Chuck Carroll

Chuck Carroll — Considered one of the first great players at Washington, Carroll led the Huskies to a 24-8 record in his three years. He scored 15 TDs as a junior in 1927 and 17 TDs as a senior in 1928, leading the Pacific Coast Conference in scoring both years. His 104 points in 1928 is the sixth-highest single-season total in school history, and his 32 career total TDs rank fifth in school history. Carroll scored 36 of the Huskies' 40 points against Puget Sound in 1928, the second-highest single game scoring total for a Husky. When asked to comment on him, legendary Stanford coach Pop Warner claimed he had never seen "a greater player." Carroll made an impact all over the field, playing all but six total minutes of the team's six regular-season conference games in 1928. He has a place in the College Football Hall of Fame, the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame and was a member of the inaugural induction class of the Husky Hall of Fame.

Junior Coffey — The team's leading rusher in 1962 and 1964 compiled 1,604 yards in his time at Washington, ranking him 16th in school history. This 6-2, 215-pound powerful back from the Texas panhandle averaged 5.9 yards per carry and scored eight TDs in 1962. ANTHONY ALLEN—Allen ranks eighth in career receptions (118), 10th in career receiving yards (1,693), and eighth in career TD receptions (14). Allen had a steady career, averaging just less than 50 yards per game. Arguably Allen's biggest game came in the 1982 Aloha Bowl, reeling in eight catches for 152 yards and three TDs, including an 11-yard TD catch with six seconds left to clinch a 21-20 win over Maryland. The Redskins picked Allen in the sixth round of the 1983 NFL Draft, and in his first game had eight catches for a franchise record 255 yards (record still stands) and three TDs.

MARIO BAILEY—The Huskies' leading receiver in 1990 and 1991, Bailey is the UW all-time leader in career TD receptions with 30, as well as being second on the all-time receiving yardage list with 2,306. His 30 scores are eight more than any other receiver in team history. In 1991, Bailey notched 68 catches for 1,163 yards and a team-record 18 TDs, earning him first-team All-Pac-10 and first-team All-America honors. In big games Bailey performed well, grabbing two scores in the 1991 Rose Bowl and bringing in 126 yards and a TD in the 1992 Rose Bowl. Bailey went on to become a legend in NFL Europe, shattering every career receiving record and winning two World Bowls.

FRED COLEMAN—Coleman was a four-year letterman who made 30 career starts. His career marks include 110 receptions for 1,727 yards and 14 TDs. Coleman played in three bowl games, including the 1997 Aloha Bowl where he had five catches for 68 yards and two TDs in a 51-23 win over Michigan State. His 1,727 yards rank him ninth in team history and his 14 TDs rank him eighth. The Buffalo Bills selected Coleman in the sixth round of the 1998 NFL Draft, after which he spent six seasons in the NFL and three in the AFL.

SPIDER GAINES—A world-class hurdler with explosive speed, Gaines was known for making big plays, the biggest of which came in the 1975 Apple Cup. Down by six points with time running out, he caught a short pass and raced 78 yards for a touchdown to cap a thrilling 28-27 comeback victory over Washington State. Gaines also had long touchdown receptions of 75 yards (Alabama '78) and 54 yards (Minnesota '77), and averaged a Husky record 23.6 yards per reception for his career. He was a key performer in the 1978 Rose Bowl, notching four receptions for 122 yards and a touchdown in the Huskies' 27-20 victory over Michigan. A team captain in his senior season, Gaines received honorable mention as an All-American and was later selected by the Kansas City Chiefs in the sixth round of the NFL Draft.

LONZELL HILL—Hill started 23 games in his career at UW, ranks sixth in school history with 1,766 receiving yards and fifth in receiving TDs with 16. Hill led the Huskies in receiving in 1985 and 1986, grabbing eight TDs in each year. He was a first-team All-Pac 10 and honorable mention All-American selection in 1986. Hill was selected in the second round of the 1987 NFL Draft and played four seasons with the Saints. His career totals are 136 catches for 1,696 yards and 13 TDs.

