The Washington men's soccer team has a bit of unfinished business to take care of in 2005. Despite a hot start, that included eight shutouts in their first 13 matches, the Huskies finished last season with an uncharacteristic four consecutive losses. For a team that boasted a NSCAA first-team All-American, two All-Region selections, the Pac-10's Co-Player of the Year, Co-Coach of the Year and Freshman of the Year, it was a disappointment to say the least.

But for the Huskies, it's a lesson already learned. After a highly productive spring season that included finishing with four straight wins, head coach Dean Wurzberger is confident that his squad, comprised of an experienced corps of returners and an outstanding recruiting class, will have what it takes to start and finish strong.

"All you can do is go out there and correct your errors," Wurzberger said. "We played very well winning our last four spring games which I was very proud of given that we lost our last four from fall. We put that disappointing and unexpected finish to rest. It's behind us. What we can learn is you've got to remember how to keep doing what you're doing. So saving a burst for the end of the season would be the lesson learned."

Glancing at the 2005 roster, what looks to be UW's biggest loss might actually be a blessing in disguise. For the first time in four years, UW will be without the services of its two-time first-team All-American C.J. Klaas who led the squad both on and off the field. Arguably one of the most decorated athletes to graduate from the program, the midfield play of Klaas will certainly be missed.

But Wurzberger sees this as an opportunity for the Huskies to rely more on complete team play which he believes will fit this group even better.

"If there is one thing I'd say is this year's theme it's that the 'Team' is going to be the star," Wurzberger said. "That's going to be our calling card, the team will be the star as a result of everyone making their contribution. If we did have a star player in C.J., he's gone now. We have to accept the fact that everyone has to do their part for the team and in many respects that may be a more successful formula. I'm confident that we'll be very good this year."

Looking to contribute to the total team effort immediately will be four returning All-Pac-10 players in senior goalkeeper Chris Eylander (first-team), junior forward Kevin Forrest (first-team), senior midfielder Mike Chabala (second-team) and junior defender Ty Harden (second-team). Harden was also a third-team All-Region selection and is a team captain, along with Chabala.

As evidenced by looking at those four returners alone, Washington's strengths this year will be balance and depth. Although the team is still considered young with just over 60 percent of the players coming in as freshmen and sophomores, the Huskies are talented across the board.

Washington returns its starting goalkeeper in Eylander (one of the best in the conference last year), a young but emerging group of forwards including 2004 Pac-10 Freshman of the Year Ely Allen, and three of four returning starters in both the midfield and the backline.

Junior Defender

"I'm very excited about what we have," Wurzberger said. "I think we'll be right there running for the Pac-10 title and with any luck, a longer run in postseason. That's the one continuing goal that we haven't achieved, getting to the Final Four. I have every reason to believe this team can do it."

GOALKEEPERS

Washington benefited from the breakout year of Chris Eylander in goal last season. Eylander, who had waited in the wings for two years, etched his name in the Husky record books as a junior when opportunity came knocking.

He became just the second player in the history of the program to record at least 10 shutouts in a season and ranks third on the single-season list behind Mark Schuur who tallied 14 and 11 in 1982 and 1981, respectively. His 79 saves in 2005 rank sixth on UW's season list and he enters his senior campaign ranked sixth on the UW career list for shutouts (11).

For good measure, Eylander led the conference in saves (79), saves per game (3.95) and shutouts (10) last year. The first-team All-Pac-10 player will certainly look to make the most of his final season with the Huskies.

"A senior goalkeeper with that kind of recognition should be a force," Wurzberger said.

Backing up Eylander will be redshirt freshmen Cameron Copps-Tilley and Jordan Jennings, along with true freshman Rylan Hawkins.

Wurzberger has plans to redshirt Hawkins, who may be Eylander's heir apparent. "I think Rylan's going to be a good one. He has the potential to be the next great goalkeeper out of the state of Washington" he said.

DEFENDERS

Harden, an All-Region and All-Pac-10 centerback who has started every game of his career, will continue to lead the UW defense just as he has done as an underclassman.

"No question Ty is our top defender and one of the best centerbacks on the West Coast," Wurzberger said. "He continues to be 'Mr. Consistent,' playing well in the fall and the spring. He's at the top of our charts at the end of every season with regards to player ranking. If we get the defense right we could have the most dominating backline along with UCLA."

