Huskies Seek Right Mix for Championship Run

UW careers. Replacing those two along with a player of the caliber of Mackenzie is almost an impossible task, but fourth-year coach Matt Thurmond has the solution.

While Mackenzie and the Huskies were putting together a sixth place finish at the 2004 NCAA Championships, junior James Lepp was practicing his game back in Seattle. A second-team All-American in 2003 while playing for Illinois, the former Big Ten player of the year had to sit out last year's campaign due to NCAA transfer rules.

The Canadian Men's Amateur Player of the Year the past two seasons, Lepp joins sophomores Alex Prugh and Erik Olson to give Washington three All-Americans in its lineup. Prugh was 28th at last year's NAAs while Olson placed 33rd to earn honorable mention All-America accolades.

"Anytime you lose three guys who played almost every tournament during their careers, including the best player in the

Alex Prugh

The Washington men's golf team will rely on a youthful roster in its quest to make a seventh consecutive appearance at the NCAA Championship. With seven of nine players either freshmen or sophomores, the Huskies will have to count on three veterans who have earned All-America honors to get the job done.

The lead dog for the Huskies the past four years was Brock Mackenzie, a three-time All-America and former Walker Cup participant, he ranks at the top of every UW single-season and career list and owns practically ever record possible for a player. Also gone from last year's team are Dan Potter and Corey Prugh, players who made multiple NCAA appearances during their

Elite Company

Since the Huskies began their current streak of six consecutive NCAA Championship appearances, only six other teams have accomplished that feat. Arizona, Clemson, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Oklahoma State are the only other programs to be making their sixth consecutive trip to the NAAs. Interestingly, each of those schools has finished at least fourth at the championship since 1999, including titles won by Georgia (1999), Oklahoma State (2000) and Minnesota (2002). Georgia Tech and Clemson have both been runnersup.

Erik Olson

history of the program there is going to be a real void, Thurmond says. "Even more than competitively on the course with the scores they shoot, you lose their presence and attitude on the team and the energy they bring to every tournament. When you lose three guys like that, you usually have a major drop off. I think we've been able to avoid that. In fact, I think we'll be able to contend for a championship like we have the past few years."

Both Prugh and Olson had terrific summers to build on their solid showings at the NAAs. Prugh was the first alternate at the U.S. Open after tying for first at a Sectional Qualifier. Olson won the Seattle

Amateur and was 14th at the Western Amateur

Prugh was Washington's most productive player during the fall. Playing in four tournaments, he posted a stroke average of 71.82 in 1 rounds. He placed in the top three of each team tournament and was invited to All-American Classic along with Olson. He was second in the highly-competitive Big Ten-Pac-10 Challenge at Bandon Dunes.

"Alex drives the ball extremely well," Thurmond says. "This year he has changed his putting grip and it has made a huge difference and I think it is why he is contending in all of these tournaments. His preparation for tournaments is getting so much better. He believes he can win now so he's going into tournaments expecting to win."

Olson got off to a great start in the fall by firing a 66 during his first round and ended it just as impressively by placing eighth at the All-American Classic.

"Last year Erik did a great job of really contributing," Thurmond says. "I thought he had a turning point at the regional last year when he stepped up and shot 73 in extremely difficult conditions at Crosswater. He kind of carried the team and allowed us to advance to the nationals where he went out and played beautifully. Look for him to keep getting better. He can be a great player."

James Lepp

energetic type of player. When he gets going

Lepp missed part of the fall campaign good, no one will beat him. He hasn't played those five players to know. However we get while helping Team Canada to a fourth-place finish at the World Amateur Championships. he plays good he wins and when he wins, "We just need to take it one step at a time and keep getting a little better from the very beginning, knowing we were going

When he returned he was ninth at the Duke he wins by a lot. We haven't seen the best Classic and finished the fall with a 73.67 of him." Thurmond knows he can count on him to have some struggles, I knew that by the a school record by averaging 71.41 per three All-Americans but it will be the other end of the year this was going to be a very letterwinners and newcomers that will good golf team. I think somebody will step

"James has not hit his stride yet," dictate the success of the season. Along the Thurmond says. "James is an emotional and way there will some growing pains. up. I'm not exactly sure who it is going to be, but somebody will."

"We had at least two freshmen in the lineup in every tournament this fall," Thurmond says. "I know there is going to be some learning that needs to take place. From a results standpoint, I would have to say the fall was very mediocre. From the progress of the team, I'm optimistic about that."

