2004 SEASON PREVIEW

How does a Husky men's soccer team rebound from one of its worst seasons in program history? Well, only by advancing farther in the NCAA Tournament than any previous Washington team.

That was the Huskies' answer in 2003. A trip to the NCAA Sweet 16 and only an overtime loss to Saint Louis kept them away from a spot in the Elite Eight. One might have trouble believing UW had won only six games the previous season.

Last year saw Washington restore the long tradition of success established in the program. What does 2004 hold in store? With 12 letterwinners returning, including NSCAA first-team All-American C.J. Klaas, the sky is the limit.

"Everyone knew what 2003 was going to be like," UW head coach Dean Wurzberger said. "It was going to be a commitment by everyone to build a program back up, to hit the high notes we were used to hitting in the past. We think that with a bulk of those players returning and what we think is a banner recruiting year, reaching new heights could very well be this year's theme. We have every confidence we can take it beyond where we did."

The Huskies will have lofty goals ahead. In 2003, Washington finished with an overall record of 13-5-2, 5-4-1 in the Pac-10, and opened the season with its best start since 1998 going 7-0-1. In fact Washington's first loss of the season did not come until Oct. 3, to No. 2 UCLA. Season highlights included a 3-0 shutout of No. 11 South Carolina and a 1-0 win over No. 16 Oregon State in the regular season finale to secure a first-round bye in the postseason.

UW made it to the third round of the NCAA Tournament for the first time in school history, but lost a 3-2 heartbreaker in overtime to No. 4 Saint Louis. Senior goalkeeper Danny Waltman had the year of his career and eight Huskies were named to the All-Pac-10 team. Klaas, a Hermann Award finalist, also became the first Husky ever to earn NSCAA first-team All-America honors.

To reach new heights in 2004, Wurzberger will rely on Klaas, along with seven other returning starters, to shoulder that load. Klaas, who will move to right fullback this year, is also one of four seniors who will take the reigns of team leadership, along with forward Casey Armstrong, defender Joe Birkliid and forward Brett Wiesner.

"The four senior leaders are going to be key, two at the back – Joe and C.J. – and two up front – Wiesner and Armstrong," Wurzberger said. "We're really pleased that they have shown the commitment you'd want from a senior class. They seem super energized and excited about their last year."

While senior leadership is in place, Washington will also have the challenge of integrating 10 newcomers into the program. All 10 boast quite impressive resumes and many have a shot at seeing some valuable minutes during their rookie campaigns.

"We're really excited about the incoming class," Wurzberger said. "Our goal was always to add to the attack. If we can prevent goals like we did last year and add to our forward line, we are going to be a force. But the freshmen need to blend, they need to learn very quickly how we operate. We've already implemented ideas to smooth out that transition."

Wurzberger has no problem relying on freshmen, as two players that shored up his defense in 2003 were rookies Ty Harden and Will Flanagan. Last year, Kevin Forrest also offered offensive firepower up front, scoring three goals. This year, three freshman strikers – Ely Allen, Brett Hite and Spencer Schmidt – could have an immediate impact on the offense – helping the Huskies replace graduated senior and leading scorer Troy Ready.

"I think we've got all the ingredients to have a special year, maybe the best ever," Wurzberger said. "At the end of the day, good players will play well and as a staff we have a very good feeling that we have the pulse beat of this team. It's just like last year, we can't wait for August to come so we can get on the field and get after our first opponent."

GOALKEEPERS

One might think that replacing an All-Pac-10 goalkeeper, who ended his career among the top in Washington history, would be a tall task. Danny Waltman graduated with big shoes for his predecessor to fill.

But junior Chris Eylander, who has watched Waltman and waited in the wings for two years is ready to take on a starting role. And according to Wurzberger, Eylander might have even more talent than this mentor.

"Danny had a good season last year, but we have every confidence that Chris will have exactly the same," Wurzberger said.

"Chris is probably more overall talented than Danny because of his size and athleticism. And if he can have the type of year Danny did – we expect that or even higher – Chris could be a huge step-in for us, not losing a beat there at all."

Leo Totev

Eylander isn't a complete stranger to a starting role, as he started eight games as a freshman, recording one shutout.

Last year, he played in two games and started just one.