Joining Harden on defense will be the other two returning starters in juniors Will Flanagan and Matt Fischer. Flanagan, another model of consistency for the Huskies who also got into the offensive act adding three assists, earned All-Pac-10 honorable mention acclaim last year. Fischer broke into the starting lineup in mid-September and never left, further solidifying the UW defense.

The Huskies lost just one member of their 2004 backline in graduated senior Joe Birkliid. The left back position that Birkliid shared with sophomores Adam West and Derek Crismier last season remains the only true question mark for Wurzberger.

"If I'm picking out of spring it would probably be Derek Crismier getting the nod based on experience," he said. "He's such a good utility player, he can play anywhere."

In addition to West, sophomore Nick Loveless and freshmen Kevin Barry and Taylor Cochran could see time in the back. Cochran comes to Washington as a forward, but Wurzberger sees him more of a defender at the collegiate level.

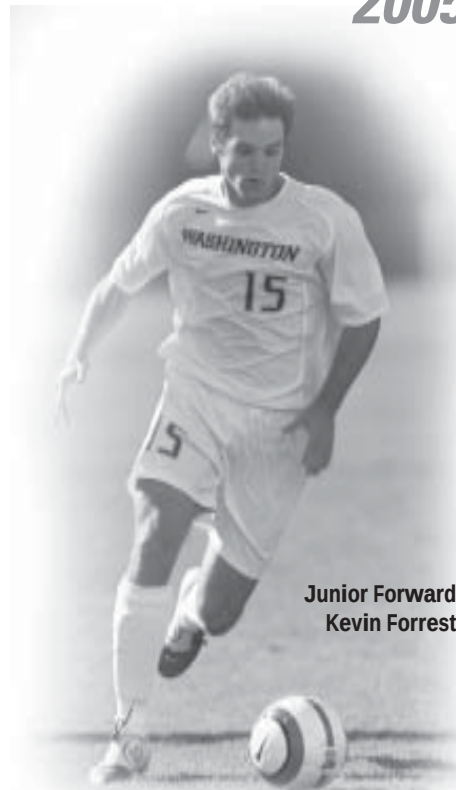

MIDFIELDERS

Despite losing Klaas, the midfield is likely the deepest and most experienced area for Washington led by four seniors: Chabala, Evan Cummings, Jeff Hoover and Leo Totev. Youth will also play a factor, as two of UW's top recruits - Jo Jo Katz and George John - could also make an immediate impact.

Although the play of the freshmen on the collegiate level is still unknown, Wurzberger knows what he's getting in his returning veterans. A two-year team captain, Chabala will once again be the anchor of the midfield in this his final year.

"Chabala is the heart and soul of the team," Wurzberger said. "He's the leader recognized by his teammates. He carries out the coaches' plan as much as he possibly can. He just helps you win. He's a very good holding midfield player, he does his job for us both to win the ball and keep possession to set up our attacks. He can assist people, he can score the odd goal. He is just everything you want from a center mid."

Cummings and Hoover, who rotated at outside mid, as well as Totev all look to make the most of their senior campaigns. Totev finished last year sixth on the team in points with two goals and one assist, while Cummings and Hoover each added one goal apiece. Senior Mike Cusenza could also see playing time as a midfielder. Sophomore transfer from Portland, Bobak Talebi, is another player who could see playing time.

Junior Forward
Kevin Forrest

FORWARDS

Perhaps the biggest surprise for Wurzberger last season was the emergence of Forrest as the team's top goal scorer. Forrest, a first-team All-Pac-10 performer, led the squad with nine goals and 20 points.

"Kevin is one of the bravest if not the bravest player we have," Wurzberger said. "When the ball goes in the box, he goes on the end of it. He doesn't fear for personal body harm. He gets in there, he runs across people. He's bold in his attacking runs and his movement. He's explosive. He had all the tools but we were surprised that he ended up leading the team in goals. And we're delighted he still has two more years."

Washington lost a pair of seniors from last year in Casey Armstrong and Brett Wiesner, but with Forrest and sophomores Allen and Spencer Schmidt, UW still returns a considerable amount of offensive power.