Sophomores Reid Rader and Cody Upham are the other returning letterwinners from last year's squad. Rader played in seven tournaments as a freshman and posted a 76.76 scoring average. Upham picked up his first top-10 finish this fall when he was ninth at the Duke Classic.

A trio of freshmen, Zach Bixler, Sterling Clark and Joe Panzeri, and a senior walk-on, Travis Andrews, make up the team's four newcomers. All four have a chance to qualify for tournament play this year and Thurmond has scheduled several additional tournaments to get them more experience.

Bixler led the group in the fall by posting a 73.36 average in four tournaments. Andrews fired a 65 in his first tournament, playing unattached at Idaho's Vandal Classic.

Thurmond knows he will take at least two players to postseason competition that have never been there before.

"By the time we go to postseason I want to know who my best five players are," Thurmond says. "Not only do I want to know I want it to be clear to our team and I want

Matt Thurmond

Head Coach Fourth Season

- Guided Washington to three consecutive top-11 finishes at the NCAA Championships
- Coached first-team All-American Brock Mackenzie, a Walker Cup participant
- Led Washington to eight Tournament championships in three years.
- Coached Washington to its first NCAA Regional title in 2003
- A four-year letterman at BYU from 1993-1999
- Named Western Athletic Conference Freshman of the Year in 1994

Fourth-year Washington men's golf coach Matt Thurmond has built the Husky program into one of the top college programs in the nation. Last year's sixth-place finish at the NCAA Championships marked the UW's sixth consecutive trip to the national championships, a current streak matched by just five other Division I programs.

The Huskies sixth-place showing in 2004 was the second best in Washington's 17 trips to the NCAA Championships. The team's postseason was highlighted by Brock Mackenzie earning first-team All-American honors for the second straight year and freshmen Alex Prugh and Erik Olson being named honorable mention All-Americans.

The youthful Thurmond, who became Washington's head coach when he was just 26, wants to do more than just make the NCAA Championships an annual rite of passage for Husky golf. Thurmond believes Washington can challenge for the national title using primarily players from the Pacific Northwest.

Since taking over the Husky program, Thurmond has witnessed the most successful stretch run in Washington's history. He has led the UW to a pair of fifth-place finishes at the NCAA Championships prior to last year's sixth-place finish. In 2002 the Huskies won the program's first NCAA West Regional Championship. Over the past four seasons, Thurmond's teams have amassed eight tournament championship trophies.

Last summer Mackenzie qualified for the U.S. Open while Prugh was the first alternate for the event. Mackenzie, who graduated as the most decorated golfer in UW history, played for the United States team at the Walker Cup in England, winning all three of his matches against competitors from Great Britain and England.

Last fall Husky junior James Lepp finished 18th at the NCAA Amateur Team Championships while leading Canada to a fourth-place showing. In December Lepp was named Canadian amateur player of the year for the second consecutive year.

There have been a number of outstanding performances and record-setting achievements under Thurmond. Every Washington individual and team record has been set during his tenure. Some of the highlights include:

- In 2001, Husky senior Gordy Scutt became the first UW golfer to win back-to-back tournaments, finishing first at both the Mandal Classic and the Husky Invitational.
- In the fall of 2002, Mackenzie turned in a 54-hole score of 202 at Stanford to break the school tournament scoring mark.
- As a junior Mackenzie shot 12-under 60 at the Oregon Invitational to set NCAA records for net score and score against par.
- The Huskies shot 834 at the 2002 Western Intercollegiate to shatter the old school tournament scoring mark and carded a 270 during the second round to rewrite the UW single-round record.

Thurmond was named Washington's head coach in June of 2001 after O.D. Vincent announced he was leaving to pursue a career in professional golf. Thurmond had worked at UW as an assistant coach for one season.

Prior to joining the Husky staff, Thurmond worked as an assistant coach for his alma mater, Brigham Young, during the 1999-2000 season. That edition of Cougar golf won seven tournament titles and was ranked in the top 10 all season.

Thurmond was a four-year letterman on the BYU golf team, from 1993-1999, and was named Western Athletic Conference Freshman of the Year in 1994. Following that, he served as a missionary for his church in Venezuela and then returned home to become team captain and earn recognition as a WAC Scholar-Athlete and Academic All-American in 1998.

