2003 SEASON PREVIEW

"Building it back up."

That has been the motto on Husky hearts ever since the books closed on the 2002 season, a year that was so uncharacteristic of Washington men's soccer tradition. Finishing with an overall record of 6-10-3, it was the first non-winning season since 1991 and the first losing season since 1968. And without a berth to the NCAA Tournament, the Huskies broke a string of seven consecutive postseason appearances.

It was a season 12-year head coach Dean Wurzberger would soon like to forget. But looking back, six of those 10 losses came by just one goal. And looking ahead, the Huskies return 13 letterwinners and eight starters eager to rewrite the tale of what was 2002.

"There is one clear goal and I think everyone on our team is aware of that," Wurzberger said. "We have a winning tradition and all our efforts have to be focused on restoring that, restoring the pride of playing for this university and bringing back notoriety to this school. I'm confident that we have every reason to expect a resurrection and a return to the success we've had in the past. If you look back to last season, as bad as the record was, we were in every game we played. We did have a couple exciting results that we can look back on and say, 'hey, the cupboard's not completely bare.' But until we get out and do it, we're only as good as last year. The 2003 season can't start a day too soon for me."

Among the bright spots from last season was a 2-1 overtime upset of eventual national champion UCLA in Westwood, as well as a 2-1 overtime upset of fifth-ranked Cal at home. Brett Wiesner, an All-Pac-10 second-team honoree, emerged as the Huskies' main scoring threat, leading the team with seven goals and 15 points, while C.J. Klaas anchored Washington's midfield and was an All-Pac-10 first-team pick and an NSCAA All-Far West Region selection. Danny Waltman led the Pac-10 with five saves per game and his 10-save performance versus Cal on Oct. 13, was the second-best outing by a Pac-10 goalie in 2002.

The Huskies return some veteran leadership, but for the second-straight year, Washington will be a young team. Sixty-five percent of the players are freshmen or sophomores, a group that also includes nine newcomers. But according to Wurzberger, his new players have definitely filled some much-needed gaps on the field.

"We really shored up the defense by recruiting depth in our back line," Wurzberger said. "Preventing the number of goals scored against us will be job one on the field. The first thing we do when we hit the field, we'll re-establish ourselves as a tenacious, organized, tough defensive team. And that's a front-to-back responsibility, not just the back line and the goalkeeper. When you look at the statistics, the number of goals we allowed last year was so far out of our normal defending record that it is an obvious place to start. I feel that the people we have recruited and the players who have transferred in are really going to be helpful in terms of solidifying our defense."

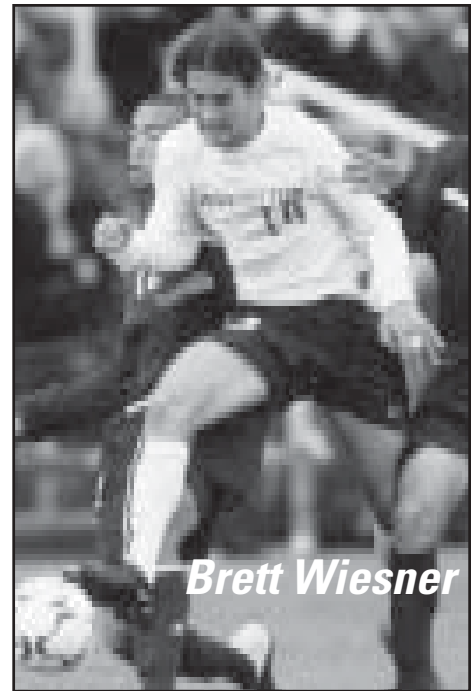

Not only will the Husky roster feature many new faces on the field, but the coaching staff will have a new look as well. Bill May, who spent the last three seasons as a volunteer coach, will taken on full-time duties as Washington's goalkeeper coach. Taking on the volunteer coaching duties will be Darren Sawatzky who currently plays for the Seattle Sounders. Seth Spidahl remains for his third year on staff.

"We're excited about the new coaches," Wurzberger said. "It's a year of change on the staff, but we will function well together."

GOALKEEPERS

Establishing that tenacious defense begins at the goalkeeping position. The Huskies have the luxury of two returning keepers in senior Danny Waltman and sophomore Chris Eylander. Both split the goaltending duties last season, and this year they will again duke it out for the starting position. Also returning from a redshirt year is junior Ben Oakley.

"With Danny Waltman returning as a senior goalkeeper, he will play an important role in getting us back to the NCAA Tournament, our immediate goal," Wurzberger said. "We're hopeful that Danny's last year will be his best with regards to his impact in goal. We think highly of Chris Eylander. He's a very bright goalkeeping prospect. He's a bit more experienced than he was last year, he's a better decision-maker and all the physical tools are still there. I'm confident that between those guys fighting for a starting position that we're going to get a good person in goal."