Allen has the versatility to play wide left as a midfielder, but the coaching staff would like to see him play down the middle where he can get to goal.

"We need him to be more goal dangerous and in more scoring situations," Wurzberger said. "And maybe pairing him with Forrest, those are two very talented, dynamic, mobile front runners who could cause any defense problems."

Schmidt saw some playing time as a freshman and emerged to lead the team in goals during the spring. Also sitting in reserve is sophomore Brett Hite who scored a pair of goals playing in 14 matches last season. Incoming freshman Mike DeSimone is another player who can contribute to the offense.

"We're young up front but we've got many quality attacking players that hopefully can score for us," Wurzberger said. "I like our depth, I like our quality at all positions."

SCHEDULE

Once again, the Huskies will meet a formidable schedule of opponents when they take to the pitch beginning September 2. Washington will play its first five games on the road, including tournaments in Portland, Ore., and Denver, Colo.

In Portland, Washington will counter Creighton and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo (Sept. 2 and 4), while in Denver UW will face the host Pioneers and Air Force (Sept. 16 and 18).

In between tournaments, UW will travel to Northern California for a contest with St. Mary's in Moraga, Sunday, Sept. 11.

The Huskies' make their home debut hosting the Husky Fever Classic Sept. 23 and Sept. 25. In the home opener Friday, Washington will face Wisconsin and then on Sunday will play Hartwick. Portland rounds out the four-team field, taking on Hartwick on Friday and Wisconsin on Sunday.

UW makes its Pac-10 debut on the road at Oregon State, Sunday, Oct. 2, and hosts conference matches with UCLA (Oct. 7), San Diego State (Oct. 9), California (Oct. 21), Stanford (Oct. 23) and Oregon State (Nov. 13).

San Diego State is a new addition to the Pac-10 this season, providing a travel partner for UCLA and giving UW one more home conference match.

The Huskies will take a break from conference play the first weekend of November, hosting Portland Friday, Nov. 4, before playing at Gonzaga, Sunday, Nov. 6.

"Our schedule certainly is one that will provide us with enough high-ranked opponents to make sure our RPI is up to par," Wurzberger said. "It's going to be a great year. We can't wait to get started."

Husky coach Dean Wurzberger enters his 14th year at the helm of the Washington men's soccer program. The 2004 Pac-10 Co-Coach of the Year and the all-time winningest coach in program history, Wurzberger has spent over a decade building the Husky program into one of the nation's finest, fielding teams that annually compete for conference and national championships.

Under Wurzberger's tutelage, the Huskies are coming off back-to-back NCAA Tournament appearances including a school-record Sweet 16 trip in 2003. If Wurzberger's tenure at Washington is any indication of his ability to teach, the Huskies can expect another year in which they rank among the nation's best in collegiate soccer.

The Huskies have appeared in the NCAA Tournament nine times in the last 10 years. UW was one of only seven schools in the country to make seven straight NCAA trips from 1995-2001. His 2000 team won the inaugural Pac-10 Conference championship, on the heels of two consecutive Mountain Pacific Sports Federation titles. His record in 13 seasons stands at a stellar 164-69-25 (.684). His consistency is amazing, as his teams average more than 12 wins a year against just more than five losses and two ties per season.

Wurzberger has developed players who are successful at the college level and beyond, both on the field and in the classroom. Currently, five former Huskies are playing in the MLS, including two from the 2001 team. Recent graduate Bryn Ritchie was named 2001 NSCAA National Scholar-Athlete of the Year, while 16 Huskies earned Pac-10 academic recognition in the last five seasons.

His list of accomplishments is impressive. In 2004, Wurzberger - the longest tenured Pac-10 head coach - was named Co-Pac-10 Coach of the Year for guiding UW to a second-place tie in the conference standings. His 2000 squad tore through the initial season of Pac-10 play, posting an undefeated record on the road, recording upsets at perennial powers Stanford and UCLA. In 1996 and 1998, he was named the NSCAA Far West Region Coach of the Year, and he was the MPSF Mountain Division Coach of the Year in 1996 and 1999. He also was MPSF Coach of the Year in 1998. His MPSF record of 43-6-6 (.836) was the best in the Mountain Division since its inception in 1992.