Thurmond graduated from BYU in 1999 with a degree in English. He is married to two-time WAC champion triple jumper Kathy Sorenson, who also competed for the Cougars. They have a two-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, and are expecting their second child this spring.

Thurmond made his return to competitive golf last fall when he qualified for the U.S. Mid-Amateur Championship. A back injury prevented him from completing play at the event.

Thurmond is from Burlington, Wash., where he attended Burlington-Edison High School.

Jon Reehoorn Assistant Coach

- Second-team All-Pac-10 selection in 2002
- Led Washington State to its only NCAA Regional appearance in 2002
- Named to PING All-Pacific Region team in 2002
- Awarded Pac-10 Post-Graduate scholarship

Former Washington State standout golfer Jon Reehoorn is in his first season as an assistant coach at Washington.

Reehoorn joins the Husky program after working at Louisville last season as a graduate assistant coach while working toward his Athletic Administration degree. While residing in Louisville he also worked as an intern for the Mid-South Conference and the Greater Louisville Sports Commission.

As a senior in 2002, Reehoorn was a second-team All-Pac-10 selection, helping Washington State to its only NCAA Regional Championships appearance in the program's history. He was selected to the PING All-Pacific Region team that year as one of the region's top 15 players and was a second-team Pac-10 All-Academic team member. He received one of the Pac-10 Conference's post-graduate scholarships following his senior year at Washington State.

Reehoorn completed his Washington State golf career with a school record 12 top-25 finishes in addition to posting a 72.0 scoring average in 2001-02, the best single-season mark in school history. In addition, Reehoorn ended his career at WSU with a school record 14 and 28 career top-10 and top-25 finishes, respectively.

Reehoorn was a walk-on at Washington State and lettered four times. He received honorable mention all-Pac-10 notice as a junior. He was a second-team Pac-10 All-Academic selection as a sophomore and received honorable mention honors during his junior season. After attending Burlington-Edison High School, Reehoorn received an Evans Scholarship to attend Washington State.

After graduating from Washington State, Reehoorn worked as an intern in the Mississippi State athletic department in 2002 and then became a graduate teaching assistant at the school during the spring semester of 2003.

Fielding a lineup that included three freshmen playing their first collegiate tournament, the Washington men's golf team shot 4-under 356 during the final day of play to win the Opus NW Husky Invitational. The Huskies finished the 54-hole event at 7-over 1087, 21 strokes better than second-place San Diego State.

Husky senior All-American Brock Mackenzie posted his third straight sub-par round to run away with medalist honors. Mackenzie shot 4-under 68 on Tuesday to win the event by seven strokes at 8-under 208. San Diego State's Cory Segall and California's Scott Carlyle tied for second at 215.

The win was the fourth in Mackenzie's career, making him the all-time event winner in Washington history. He was tied with current UCLA coach O.D. Vincent.

Washington's final round included a 71 by senior Corey Prugh, even par scores by Cody Upham and Erik Olson and a 73 by Alex Prugh. Dan Potter's 75 was the score the Huskies threw out. Washington was the only team to post an under-par team round during the tournament.

Olson tied for fifth overall at 2-over 218. Potter and Alex Prugh tied for 19th at 6-over 222.

Washington entered Tuesday's final round with a nine-stroke lead over Oregon State. The Beavers shot 20-over 380, their worst round of the event, to fade back to seventh place. UCLA, ranked third in the nation, finished third at 31-over 1111. BYU and Washington State tied for fourth at 37-over 1117. California, ranked fourth in the latest Golfweek standings, was sixth at 119.

Washington senior Brock Mackenzie shot 3-under 68 during the final round of The Nelson at Stanford to finish fourth overall and guide the Huskies to a second-place finish. Washington entered the final round with a one-stroke lead over 16th-ranked Duke, but dropped back to finish three strokes behind the Blue Devils. Duke shot 9-under 275 Sunday to win the 15-team tournament at 18-under 834. Washington was second at 15-under 837. The Huskies shot 280 over the final 18 holes.

Duke's victory marked the third time in four years the Blue Devils have won The Nelson.

Washington's team score was the second best in school history. The record 54-hole score by a UW squad was an 834 recorded in April of 2002 at the Western Intercollegiate.

Mackenzie had rounds of 69, 67 and 68 during the tournament to finish at 9-under 204. Duke's Ryan Blaum and Toledo's Brad Heaven tied for medalist honors at 12-under 201. Colorado State's Nolan Martin shot 65 on Sunday to move into third place at 10-under 203.