DEFENDERS

The Husky defense will feature some familiar faces, but many new faces as well. Sophomore Kevin Murray, last year's team Rookie of the Year, will most likely move to the middle of the defense rather than playing the right back position he played last season.

Also anchoring the center of defense will be junior Joe Birkliid, who now has the benefit of two years of experience. Birkliid may be used as a right back as well. Sophomore Kenny Mueller returns to the Husky defense, while University of Rhode Island transfer Hans Esterhuizen from Pasco, Wash., can also play central defense.

Although the most experienced of the group, senior Seth Marsh will be a new face on the back line after playing the majority of his career in the midfield. Wurzberger has Marsh slated for the left fullback position.

"We think Seth can help us best there and it's the position of his future beyond college," Wurzberger said.

Wurzberger is especially excited about the potential contributions of incoming freshmen Will Flanagan, Ty Harden and Matt Fischer.

"Will Flanagan looks to be ready to play right away and he will figure into the back," Wurzberger said. "Ty Harden certainly has all the tools, although I don't know how soon he will be ready. We're excited to have him in the back. Matt Fischer, who has all the tools in terms of size and athleticism, will be the back of the future for us."

MIDFIELDERS

Change will also be the key word pertaining to the Husky midfield. Not only has Marsh been moved back to defense, sophomore C.J. Klaas will move to more of an outside midfield position from his normal center mid spot.

"C.J. played as a center mid with our attack revolving around him, but we've come to realize that he will have the biggest positive impact for us in an attacking role, probably down the right wing," Wurzberger said. "He had a very good spring there and we are confident that we have enough strong players that can take over the central midfield work, freeing C.J. to get the ball on the attack more and be a threat for us down the wing."

A pair of returning sophomores will look to take on the role of central midfielder in Mike Chabala and Jeff Hoover. Both saw substantial playing time in the midfield last season and Wurzberger is confident that their talent will flourish that much more with a year of experience under their belts.

Also looking to help out in the central midfield will be incoming freshman Derek Crismier. Senior Troy Ready will be a strong left-sided midfielder player, while transfer Leo Totev and returning sophomore Gavin Hobbs will look to contribute. Totev, from Norway, brings international experience to UW, while Hobbs is coming off a stellar freshman campaign. Hobbs could also serve as a utility type player, seeing time at both right midfield and right fullback. Sophomore Mike Cusenza will also be looked upon to make an impact.

FORWARDS

Much of the scoring responsibility will lie upon the shoulders of junior Brett Wiesner and senior Sean Giudice, both returning from strong showings last year. Wiesner was the Huskies' leading scorer in 2002 with seven goals. Giudice also contributed three goals and seven points last season.

"We know that if we put Brett in enough positive situations in front of goal, he's going to score," Wurzberger said. "He's talented enough to get 10 or more goals. We certainly need a goal-scorer to emerge. He worked very hard in the spring and his early maturation years are coming as a junior and sometimes that's the breakthrough. It will be a big performance year for Sean. He has wonderful tools and if he can put it all together in regards to his focus and consistency, he could have a breakout year for us."

Also looking to contribute up front will be junior Casey Armstrong and junior transfer Jay Voss from Tacoma Community College. Wurzberger has incoming freshman Kevin Forrest labeled as the attacker of the future, while Totev could also be looked upon as a second forward.

SCHEDULE

As has become tradition, the Huskies have a schedule that will provide some fierce non-conference and Pac-10 competition. Seven of this year's opponents played in the NCAA Tournament last season, including defending NCAA champion UCLA and NCAA runner-up Stanford.

On the docket for preseason competition will be exhibition games at home with cross-town rivals Seattle University and Seattle Pacific. UW will open the season at the Portland Nike Invitational with contests against UNLV and Oakland University. After its home opener with perennial power Portland, Washington heads to the Midwest to face Michigan and host Marquette in the Marquette Invitational in Milwaukee, Wis.