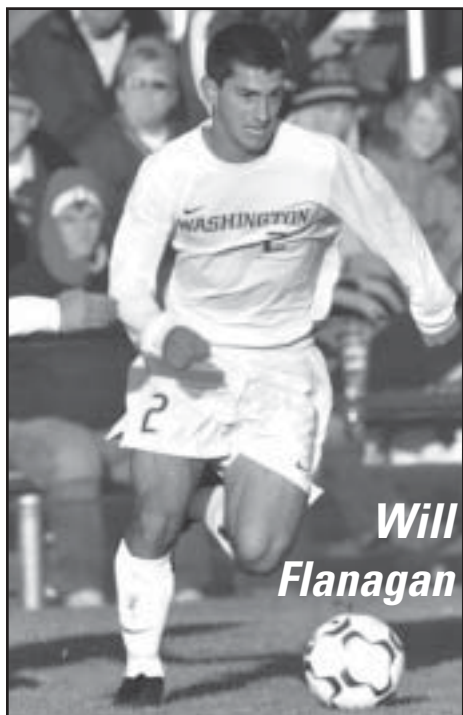

The Huskies will have two incoming freshmen goalies to back up Eylander in Jordan Jennings and Cameron Cops-Tilley. "Right now, Chris looks so strong and they look like they're going to need a year of training. Obviously someone is going to have to back up Chris and be ready to go in should we need him so it's going to be an interesting competition for that second spot," Wurzberger said.

DEFENDERS

One of the Huskies' keys last year was to cut down the number of goals scored against them. UW shored up the backline and the end result was allowing just 18 goals, second in the Pac-10. Despite losing Kevin Murray who transferred to Pacific Lutheran University, the Huskies return their main defenders and add Klaas, one of the best collegiate players in the nation who has been a mainstay of the Husky midfield.

"We've made a big decision to play C.J. there," Wurzberger said. "That's where we think C.J.'s future is at the next level and after it's all said and done, we think he can have a huge impact there for us next fall. He should be the premier outside back in America in Division I soccer, in any level soccer. And if you're playing in an attacking way and you use your fullbacks to attack, he'll be involved in the offensive play."

Occupying the centerback spots will be sophomores Ty Harden and Will Flanagan, who as freshmen, started all 20 games in the backline last year. Wurzberger feels Flanagan's best position is right back where he played last season, but will move to the center to make room for Klaas. Harden occupied the centerback position during his rookie campaign and earned second-team All-Pac-10 honors.

Will

Birkliid and juniors Gavin Hobbs and Jeff Hoover will also lend their experience to a talented defensive corps. Sophomore Matt Fischer, who played in just one game last year but had a strong spring, could contribute this coming season.

Incoming freshmen who could battle for time in the backline are Adam West, Keith Cain and Kyle Schmid.

Wurzberger also describes redshirt-freshman Derek Crismier, who tore his ACL last season, as an "ace up his sleeve" either in the backline or in midfield. "Derek hasn't played for us yet and he was so highly touted coming out of high school – the Gatorade Player of the Year – we have high expectations that he'll have a big impact."

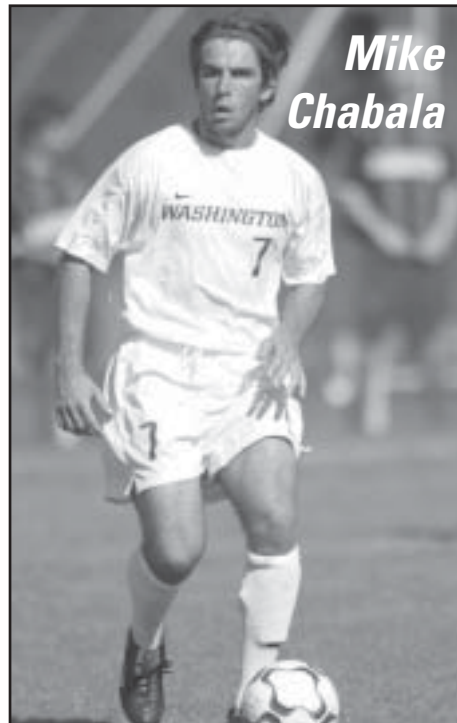

MIDFIELDERS

Wurzberger would not have felt confident enough to move All-American Klaas to the backline if he didn't have a solid group of midfielders returning. One of those key players is junior Mike Chabala.

Chabala, an All-Pac-10 honorable mention selection in 2003, remains the holding central midfield player for the Huskies. Chabala, who had two assists last year, joined Flanagan and Harden as the only players to start all 20 games last season.