Mackenzie, who entered the tournament as the nation's top-ranked player, recorded the 26th top-10 finish of his career. He has been under-par in all six of his rounds this fall.

The 18th-ranked Washington men's golf team shot 295 during the final round of The Prestige to move up to ninth on the final leaderboard at 591. Washington was led during the 54-hole event by Dan Potter who turned in rounds of 74, 71 and 74 to finish at 3-over 219, good for 20th place.

UCLA shot a final round of 7-under par 281, the low round of the day erasing a five-stroke deficit to overtake second-round leader Texas Christian in capturing the team title.

UCLA, which finished the three-round event at 5-under 859, had all four scoring players finish below par on Tuesday led by John Pouches 3-under 69. UCLA entered the tournament No. 4 in the country by Golfweek, two spots ahead of TCU's No. 6 ranking. The Horned Frogs (860) fired a 1-under par 287 on Tuesday to finish one stroke ahead of Brigham Young University (861). Pepperdine (863) finished fourth while Colorado (868) and 2000 champion Northwestern (868) tied for fifth.

In the race for individual medals, TCU's Colby Beckstrom tied for the low-round of the day with a 5-under 67 to overtake second-round leader Zack Miller of Stanford and win by two strokes. Beckstrom, who shot rounds of 71-68-67 for a 10-under 206 total, was the only player in the field to finish under par each round.

Washington All-American Brock Mackenzie shot 1-under 71 on Tuesday to finish 22nd at 4-over 220. Alex Prugh was 33rd at 222 while Erik Olson was 45th at 225. Reid Rader rounded out the UW scoring with a 241 to place 76th.

The Washington men's golf team placed fourth at the Pac-10 Championships held at the Gallery at Dove Mountain in Tucson. Washington shot 10-over 370 during Wednesday's final wind-whipped round of play for a 72-hole total of 36-over 1476. The finish was the best by a Husky squad since placing fourth in 2001. Husky senior All-American Brock Mackenzie carded a final round score of 72 to finish fourth in stroke play at 4-under 284.

Arizona won the tournament by posting a final-round score of 5-over 365 to finish at 1450. Arizona's Henry Liaw won medalist honors by shooting 4-under 68 during the final round for a three-day total of 9-under 279.

Windy conditions during the afternoon played havoc with the team's still on the course. Washington's five scoring players were a combined five-under par after the first holes before play was halted for one hour due to lighting in the area. After play resumed, the strong winds played a part in Washington's scoring players finishing the final seven holes at a combined 14-over par.

Mackenzie stood at 2-under before the weather delay. His finish was the best by a Husky since teammate Corey Prugh placed fourth in 2001. Mackenzie's previous best showing at the Pac-10s was seventh during his sophomore season.

Senior Dan Potter shot 76 Wednesday to finish 12th at 5-over 293. Corey Prugh had his best tournament of the season, finishing 21st at 12-over 300. Alex Prugh was 24th at 301 while Erik Olson was 28th at 302. Reid Rader shot 308 to finish 40th.

The 24th-ranked Washington men's golf team rallied from an 18-stroke deficit to tie third-ranked UCLA for the second annual Northwest Shootout title at Crosswater in Sunriver, Ore. The event is a preview for the 2004 NCAA West Regional Championship that will also be played at the course May 20-22.

Using a six-player format that counts the top five scores, the Huskies rallied behind All-American Brock Mackenzie in the team's final regular season tournament. UCLA opened play Monday by shooting 356 during the morning round while the Huskies and Oregon State both posted scores of 374. In the afternoon Washington posted the best round, 376, while the Bruins total swelled to 394. The teams tied at 750 while Oregon State placed third at 762.

Mackenzie placed third at 3-over 147. UCLA's Roy Moon took medalist honors at 4-under 140 while Oregon State's Sean Deacon was second at 145. Husky freshman, Reid Rader, who led Washington with a 72 during the opening round, finished sixth at 148. Dan Potter was eighth at 149 while Cody Upham was 11th at 152 and Erik Olson was 12th at 154. Corey Prugh was 15th with a score of 160 while his younger brother Alex, finished 17th at 160.

UCLA's Travis Johnson, who shot even-par 72 during the first round, withdrew during the afternoon session.

Washington won last year's inaugural Northwest Shootout held at Washington National.