Despite a NCAA first round loss to Portland at home, the 2004 season saw UW continue to attain success. C.J. Klaas, the 2004 Pac-10 Co-Player of the Year, became UW's first-ever two-time NSCAA first-team All-American and the first player in Pac-10 history to earn four straight nods to the All-Conference team. Klaas was also selected by the San Jose Earthquakes in the 2005 MLS Draft. Including Klaas, five Huskies were named to the All-Pac-10 first and second teams - four of which were sophomores or juniors. Freshman phenom Ely Allen earned Pac-10 Freshman of the Year acclaim as well. Junior goalkeeper Chris Eylander and sophomore forward Kevin Forrest were two of the only three players in the conference to earn first-team honors on both the All-Pac-10 team and the Pac-10 All-Academic team. Eylander was selected as third-team member of the Academic All-America team.

In 2003, the Huskies used a sub-par showing the previous year as motivation, jumping out to a 7-0-1 start. Also ending on a strong note, UW tied for third in the Pac-10 and earned an NCAA first-round bye.

Washington secured its first-ever NCAA second round win over Portland at home before falling to No. 4 Saint Louis on the road in the Sweet 16. The year's highlights included eight All-Pac-10 selections and junior C.J. Klaas' NSCAA first-team All-American nod, the first Husky to ever earn that recognition.

The 2002 season was quite uncharacteristic of the Huskies' traditional success. UW finished fifth in the Pac-10 with a 3-7 conference record, while its 6-10-3 overall record marked the first non-winning season for the Huskies since 1991. Sophomore C.J. Klaas was a first-team All-Pac-10 and NSCAA All-Far West Region selection.

In 2001, the Huskies finished the season with a record of 13-6-0 and earned a first round bye and the chance to host in the NCAA Tournament. The Huskies met Northwest neighbor Portland for the second time that season and suffered a 1-0 setback to end the year. Eight Huskies received Pac-10 recognition, highlighted by C.J. Klaas's selection as freshman of the year.

In 2000, Washington rebounded from an 0-2 start to win eight of its next nine games, including four shutouts. The Huskies took Alabama-Birmingham to four overtimes to win its NCAA first round game before meeting an old nemesis, Indiana, and were knocked out by the eventual Final Four participant. The team finished 14-6-0.

His 1999 squad finished with a 10-game winning streak before being knocked out of the NCAA second round by eventual national champion, Indiana. UW repeated as MPSF Champion after securing its second Mountain Division title with an undefeated mark. Wurzberger was named MPSF Mountain Division Coach of the Year as the squad finished at 15-5-2. He also passed Mike Ryan to become Washington's winningest coach ever.

In 1998 Husky soccer won its second MPSF title with an 8-1 mark. The 16 victories, against just four losses, was the most for a UW team since 1982, and the squad upped the school record for consecutive NCAA appearances to four. Eight players, along with Wurzberger, earned MPSF postseason honors.

The 1997 squad was the first in program history to advance to the NCAA tournament three straight years. The Huskies' overall mark of 15-3-2 was their second straight 15-win season. UW finished the season with a seven-game winning streak, snapped only by an NCAA second-round loss to eventual national champion, UCLA.

In 1996, Washington finished with a 15-3-1 record, the program's best in 13 years. The Huskies entered the 32-team NCAA Championship as the No. 1 seed, and during the season UW was ranked as high as No. 2 in the Soccer America poll. Both were program records. Wurzberger's 1995 team suffered defeat just once in the final 11 regular season games and outscored its opponents 48-24.

In 1992, his first year at UW, Wurzberger led the Huskies to their best season to that point, capped by an appearance and win in the NCAA tournament when Washington beat Portland for the school's first-ever NCAA play-off victory. UW finished the regular season with a 15-2-2 record, which earned it a final ISAA ranking of No. 1 in the West and No. 4 in the nation. That team also entered the record books as the first to win the prestigious MPSF championship. For his efforts, Wurzberger was named the MPSF Mountain Division and NSCAA Far West Region Coach of the Year.

Wurzberger, the Huskies' first-ever full-time head coach, came to Seattle after serving as an assistant coach at consistent national power Santa Clara. In his only season at SCU, the Broncos posted a 20-1-2 record, held the No. 1 ranking for much of the season, and finished the year losing in the NCAA championship match on penalty shots to Virginia.