Junior Leo Totev, who was a pleasant surprise for the Huskies last season scoring five goals in the month of September, will also be a huge impact player at midfield. Totev ended his debut year at Washington second on the team in goals (5) and points (13).

Other returning veterans include juniors Evan Cummings and Mike Cusenza. Hoover can also play in the midfield. Washington's depth at midfield will also be aided by freshmen Eric Blythe and Nick Loveless. Crismier is a potential midfield player as well.

FORWARDS

Depth is the key word at the forward position for Washington. Like at the goalkeeping position, Wurzberger is not worried about losing forwards Troy Ready and Sean Giudice to graduation. In fact, he says his strikeforce is even stronger than last year.

"A lot of coaches will say you live and die by your strikers, they have to get you goals," Wurzberger said. "Maybe last year our hands were tied a bit with only a couple options. Well, we have added many more options so if someone is off their game, we will have another player who can step in and pick up the slack. We would also expect three freshmen to have a chance to see major minutes."

Washington's three main returners are Armstrong, Forrest and Wiesner, while the highly touted freshmen trio of Allen, Hite and Schmidt will breathe new life into the offense.

Armstrong scored four goals and added three assists last year, and was also a Pac-10 Player of the Week award winner. Wiesner, a two-time All-Pac-10 selection, played in just 13 games after being sidelined for the first month of the season due to a strained hamstring. Despite the injury, Wiesner scored two goals and added four assists. Forrest made an impressive debut in the frontline, aiding the Husky attack with three goals and one assist.

Wurzberger is just as excited about the three freshmen, two being high school NSCAA All-Americans, who will be added up front. Allen, Hite and Schmidt all come to Washington as highly decorated forwards.

SCHEDULE

The Huskies certainly will not have it easy when they take the field starting Sept. 1. Meeting them on the pitch will be many of the nation's top teams, both home and away.

Like they learned last season, a strong start to the season is crucial for a strong ending. Undeclared through September in 2003, the Huskies will have their work cut out for them to repeat that feat.

After its season opener with intrastate rival Gonzaga on Sept. 1, Washington will travel to the East Coast to face UConn in Storrs, Conn., and last year's NCAA runner-up St. John's on its home pitch in Jamaica, N.Y.

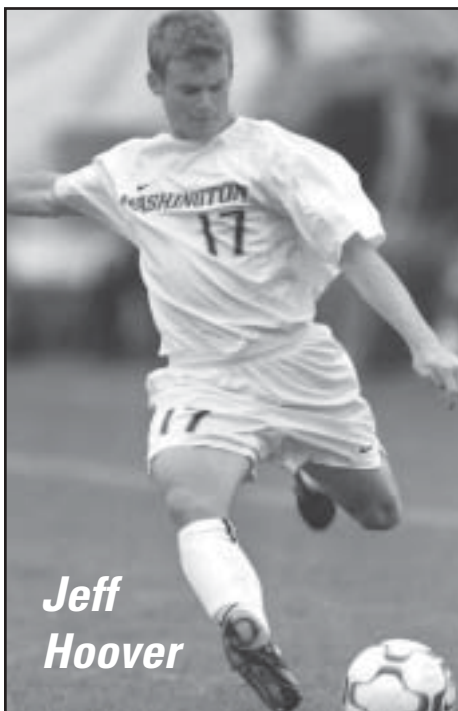

Then it's down to Las Vegas, as the Huskies will take on Creighton and UNLV in the UNLV FILA Invitational. Rounding out Washington's six-game season opening road trip will be a mid-week match at Northwest rival Portland, which happens to be the first men's soccer night home game in Pilots' history.

By Sept. 17, Washington will welcome the sight of Husky soccer field. The Huskies will then host back-to-back tournaments, making their home debut versus Saint Mary's in the opening round of the Husky Invitational.