The 24th ranked men's golf team finished 10th at the NCAA West Regional to earn the tournament's final berth to the NCAA Championships.

UNLV, which entered the final round in 14th position, shot 9-over 297, but finished four shots behind the Huskies. San Diego State, tied with Washington at the start of the day at 309 and faded to 13th place. Pepperdine, which entered the final round in 13th place, carded a 294 to become the only team to move into the top-10 during the final 18 holes. The Waves were ninth, one stroke better than Washington was.

UCLA claimed the team title with a 1-over score of 865. New Mexico, the ninth seed, was second at 866. Also qualifying from the regional were Arizona (872), Arizona State (873), BYU (881), Southern California (881), Toledo (882) and California (882). Toledo, the 13th seed, was the only non-top-10 seed to advance from the regional.

Washington redshirt freshman Erik Olson led the Huskies on Saturday with a final-round 72. He completed the tournament at 6-over 222. Senior Dan Potter posted the same final score after shooting 74 during the final round. Senior All-American Brock Mackenzie finished with a 75 to complete play at 1-over 217. Freshman Alex Prugh turned in a 54-hole total of 226 while his older brother Corey ended the regional at 12-over 228.

Playing in a steady rain that made conditions very difficult at The Homestead Resort, the 23rd-ranked Washington men's golf team shot 16-over 296 and tied Florida for sixth-place at the NCAA Championships. The finish was the best by a Husky team since the 1999 squad placed fourth. It marked the fifth top-10 finish in UW's 17 NCAA appearances.

California rallied from an eight-shot deficit to overtake UCLA and win the tournament at 14-over 1144. Junior Ryan Moore, a Puyallup native, ran away with the individual title. He shot 4-under 66 for a 72-hole total of 13-under 267.

Washington senior Brock Mackenzie was the Husky's top finisher. He carded a 2-over 72 Friday to place 15th overall at 3-over 283. It was the third-best finish by a UW player at the tournament. He was fifth last season as a junior.

Husky freshman Alex Prugh and Erik Olson both shot 75 during the final round. Prugh finished 28th overall at 8-over 288. Olson was 33rd at 290. Prugh's finish was the ninth best by a Washington golfer at the NCAAAs while Olson was the 10th top outing. Prugh's showing tied Mackenzie for the best performance by a UW freshman at the NCAAAs.

Senior Dan Potter shot 4-over 74 to complete the tournament in 44th place at 294. Classmate Corey Prugh shot 77 and placed 65th at 300. Both players recorded their best finishes at the NCAAAs. Potter had placed 63rd the past two years and Prugh's previous best was 97th in 2002.

Mackenzie's score marked the second straight year he shot 3-over at the NCAAAs. During his four appearances at the national championships, he was a combined 6-over par. He ended his Husky career as Washington's all-time leader in tournament championships (four), top-10 finishes (32) and owns the three best single-season stroke averages in school history.

The 20th-ranked Washington men's golf team turned in its best round of the tournament to place third at its Opus NW Invitational at the Olympic Course at Gold Mountain. The Huskies shot 3-under 357 Tuesday to complete the 54-hole event at 14-over 1094, two strokes behind 15th-ranked BYU. USC, which entered the final round with a 19-stroke lead, shot 10-over 370 but still managed to win by seven strokes. The Trojans completed the tournament at 5-over 1085.

USC was led by senior Ben Hayes, who took medalist honors with a 4-under 212 performance. BYU's Oscar Alvarez was second at 213 while teammate Greg Machtaler tied for third at 214.

Hayes carded rounds of 69, 71 and 72 to win his first collegiate title. His teammate Taylor Wood, who entered the final round in first place, shot 5-over 215 Tuesday to fall back to 10th place.

Washington was led by sophomore Alex Prugh and Erik Olson during the team's first tournament of the season. Prugh posted a 4-under 68 during the final round to move up from 14th to a tie for third. It was his best finish ever in a collegiate event.

Olson, who opened the event with a career-best 66, shot 70 during the third round to tie for sixth at 1-under 215. Junior James Lepp, playing in his first UW tournament after sitting out the 2003-04 season after transferring from Illinois, placed 14th at 3-over 219.

The 17th-ranked Washington men's golf team shot 3-under 285 Monday to finish third at the Duke Classic at the Duke Golf Club. Washington's 54-hole score of 12-over 876 was 16 strokes behind the Blue Devils. Duke's team score of 4-under 860 set a record for the event. North Carolina placed second at 873.