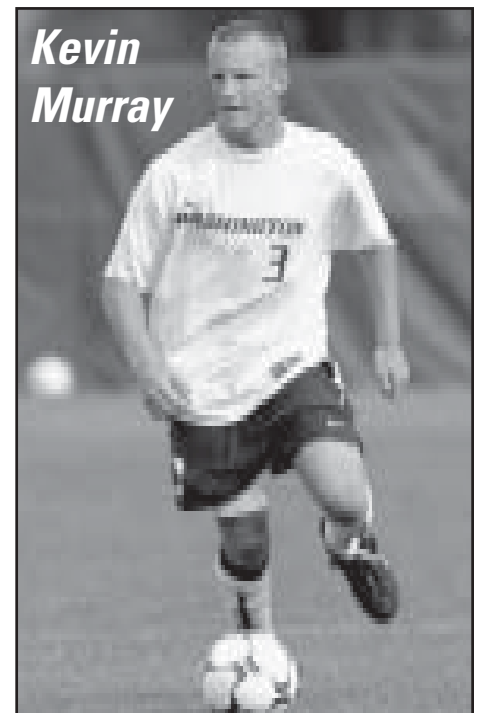

Washington's own Husky Classic will feature Kentucky, South Carolina and Portland. And like always, the Pac-10 schedule remains one of toughest in the nation, facing the likes of four NCAA Tournament teams from last year. The Huskies will also entertain Gonzaga at home in the middle of the conference season, marking the first time since 2000 that these cross-state rivals have faced each other.

"It is an excellent schedule," Wurzberger said. "Certainly one that will allow Seattle fans to see us play some quality teams here and then we'll of course have our challenges on the road. I like the tests that we'll have to face before we go into conference play. We'll play some excellent sides before then, which will hopefully prepare us for taking a run at the Pac-10 Championship."

"That sounds a bit far from the way we finished last year, but I wouldn't take that possibility off the list knowing what kind of team we can, potentially, put on the field. I am confident that we can make a better showing for ourselves than we did last year."

Husky coach Dean Wurzberger enters his 12th year at the helm of the Washington men's soccer program. His 2003 team is a young one, made up of 65 percent freshmen and sophomores, but he welcomes the opportunity to instill in it a core set of skills and values that translate to success on the soccer field. If Wurzberger's tenure at Washington is any indication of his ability to teach, the Huskies can expect another year in which they rank among the nation's best in collegiate soccer.

Wurzberger has spent the last decade building the Washington soccer program into one of the nation's finest, fielding teams that annually compete for conference and national championships. The Huskies have appeared in the NCAA Tournament in seven of the last eight years. UW was one of only seven schools in the country to make seven straight NCAA trips from 1995-2001. His 2000 team won the inaugural Pac-10 Conference championship, on the heels of two consecutive Mountain Pacific Sports Federation titles. His record in 11 seasons stands at a stellar 140-57-21 (.690). His consistency is amazing, as his teams average more than 12 wins a year against just more than five losses and two ties per season.

Wurzberger has developed players who are successful at the college level and beyond, both on the field and in the classroom. Currently, eight former Huskies are playing in the MLS, including two from the 2001 team. Recent graduate Bryn Ritchie was named 2001 NSCAA National Scholar-Athlete of the Year, while nine Huskies earned Pac-10 academic recognition in the last two seasons.

His list of accomplishments is impressive. His 2000 squad tore through the initial year of Pac-10 play, posting an undefeated record on the road, recording upsets at perennial powers Stanford and UCLA. In 1996 and 1998, he was named the NSCAA Far West Region Coach of the Year, and he was the MPSF Mountain Division Coach of the Year in 1996 and 1999. He also was MPSF Coach of the Year in 1998. His MPSF record of 43-6-6 (.836) was the best in the Mountain Division since its inception in 1992.

In the summer of 1998, Wurzberger was named the head coach of the boys Under-16 national team, and during the summer of 1997 he served as an assistant coach for the U.S. Soccer Under-18 national team.

The 2002 season was quite uncharacteristic of the Huskies' traditional success. UW finished fifth in the Pac-10 with a 3-7 conference record, while its 6-10-3 overall record marked the first non-winning season for the Huskies since 1991 and the first losing season for a UW team since 1968. Season highlights included 2-1 overtime upsets of eventual NCAA champion UCLA and fifth-ranked Cal. Sophomore C.J. Klaas was a first-team All-Pac-10 and NSCAA All-Far West Region selection.

In 2001, the Huskies finished the season with a record of 13-6-0 and earned a first round bye and the chance to host in the NCAA Tournament. The Huskies met Northwest neighbor Portland for the second time that season and suffered a 1-0 setback to end the year. Eight Huskies received Pac-10 recognition, highlighted by C.J. Klaas's selection as freshman of the year.

In 2000, Washington rebounded from an 0-2 start to win eight of its next nine games, including four shutouts. The Huskies took Alabama-Birmingham to four overtimes to win its NCAA first round game before meeting an old nemesis, Indiana, and were knocked out by the eventual Final Four participant. The team finished 14-6-0.