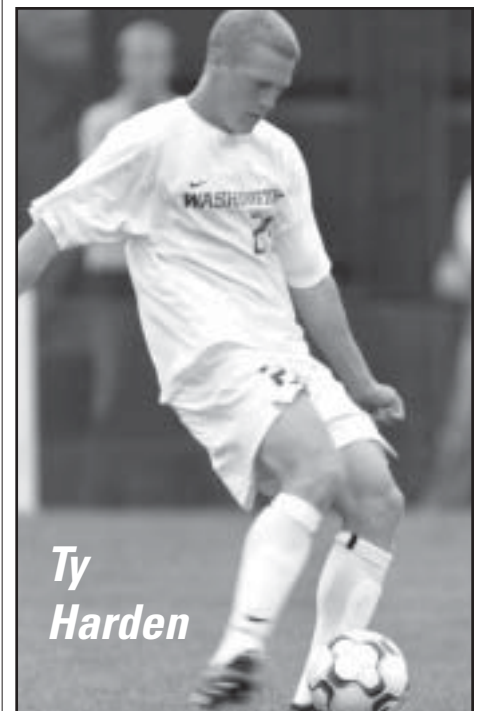

Like always, the Pac-10 will promise some exciting and challenging soccer for Washington. UCLA, returning Pac-10 champion, looks to be another top opponent, while Cal figures to finish up at the top as well, according to Wurzberger. But don't count the Huskies out either.

"Washington is going to be voted at the top-half of the conference, maybe the top-two," Wurzberger said. "So at the end of the day we will be making a serious run at the title. Putting us in a position to win our second ever Pac-10 title is certainly within our grasp – with the way we finished last season and with what we've added."

With the way the Huskies played last year and with the combination of established veterans and highly touted newcomers comprising the 2004 team, it is easy to believe that anything is within their grasp – like reaching new heights.

Husky coach Dean Wurzberger enters his 13th year at the helm of the Washington men's soccer program. Wurzberger has spent over a decade building the Husky program into one of the nation's finest, fielding teams that annually compete for conference and national championships.

Coming off a school-record trip to the NCAA Sweet 16, 2004 promises to be a season in which the Huskies continue to reach new heights. If Wurzberger's tenure at Washington is any indication of his ability to teach, the Huskies can expect another year in which they rank among the nation's best in collegiate soccer.

The Huskies have appeared in the NCAA Tournament in eight of the last nine years. UW was one of only seven schools in the country to make seven straight NCAA trips from 1995-2001. His 2000 team won the inaugural Pac-10 Conference championship, on the heels of two consecutive Mountain Pacific Sports Federation titles. His record in 12 seasons stands at a stellar 153-62-23 (.702). His consistency is amazing, as his teams average more than 12 wins a year against just more than five losses and two ties per season.

Wurzberger has developed players who are successful at the college level and beyond, both on the field and in the classroom. Currently, six former Huskies are playing in the MLS, including two from the 2001 team. Recent graduate Bryn Ritchie was named 2001 NSCAA National Scholar-Athlete of the Year, while 15 Huskies earned Pac-10 academic recognition in the last three seasons.

His list of accomplishments is impressive. His 2000 squad tore through the initial year of Pac-10 play, posting an undefeated record on the road, recording upsets at perennial powers Stanford and UCLA. In 1996 and 1998, he was named the NSCAA Far West Region Coach of the Year, and he was the MPSF Mountain Division Coach of the Year in 1996 and 1999. He also was MPSF Coach of the Year in 1998. His MPSF record of 43-6-6 (.836) was the best in the Mountain Division since its inception in 1992.

In the summer of 1998, Wurzberger was named the head coach of the boys Under-16 national team, and during the summer of 1997 he served as an assistant coach for the U.S. Soccer Under-18 national team.

In 2003, the Huskies used a sub-par showing the previous year as motivation, jumping out to a 7-0-1 start. Also ending on a strong note, UW tied for third in the Pac-10 and earned an NCAA first-round bye. Washington secured its first-ever NCAA second round win over Portland at home before falling to No. 4 Saint Louis on the road in the Sweet 16. The year's highlights included eight All-Pac-10 selections and junior C.J. Klaas' NSCAA first-team All-American nod, the first Husky to ever earn that recognition.

The 2002 season was quite uncharacteristic of the Huskies' traditional success. UW finished fifth in the Pac-10 with a 3-7 conference record, while its 6-10-3 overall record marked the first non-winning season for the Huskies since 1991. Sophomore C.J. Klaas was a first-team All-Pac-10 and NSCAA All-Far West Region selection.

In 2001, the Huskies finished the season with a record of 13-6-0 and earned a first round bye and the chance to host in the NCAA Tournament. The Huskies met Northwest neighbor Portland for the second time that season and suffered a 1-0 setback to end the year. Eight Huskies received Pac-10 recognition, highlighted by C.J. Klaas's selection as freshman of the year.