Washington's James Lepp and Cody Upham tied for ninth in stroke play at 3-over 219. It was Lepp's best finish in three tournaments at Washington and equaled his best tournament score at UW. He shot 73 during all three rounds. Upham's score was his best as a Husky and it marked his first top-10 finish at UW.

Erik Olson placed 22nd at 222 while Alex Prugh carded UW's best finishing-round score, a 4-under 68, to move up to 25th at 223. Zach Bixler completed the event in 27th place at 224.

North Carolina's Martin Ureta was the individual medalist after coming out on top after a four-man playoff that also featured Duke's Ryan Blaum and Michael Quagliano, along with Michigan State's Matt Harmon. All four players finished the tournament at 6-under 210. Quagliano and Harmon both had pars at the first playoff hole, but Blaum and Ureta had birdie threes. Ureta finally won the playoff with a birdie on the fourth extra hole.

Washington sophomore Alex Prugh shot 1-under 71 Tuesday to finish second at the inaugural Big Ten/Pac-10 Challenge at Bandon Dunes in Bandon, Ore. Prugh posted a 36-hole score of 1-under 143 to place one shot behind Arizona State's Alejandro Canizares, the 2003 NCAA Champion.

Prugh's finish was his best as a collegiate and marked his third top-three finish in four tournaments this season. It was the fourth top-10 finish for Prugh in his career. He entered the event ranked 56th in the Golfweek standings.

Washington shot 14-over 302 during Tuesday's second round that began Monday but was halted due to heavy rains. The Huskies placed sixth in the 14-team field at 608 in the tournament, originally scheduled for 54 holes, was reduced to a 36-hole format due to the weather.

Minnesota won a tiebreaker against USC to claim the championship trophy for the Big Ten. The Golden Gophers made up a 13-stroke deficit by carding a tournament low round of 292 to finish with the Trojans at 596.

In the conference challenge, the Pac-10 won the inaugural event with a combined score of plus-162 to the Big Ten's plus-191. Each conference counted its low six scores of each round to determine the challenge winner.

Husky freshman Zach Bixler was 14th overall at 6-over 150. Cody Upham placed 45th at 156 while Travis Andrews was 52nd at 157. Erik Olson shot 77 Tuesday and was 68th at 164.

Husky Golf Historical

The Early Years

The establishment of a golf course on the Washington campus in 1920 led to the organization of a golf team in 1921. The Varsity Golf Club was formed in 1923 and William Jefferson became the school's first golf coach in 1931. Golf was elevated to a "major letter award" program in 1947 thanks to its success.

Jack Westlund

Jack Westlund was the first great golfer at Washington. Just two years after the first team was organized Westlund won the Northwest Conference championship in 1925. On June 26 of that year he defeated Yale's Frank Vattles in the semifinals of the National Intercollegiate tournament. The next day Westlund fell to Tulane's Fred Lambrecht for the national title.

Huskies Debut at NAAs in 1946

After going unbeaten and untied in the Pacific Coast Conference Northern Division, Washington sent four golfers to represent the University at the NCAA Championships for the first time. The 1946 tournament was held at Princeton. The Husky team of Harold "Bos" Gjølme, Joe Greene, Jack Hazlett and Vern Burns led Washington to an eighth-place finish.

Pacific Coast Conference Titles

From 1935 to 1959 Washington's golf team competed in the Northern Division of the Pacific Coast Conference. Oregon, Oregon State, Washington State, Montana and Idaho competed against Washington in conference play. The Huskies and Ducks dominated the golf titles as Washington claimed eight titles between 1935 and 1959 while Oregon won 17 championships. The Huskies won Northern Division titles in 1935, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1942, 1946, 1948 and 1955. Carl Jonson (1937), Palmer Smith (1940), Ernie Jacobs (1943), Paul Johanson (1951, 1953) and Don Russell (1951, 1952) all won individual championships for Washington.

1961 & 1963 Conference Titles

Washington won its first Pac-10 Championship (known as Athletic Association of Western Universities at the time) in 1961 at the Rainier Golf and Country Club in Seattle. The Huskies shot 1,181 to defeat USC by two strokes in the 72-hole competition. The Huskies were led by medalist Clint Names, who won by three strokes at 286. UW's Del Harris was third overall at 294 while James Lamey was eighth at 299. Jack Craig placed 12th at 302 while George Kauffman was 18th at 308. Two years later the Huskies won the Bix Six Championship at the Stanford Golf Course. This time the Huskies edged USC by one stroke, 1,197 to 1,198 for the title. Bruce Richards was second overall at 290. Bill Indall was sixth at 299, Chuck Ainslie eighth at 302. Bob Litton shot 306 while seniors Joe Bush and Jack Craig finished at 316.