JEROME PATHON—In 1997, Pathon had one of the most productive seasons ever by a Husky wide receiver, setting single-season records for receptions (69) and receiving yards (1,245). His 1997 total for receiving yards was the second most ever in a Pac-10 season. Pathon led the Huskies to a 21-12-1 record in three seasons, and also played in three bowl games, totaling 13 receptions for 212 yards and two touchdowns. A team captain and first-team All-American as a senior, he finished out his Husky career with a 51-23 victory over Michigan State in the 1997 Aloha Bowl, and was later selected by the Indianapolis Colts in the second round of the 1998 NFL Draft. Pathon spent eight seasons in the NFL, recording career numbers of 260 receptions for 3,350 yards and 15 touchdowns, while helping the Colts to two playoff appearances.

SCOTT PHILLIPS—Phillips was a prolific receiver who eclipsed the Husky career records for receptions and receiving yards by the end of his junior season. He went on to have an NFL career spanning 16 years, including stints with New England, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Houston and Oakland. Camarillo played for New England in Super Bowl XX, punting six times, including a Super Bowl-record 62-yard punt. His 44.5 yards per punt average in the playoffs is the highest in NFL playoff history. He set several NFL punting records and made five Pro Bowl appearances.

SEAN DOUGLAS—Douglas is the most powerful punter in Washington history. During his four years, Douglas rewrote the Husky record book, setting the single-season and career records for yards per punt average with 43.2 and 42.8, respectively. He also owns the two longest punts in team history, with an 82- and 81-yard punt in the game game vs. Oklahoma in 2006. Douglas was one of 10 semi-finalists for the Ray Guy Award, honoring the nation's top punter.

CHARLES FREDERICK—Frederick was the 2004 team captain and was a star receiver and kick returner for Washington. He set Husky records for the number of kick returns in 2002 with 30 and career record of 72. He scored on an 87-yard pass-reception and an 86-yard punt return in a 38-17 victory over Oregon State in 2003, recording 216 receiving yards and set a Husky record with 371 all-purpose yards. Frederick is seventh in school history with 11.1 yards per punt return and fourth in kick return yards with 601. In 2003, he was named first-team All-Pac-10.

JEFF JAEGER—Jaeger helped Washington to a 34-13-1 record in four seasons, setting an all-time Husky scoring record with 358 points and an NCAA record with 80 career field goals. In his senior season he connected on 17-of-21 field goal attempts and 42-of-43 extra point attempts. During his senior season of 1986 he was a consensus first-team All-American. Jaeger was a third-round draft pick by the Cleveland Browns in 1987 and has played in several Pro Bowls. He also broke numerous records in his NFL career.

JOE JARZYNSKA—The former walk-on broke many returning records at the UW, but perhaps he is best known for almost never calling for a fair catch. He played in 43 games in four seasons, compiling 17 career receptions for 183 yards and two touchdowns. He served as a kicker in the 1998 season, converting 19-of-22 PATs and 6-of-8 field goals. He is second in team history in career punt returns (101) and sixth in kick returns (46). Jarzynka was named Pac-10 Player of the Week against California in 1998, after breaking the conference record with 166 punt return yards, including a 91-yard punt return TD (he also kicked the PAT after the return). An all-time Husky fan-favorite, he was awarded with first-team All-Pac-10 honors in 1998.

CHUCK NELSON—Nelson helped the UW to a 29-7 record during his three years, scoring a team-record 109 points in his senior season. He made 25-of-26 field goals in 1982, setting an NCAA record for field goal percentage (.962). His career field-goal percentage of .819 was a UW and Pac-10 record. He was named KIRO Player of the Year and Seattle P-I Star of the Year, a two-time first-team Academic All-American and a unanimous first-team All-American in 1982. Nelson was drafted in the fourth round of the 1983 NFL Draft and played for the Rams, Bills and Vikings.