In 2000, Washington rebounded from an 0-2 start to win eight of its next nine games, including four shutouts. The Huskies took Alabama-Birmingham to four overtimes to win its NCAA first round game before meeting an old nemesis, Indiana, and were knocked out by the eventual Final Four participant. The team finished 14-6-0.

His 1999 squad finished with a 10-game winning streak before being knocked out of the NCAA second round by eventual national champion, Indiana. UW repeated as MPSF Champion after securing its second Mountain Division title with an undefeated mark. Wurzberger was named MPSF Mountain Division Coach of the Year as the squad finished at 15-5-2. He also passed Mike Ryan to become Washington's winningest coach ever.

In 1998 Husky soccer won its second MPSF title with an 8-1 mark. The 16 victories, against just four losses, was the most for a UW team since 1982, and the squad upped the school record for consecutive NCAA appearances to four. Eight players, along with Wurzberger, earned MPSF postseason honors.

The 1997 squad was the first in program history to advance to the NCAA tournament three straight years. The Huskies' overall mark of 15-3-2 was their second straight 15-win season. UW finished the season with a seven-game winning streak, snapped only by an NCAA second-round loss to eventual national champion, UCLA.

In 1996, Washington finished with a 15-3-1 record, the program's best in 13 years. The Huskies entered the 32-team NCAA Championship as the No. 1 seed, and during the season UW was ranked as high as No.

2 in the Soccer America poll. Both were program records. Wurzberger's 1995 team suffered defeat just once in the final 11 regular season games and outscored its opponents 48-24.

In 1992, his first year at UW, Wurzberger led the Huskies to their best season to that point, capped by an appearance and win in the NCAA tournament when Washington beat Portland for the school's first-ever NCAA playoff victory. UW finished the regular season with a 15-2-2 record, which earned it a final ISAA ranking of No. 1 in the West and No. 4 in the nation. That team also entered the record books as the first to win the prestigious MPSF championship. For his efforts, Wurzberger was named the MPSF Mountain Division and NSCAA Far West Region Coach of the Year.

Wurzberger, the Huskies' first-ever full-time head coach, came to Seattle after serving as an assistant coach at consistent national power Santa Clara. In his only season at SCU, the Broncos posted a 20-1-2 record, held the No. 1 ranking for much of the season, and finished the year losing in the NCAA championship match on penalty shots to Virginia.

Prior to his brief stint with Santa Clara, Wurzberger was head coach of the San Francisco Bay Blackhawks of the American Professional Soccer League. From 1989-90, with Wurzberger at the helm, the Blackhawks compiled the league's best record at 28-15, won the Northern Division both seasons, and won the Western Conference championship.

That year, five members of the Blackhawks made appearances on the United States World Cup team: Marcelo Balboa, Troy Dayak, John Doyle, Dominic Kinnear and Eric Wynalda. In fact, between his coaching at UCLA, for the Blackhawks and with the World University Games team, Wurzberger coached seven members of the USA '94 World Cup team: Balboa, Mike Burns, Paul Caligiuri, Cobi Jones, Mike Lapper, Claudio Reyna and Wynalda.

Before taking over the Blackhawks, Wurzberger was an assistant at UCLA from 1986-88. While there, he helped guide the Bruins to a 43-13-10 record and three straight NCAA tournament appearances. He went to Los Angeles from Sacramento State, where he directed the Hornets to an 8-8-5 record in 1985 in his coaching debut.

Wurzberger became the first American to receive the Scottish Football Association "A" license coaching certificate in 1987. In 1992, he was an assistant for the U.S. World University Games team, which competed in Buffalo, N.Y. He worked for the U.S. Soccer Federation at the USA '94 World Cup as a technical analyst and was the head coach of the 1995 U.S. Olympic Sports Festival West team. He also serves as a staff instructor for the U.S. Soccer Federation.

Wurzberger's playing career began at San Diego State, where he earned four letters from 1971 to 1974. He was a three-time all-conference player and the team's MVP and captain in 1974. He played three seasons (1975-77) with the Seattle Sounders of the NASL and for the California Sunshine of the American Soccer League from 1977 to 1979.

Wurzberger earned his bachelor's (1982) and master's degrees (1985) in physical education from Sacramento State. His wife, Leslie, is the assistant athletic director for marketing and promotions at the University of Washington athletic department. They are the parents of two daughters, Whitney and Avery.