The original University Golf Course, located along the Montlake Cut, was built in 1920. It is now the site of the University Medical Center.

Clint Names

Clint Names carved his name into Washington's golf record books in 1961 when he won the Pac-10 (known as the Athletic Association of Western Universities at the time) Championship. He led the Huskies to the team championship with a score of 286. Washington beat USC by two strokes for the team crown. Names was a three-time letterman for both the Husky golf and basketball teams. He started for the hoops squad during the 1960 and 61 seasons, averaging 12.2 points per game as a senior guard.

1988 Pac-10 Champions

Behind the play of medalist O.D. Vincent, Washington won its first conference championship in 25 years at Orinda Country Club. The Huskies won by six strokes over defending champion Arizona, 1,104 to 1,110. Vincent, a sophomore shot 2-under 214 to win by four strokes. UW's Todd Tibke and Scott Whaley were instrumental in the victory. They tied for second at 218. Vincent became the first golfer from the Pacific Northwest to claim the crown since Oregon's Peter Jacobsen in 1974. UW coach Bill Indall became the first Husky golf coach to earn Pac-10 coach of the year honors. The Huskies went on to finish 15th at the NAAs behind the 19-place finish at 294. It was UW's first trip to the NAAs in 22 years. Vincent led the field after 36 holes when he opened with back-to-back 69s at the North Ranch Country Club in Westlake Village, Calif. Ted Himka shot 300, Mike Swingle finished at 306, Whaley was fourth for UW at 319 and Tibke shot 322.

O.D. Vincent

Considered one of the finest players in Husky history, O.D. Vincent is also recognized among his peers as a successful coach, directing the Husky program from 1996-2001. In Feb., 2000, Vincent was named National Coach of the Year by the College Golf Coaches Association. In his fourth year as head men's coach, UW had arguably the most successful season in school history capturing three event titles and a school record fourth-place finish at the NAAs. Prior to his national honor, Vincent was named Pac-10 co-coach of the year. As a player, Vincent put UW golf back on the map by winning the 1988 Pac-10 Championship while leading the Huskies to the team title. He also won the Hammond-Bell Pacific Coast Intercollegiate and set a three-round school record at the Stanford/U.S. Intercollegiate with a score of six-under 210. In the NCAAs, Vincent was the leader after two rounds before slipping into a 19th-place tie. Vincent also enjoyed success after college. In November 1991, he fired a final-round 67 and became the only American to qualify for the European Tour in 1992. In the 1992 British Open, he was among the leaders throughout the first two rounds. He resigned as UW coach in 2001 to return to again pursue a professional career. He is now the head men's golf coach at UCLA.

Husky Golf Historical

Michael Combs

Though he only played one season for the Huskies, Mike Combs has a place in the Washington record books as the only Husky graduate to compete in the Masters. Combs played his first three years at Oklahoma before coming to UW for his final year in 1989-90. A native of Kennewick, Wash., Combs played in all 37 of UW's competitive rounds, averaging 73.9 strokes. His best finish was a second-place showing at the Nike Northwest Collegiate Classic, where he fashioned back-to-back 70s to finish at 212. In the summer of 1990, Combs won the United State Public Links Championship in Portland, Ore., and thereby qualified for the 1991 Masters. At Augusta, Combs had the opportunity to play with Jack Nicklaus during the first two rounds, firing a two-round total of 155. Combs missed the cut, but shot a second-round 74.

Brock Mackenzie

Brock Mackenzie completed his Washington career in 2004 as the most decorated player in school history, earning All-America honors during all four of his years as a Husky. He was a PING first-team All-American in 2003 and 2004, a second-team pick as a sophomore in 2002 and an honorable mention pick as a freshman. Mackenzie was a first-team All-Pac-10 performer from 2002-2004. As a junior he tied the collegiate scoring record by carding a 12-under 60 to set the course record at the Eugene Country Club during the Oregon Duck Invitational. He owns the UW records for tournament score (1-under 202), individual championships (four), stroke average (70.6 in 2004), single-rounds played (47 in 2002), career rounds played (165), single-season top-10 finishes (1 in 2002) and career top-10 finishes (32). Mackenzie led UW in stroke average all four of his seasons. He was named Washington's Top Dawg Award winner as the school's outstanding senior student athlete in 2004. He was also recognized as a Pac-10 Medalist that year. He was a member of the 2002 Palmer Cup and won all three of his matches while representing the United States at the 2003 Walker Cup.