His 1999 squad finished with a 10-game winning streak before being knocked out of the NCAA second round by eventual national champion, Indiana. UW repeated as MPSF Champion after securing its second Mountain Division title with an undefeated mark. Wurzberger was named MPSF Mountain Division Coach of the Year as the squad finished at 15-5-2. He also passed Mike Ryan to become Washington's winningest coach ever.

In 1998 Husky soccer won its second MPSF title with an 8-1 mark. The 16 victories, against just four losses, was the most for a UW team since 1982, and the squad upped the school record for consecutive NCAA appearances to four. Eight players, along with Wurzberger, earned MPSF postseason honors.

The 1997 squad was the first in program history to advance to the NCAA tournament three straight years. The Huskies' overall mark of 15-3-2 was their second straight 15-win season. UW finished the season with a seven-game winning streak, snapped only by an NCAA second-round loss to eventual national champion, UCLA.

In 1996, Washington finished with a 15-3-1 record, the program's best in 13 years. The Huskies entered the 32-team NCAA Championship as the No. 1 seed, and during the season UW was ranked as high as No. 2 in the Soccer America poll. Both were program records. Wurzberger's 1995 team suffered defeat just once in the final 11 regular season games and outscored its opponents 48-24.

In 1992, his first year at UW, Wurzberger led the Huskies to their best season to that point, capped by an appearance and win in the NCAA tournament when Washington beat Portland for the school's first-ever NCAA playoff victory. UW finished the regular season with a 15-2-2 record, which earned it a final ISAA ranking of No. 1 in the West and No. 4 in the nation. That team also entered the record books as the first to win the prestigious MPSF championship. For his efforts, Wurzberger was named the MPSF Mountain Division and NSCAA Far West Region Coach of the Year.

Wurzberger, the Huskies' first-ever full-time head coach, came to Seattle after serving as an assistant coach at consistent national power Santa Clara. In his only season at SCU, the Broncos posted a 20-1-2 record, held the No. 1 ranking for much of the season, and finished the year losing in the NCAA championship match on penalty shots to Virginia.

Prior to his brief stint with Santa Clara, Wurzberger was head coach of the San Francisco Bay Blackhawks of the American Professional Soccer League. From 1989-90, with Wurzberger at the helm, the Blackhawks compiled the league's best record at 28-15, won the Northern Division both seasons, and won the Western Conference championship.

That year, five members of the Blackhawks made appearances on the United States World Cup team: Marcelo Balboa, Troy Dayak, John Doyle, Dominic Kinnear and Eric Wynalda. In fact, between his coaching at UCLA, for the Blackhawks and with the World University Games team, Wurzberger coached seven members of the USA '94 World Cup team: Balboa, Mike Burns, Paul Caligiuri, Cobi Jones, Mike Lapper, Claudio Reyna and Wynalda.

Before taking over the Blackhawks, Wurzberger was an assistant at UCLA from 1986-88. While there, he helped guide the Bruins to a 43-13-10 record and three straight NCAA tournament appearances. He went to Los Angeles from Sacramento State, where he directed the Hornets to an 8-8-5 record in 1985 in his coaching debut.

Wurzberger became the first American to receive the Scottish Football Association "A" license coaching certificate in 1987. In 1992, he was an assistant for the U.S. World University Games team, which competed in Buffalo, N.Y. He worked for the U.S. Soccer Federation at the USA '94 World Cup as a technical analyst and was the head coach of the 1995 U.S. Olympic Sports Festival West team. He also serves as a staff instructor for the U.S. Soccer Federation.

Wurzberger's playing career began at San Diego State, where he earned four letters from 1971 to 1974. He was a three-time all-conference player and the team's MVP and captain in 1974. He played three seasons (1975-77) with the Seattle Sounders of the NASL and for the California Sunshine of the American Soccer League from 1977 to 1979.

Wurzberger earned his bachelor's (1982) and master's degrees (1985) in physical education from Sacramento State. His wife, Leslie, is the assistant athletic director for marketing and promotions at the University of Washington athletic department. They are the parents of two daughters, Whitney and Avery.

HUSKY COACHING STAFF

BILL MAY

Goalkeeper Coach – Fourth Season

Bill May begins his fourth season as a member of the Huskies' coaching staff, but his first as a full-time assistant coach. May served the previous three years as UW's volunteer coach. A former Washington player, May will continue his duties as goalkeeping coach.

After red-shirting the 1993 season at the UW, May went on to earn four letters at Washington, starting 67 matches in four years as the Huskies' No. 1 keeper. May earned MPSF All-Mountain Division honorable mention as both a junior and a senior.

During his senior campaign, May was named to the All-Far West team and was also a second-team Academic All-American. His career goals-against average was a sparkling 0.90 and he recorded 233 saves and a total of 24 shutouts during his tenure in goal.
