller. There he tutored All-Americans Ryan Yarbrough, who was the nation's second-leading receiver in 1993, and Marcus Harris, who led the nation in receiving yards per game in 1994.

In 1992, when he worked for coach Joe Paterno's staff as an offensive graduate assistant coach, he helped tutor a pair of tight ends that would go on to be named All-Americans in Troy Drayton and Kyle Brady.

A 1989 graduate of Northern Colorado, Kennedy began his coaching career on the high school level in his hometown of Boulder (at Boulder High School). His first collegiate position was as a graduate assistant for two years at Illinois.

Kennedy was a quarterback for Northern Colorado coach Ron Simonson from 1985-88. He was born in Denver in 1966 and grew up in Colorado, attending Boulder High School. His father, Manert, is a professor at the University of Colorado.

Kennedy and his wife, LaShonda, were married in 1998. They reside in Seattle.

Scott Pelluer

Tight Ends/Special Teams Coordinator

Scott Pelluer returns to the Washington coaching staff for his second stint this fall as he'll take over as the Huskies' tight ends and special teams coordinator. The former Washington State standout linebacker previously spent the 1996 through 1998 seasons as the UW whip linebackers and safeties coach.

Pelluer comes back to Seattle after spending the last two seasons as special teams coordinator and linebackers coach at Arizona. While with the Wildcats, Pelluer coached two-time All-Pac-10 first-team linebacker Lance Briggs, who finished third in the conference in tackles last season.

In three seasons at Washington, Pelluer aided in the development of four players that went on to play in the NFL – safeties Tony Parrish and Hakim Akbar and linebackers John Fiala and Jerry Jensen.

After the 1998 season, Pelluer joined the private sector, helping to develop a major website while also spending time as color commentator on Washington State's football radio broadcasts. In 2000, he returned to the coaching world, helping lead Skyline High School in Issaquah to the Washington state championship as defensive coordinator.

Pelluer spent three seasons at Northern Arizona as the defensive coordinator and linebackers coach before joining the Husky staff in 1996. Under his direction, the Lumberjacks developed a dominating defense that ended the 1995 season ranked No. 1 in every defensive category in the Big Sky Conference. Also nationally ranked in several areas, Northern Arizona's defense ended the 1995 season giving up an average of 14.8 points per game – the lowest total in the Big Sky Conference since the 1978 season.

Even aside from his coaching, Pelluer is a familiar name in the Northwest. A 1981 graduate of Washington State, he was a four-year starter at outside linebacker for the Cougars and earned honorable mention All-Pac-10 honors his senior season. He was selected to play in the East-West Shrine Game. He finished his career with 240 tackles, including 180 solo tackles. His brother, Steve, was Washington's starting quarterback from 1981-83, earning Pac-10 offensive player of the year honors in 1983. Arnie, his youngest brother, played linebacker at Stanford from 1984-87.

Prior to his arrival at Northern Arizona, Pelluer coached linebackers and was the recruiting coordinator at Boise State from 1987-92. Pelluer played six years professionally for the New Orleans Saints. He began his NFL career as a fourth-round draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys in 1981. The Saints picked up Pelluer on waivers in 1981.

While in New Orleans, Pelluer played in 65 games. He also participated in many community activities, organizing the "Winning Touch" football camp that raised money for the Louisiana Special Olympics. He also served on the board of directors for the Ronald McDonald House for four years. Pelluer is a member of the American Football Coaches Association.

Pelluer and his wife, Kimberly, are the parents of three sons, Tyler (16), Cooper (11), Peyton (8) and one daughter, Jordan (14).

Reggie Moore

Graduate Assistant Coach

Reggie Moore joins the UW football staff this season as an offensive graduate assistant coach.

Moore earned four letters as a wide receiver under coach Terry Donahue at UCLA, completing his college career in the 1990 season. He went on to spend two seasons with the New York Jets and another with the Rams. While at UCLA, Moore was on the winning team in three different bowl games and won the team's outstanding senior and senior scholarship awards in 1990.

In 1988, his sophomore year, Moore had what was likely the biggest game of his career at Husky Stadium, catching a game-winning, 48-yard TD pass from Troy Aikman in the final two minutes of the game, giving the second-ranked Bruins a 24-17 win over No. 17 Washington.

Moore still ranks No. 14 on both the Bruins' career receptions and receiving yards lists with 92 career catches for 1,483 career yards. In 1990, he led the Bruins with 40 receptions and 643 yards.