Mackenzie Shoots 60

Washington junior Brock Mackenzie became just the third collegiate golfer to shoot 60 during a tournament when he carded a 12-under round on March 23, 2003 at the Eugene Country Club. Georgia Tech's Bryce Molder was the only other college player to post a 12-under round. Arizona State's Paul Casey had also shot 60, but his was at the par-71 Broadmoor Country Club in Seattle. Mackenzie posted his record setting score during his second round of the day at the Oregon Duck Invitational. He completed his round in wet and rainy conditions just minutes before darkness would have halted the competition. Mackenzie's score was a course record for the Eugene Country Club. It also shattered the previous Washington single-round score of 64 which was shared by teammates John Robertson and Dan Potter. Mackenzie's previous best collegiate score was a 65. Mackenzie carded an eagle on his first hole during shotgun play and went on to add 10 more birdies. He was 7-under 28 for his front nine and 5-under 32 for his back nine.

2002 NCAA Regional Champions

Washington won its first NCAA Regional title in 2002 when the Huskies overcame a two-shot deficit to tie New Mexico for the West Regional Championship. Washington turned in its best round, a 288, during the final day of to finish the 54-hole tournament at 872. The Huskies were led by sophomore Brock Mackenzie, who carded a final round score of 5-under 67 to tie for fourth place overall at 215. Mackenzie's finish was the second best showing by a UW golfer at a NCAA Regional. Washington's Dan Potter finished 34th overall at 221 while John Robertson was 60th at 224. Corey Prugh was 72nd at 226 and Conner Robbins finished 21st at 232. The victory was the Huskies' fifth championship during the season.

Walker Cup

Washington's Brock Mackenzie became the first Husky to play in the Walker Cup. During the summer of 2003 he was one of 10 players representing the United States in the 39th Walker Cup Match at the Ganton Golf Club in North Yorkshire, England. Mackenzie won all three of his matches but it was not enough as the United States team failed to regain the Walker Cup, losing to Great Britain and Ireland by a score of 12 1/2 to 12. The Walker Cup Match is contested by male amateur players, one team from the United States and one team from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

Rob Rashell

Former Washington men's golfer Rob Rashell placed second at the 2004 PGA Qualifying School to earn his exemption to the PGA Tour. Rashell shot 416 over the six-round event and finished one stroke behind England's Brian Davis. Rashell claimed $40,000 from the event's $1.2 million purse. This year's Q-School was held at PGA West Stadium Course and the Jack Nicklaus Tournament Course. Rashell had rounds of 68, 68, 70, 67, 74 and 69. Rashell lettered at Washington from 1996-1999, leading the team in stroke average as a junior. Rashell never won a tournament as a collegiate player but finished his career as UW's all-time leader with 18 top-10 finishes.

Washington National Golf Club

When Washington National Golf Course opened in August of 2000, it became the new home for the Husky Golf team. Thanks to a sponsorship agreement between Washington National and the University, the course features a distinctive Husky brand, from the golf carts, to flag sticks to its company logo.

Washington National was the brainchild of Orrin Vincent, president of O.B. Sports, a golf development and management company. Vincent is the father of former Husky men's golf coach O.D. Vincent. A Seattle native, he teamed with John Fought, the 1977 U.S. Amateur champion and the principal architect for the project, to create a truly unique Northwest course. No two holes are alike and, thanks to the terrain in the area and excellent drainage, the course features numerous native areas and large artistic sand traps.

Five sets of tees (Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, Senior and Husky) stretch the course from 5,711 yards to 7,304 yards.

The golf carts are a combination of purple and gold and named for notable personalities in Washington athletic history. Other carts are named for the other Pac-10 schools. University faculty and students are entitled to special discounted fees at Washington National.

The course was selected for the site of the 2002 NCAA Division I Women's Golf Championships and the 2003 NCAA Division I Men's Golf Regional. It will host the 2006 Women's West Regional.