HUSKY COACHING STAFF

SETH SPIDAHL

Assistant Coach – Fourth Season

Former professional soccer player Seth Spidahl enters his fourth year on the Husky soccer staff. Along with his on-field duties, he has been instrumental in the Huskies' nationwide recruiting efforts.

A native of Anchorage, Alaska, Spidahl spent three years playing professional soccer for the Seattle SeaDogs, during which his team won the 1997 Continental Indoor Soccer League Championship. He was a four-year letterwinner as a defender at Pacific Lutheran University and as a sophomore helped guide the Lutes to the NAIA national finals and a 14-6-2 record.

Spidahl, 31, has been active in Seattle-area soccer at every level and most recently as the coaching director for F.C. United, a boys premier club team in Tacoma. He spent six years coaching within the F.C. United club ranks before being named director three years ago. During his tenure as coach, Spidahl guided his under-18 team, a club that featured former Husky defender Zac Tallman, to the 1999 national championship.

He was an assistant coach at the University of Puget Sound for the 1999 and 2000 seasons and helped guide the Loggers to an overall record of 32-7-3. Prior to that, he spent one season as an assistant and two as head men's soccer coach at Tacoma Community College. His TCC teams had an overall record of 26-10-7, won two division championships and finished as runners-up in the 1998 state tournament.

Spidahl is currently the head U-16 WSYSYA boy's ODP coach and is also a Region IV Boy's staff coach.

Spidahl graduated magna cum laude from PLU in 1996. A science major with a 3.85 grade point average, he was a two-time NAIA Academic All-American and was named PLU Scholar-Athlete of the Year as a senior. He resides in Federal Way.

DARREN SAWATZKY

Volunteer Coach – Second Season

Darren Sawatzky begins his second year as a volunteer coach on the Huskies' staff.

A former MLS player and currently a member of the Seattle Sounders, Sawatzky was a four-year letterwinner for the University of Portland from 1991-94. During his tenure there, he was a member of three NCAA Tournament teams and the 1992 West Coast Conference Championship team. Sawatzky was also an All-WCC selection, as well as a WCC Scholar Athlete. He was voted the team's Most Inspirational Player during his senior season.

After graduating from Portland in 1994 with a bachelor of science in organizational communication, Sawatzky played stints in the MLS with the New England Revolution (1996-97), the Dallas Burn (1998) and the Colorado Rapids (1999). He has also played professionally for the Oregon Surge (USISL), Leicester City (England), Hershey Wildcats (A-League), the Portland Timbers (A-League) and the Seattle Sounders (A-League). Sawatzky was also in player pools for both the Olympic and National team during his career.

Prior to coming to Washington, Sawatzky served as the Director of Training for the Highline Heat Soccer Club and was the boy's head soccer coach at Thomas Jefferson High School.

Sawatzky and his wife, Kelly, have a daughter, Kylie (5) and a son, Skyler (2).

MATTHEW OLSON

Assistant Coach – First Season

Matthew Olson, a former collegiate and professional goalkeeper, returns to Washington as an assistant coach after serving on Wurzberger's staff from 1992-96. Olson will mentor the Husky goalkeepers.

During his previous coaching stint at Washington, Olson mentored All-American goalkeeper Dusty Hudock, who finished the 1992 season with the nation's best goals against average (0.50). Olson left the UW program in 1996 to pursue his own playing career and was drafted by Major League Soccer's New York/New Jersey Metro Stars.

He eventually ended up playing for D.C. United, a team that won the inaugural MLS Cup Championship over the Los Angeles Galaxy.

Olson's addition coaching credits include a six-year stint as the head girls' coach at Skyline High School in Issaquah (1998-2004). Olson was named KingCo Coach of the Year in 2000. He has worked as a staff coach for the Washington state ODP team for several years and has been a staff coach with the Region VI squad.

In addition to his previous stint at Washington, Olson's previous collegiate coaching experience also includes a one-year appointment at his alma mater, Wake Forest, in 1997.

Olson played collegiate soccer at both Indiana and Wake Forest. He helped lead Indiana to the 1988 NCAA title and was a member of Wake Forest's 1991 ACC champion team. Olson graduated from Wake Forest in 1991 with a bachelor of arts degree in speech communications.