Born and raised in Houston, Texas, Moore attended Madison High School before moving on to UCLA. He earned a degree in history in 1991. After his time in the NFL, he served seven years as a paramedic in the Houston fire department. He also coached at his high school alma mater for four seasons.

Moore, 35, is the son of longtime Houston Oilers cornerback Zeke Moore.

Theron Aych

Graduate Assistant Coach

Theron Aych joins the Husky program as a defensive graduate assistant after spending the past three seasons at Houston. He worked as the running backs the past two years after overseeing the tight ends as a graduate assistant coach during his first season with the Cougar program.

From 1998-1999 Aych was the assistant head coach at Fort Scott Community College in Kansas. He worked as the offensive coordinator at Mesabi Range College (Minn.) in 1997. Aych began his coaching career in the prep ranks as an assistant coach at Aberdeen (S.D.) Central High School.

Aych was a three-time letterwinner as a wide receiver at Northern State University (S.D.), earning a degree in sociology and criminal justice in 1996.

Aych and his wife, Gwyn, have a four-year-old son named Thomas.

Jerry Nevin

Director of Football Operations

Jerry Nevin is in his fifth year at Washington as the director of football operations. Working with the head coach, Nevin oversees all facets of Husky football, including gameday operations, team travel, budget management, summer camps and other administrative duties.

Nevin joined the Husky staff in 1999 after overseeing football operations at Colorado. He originally joined the Buffalo athletic staff as an administrative assistant to coach Rick Neuheisel in 1996.

Nevin moved to Colorado in 1995 and worked in national sales for Bradley Petroleum before beginning his career in intercollegiate athletics. Nevin's previous business experience includes 10 years in the medical field as a sales representative with Coulter Electronics and the Pathology Institute. He also spent time in the biotechnology field with Nichols Institute, located in Southern California.

Nevin graduated from UCLA in 1982 with a B.A. degree in political science and public administration.

He was born June 29, 1960, in Chicago and graduated from Saratoga (Calif.) High in 1978, where he lettered in baseball and wrestling. He is married to the former Janneche Rohn and they have two daughters, Courtney (12) and Nicole (10).

Liz Zelinski

Administrative Assistant

Liz Zelinski enters her seventh year as an administrative assistant in the Husky football office. Zelinski provides administrative support to the head coach and director of football operations Jerry Nevin.

A 1988 graduate of Washington's School of Communications, she was a four-year student manager for the Husky football team, traveling with the team to the 1985 Orange Bowl and winning the Kurt Gegner Memorial Award in 1986.

Zelinski, 36, currently resides in Bothell and enjoys fishing and backpacking.

Erin Chiarelli

Offensive Program Coordinator

Erin Chiarelli enters her fourth year as the program coordinator for Washington's offensive coaches. Chiarelli assists the offensive staff in preparation for practices and games, as well as production of the game plan, tip sheets and playbook. She also acts as the co-advisor for Washington's Husky Host program.

Chiarelli graduated from Washington in 2000 with a degree in political science and a minor in communications. She is 25 and lives in Seattle.

Jamie Koehler

Recruiting Program Coordinator

Jamie Koehler enters her second year as a full-time member of the Husky football staff. Koehler, who formerly served as a student assistant in the football office, joined the full-time staff when she was hired as the program coordinator for recruiting.

Koehler assists UW football recruiting coordinator Chuck Heater in all facets of recruiting. She organizes recruits' official visits, oversees correspondence and maintains the various databases for the coaching staff.

Koehler, 23, received a B.A. in communications from the UW in 2002.

Abner Thomas

Compliance/Internal Oper. Asst.

Abner Thomas is in his 16th year at Washington as the football department's compliance and internal operations assistant. Thomas provides academic and athletic guidance to Husky student-athletes, ensuring that Washington continues to produce well-rounded individuals prepared for post-graduate life.

Thomas and his wife, Donna, reside in Seattle.

Gertrude Peoples

Special Assistant

Gertrude Peoples is in her 33rd year in the Husky athletic department. Peoples uses her years of experience at Washington to educate prospective student-athletes on what to expect academically, socially and athletically at the University. She works as a liaison between parents and the athletic department, coordinating activities to involve them in their child's collegiate experience, such as pre-game tailgates events.

Peoples has three grown children and five grandchildren, Webster (19), Malcolm (15), Anthony (12), Nathan (11) and Hanna (8).