Prior to his brief stint with Santa Clara, Wurzberger was head coach of the San Francisco Bay Blackhawks of the American Professional Soccer League. From 1989-90, with Wurzberger at the helm, the Blackhawks compiled the league's best record at 28-15, won the Northern Division both seasons, and won the Western Conference championship.

That year, five members of the Blackhawks made appearances on the United States World Cup team: Marcelo Balboa, Troy Dayak, John Doyle, Dominic Kinnear and Eric Wynalda. In fact, between his coaching at UCLA, for the Blackhawks and with the World University Games team, Wurzberger coached seven members of the USA '94 World Cup team: Balboa, Mike Burns, Paul Caligiuri, Cobi Jones, Mike Lapper, Claudio Reyna and Wynalda.

Before taking over the Blackhawks, Wurzberger was an assistant at UCLA from 1986-88. While there, he helped guide the Bruins to a 43-13-10 record and three straight NCAA tournament appearances. He went to Los Angeles from Sacramento State, where he directed the Hornets to an 8-8-5 record in 1985 in his coaching debut.

Wurzberger became the first American to receive the Scottish Football Association "A" license coaching certificate in 1987. In 1992, he was an assistant for the U.S. World University Games team, which competed in Buffalo, N.Y.

He worked for the U.S. Soccer Federation at the USA '94 World Cup as a technical analyst and was the head coach of the 1995 U.S. Olympic Sports Festival West team. He also serves as a staff instructor for the U.S. Soccer Federation.

In the summer of 1998, Wurzberger was named the head coach of the boys Under-16 national team, and during the summer of 1997 he served as an assistant coach for the U.S. Soccer Under-18 national team.

Wurzberger's playing career began at San Diego State, where he earned four letters from 1971 to 1974. He was a three-time all-conference player and the team's MVP and captain in 1974. He played three seasons (1975-77) with the Seattle Sounders of the NASL and for the California Sunshine of the American Soccer League from 1977 to 1979.

Wurzberger earned his bachelor's (1982) and master's degrees (1985) in physical education from Sacramento State. His wife, Leslie, is the assistant athletic director for marketing and promotions at the University of Washington athletic department. They are the parents of two daughters, Whitney (5) and Avery (3).

HUSKY COACHING STAFF

SETH SPIDAH

Assistant Coach – Fifth Season

Former professional soccer player Seth Spidahl enters his fifth year on the Husky soccer staff. Along with his on-field duties, he has been instrumental in the Huskies' nationwide recruiting efforts.

A native of Anchorage, Alaska, Spidahl spent three years playing professional soccer for the Seattle SeaDogs, during which his team won the 1997 Continental Indoor Soccer League Championship. He was a four-year letterwinner as a defender at Pacific Lutheran University and as a sophomore helped guide the Lutes to the NAIA national finals and a 14-6-2 record.

Spidahl, 32, has been active in Seattle-area soccer at every level and most recently as the coaching director for F.C.United, a boys premier club team in Tacoma. He spent six years coaching within the F.C. United club ranks before being named director four years ago. During his tenure as coach, Spidahl guided his under-18 team, a club that featured former Husky defender Zac Tallman, to the 1999 national championship.

He was an assistant coach at the University of Puget Sound for the 1999 and 2000 seasons and helped guide the Loggers to an overall record of 32-7-3. Prior to that, he spent one season as an assistant and two as head men's soccer coach at Tacoma Community College. His TCC teams had an overall record of 26-10-7, won two division championships and finished as runners-up in the 1998 state tournament.

Spidahl is currently the head U-16 WSYSYA boy's ODP coach and is also a Region IV Boy's staff coach.

Spidahl graduated magna cum laude from PLU in 1996. A science major with a 3.85 grade point average, he was a two-time NAIA Academic All-American and was named PLU Scholar-Athlete of the Year as a senior. He resides in Federal Way.

DARREN SAWATZKY

Volunteer Coach – Third Season

Darren Sawatzky begins his third year as a volunteer coach on the Huskies' staff.

A former MLS player and member of the Seattle Sounders, Sawatzky was a four-year letterwinner at the University of Portland from 1991-94. During his tenure there, he was a member of three NCAA Tournament teams and the 1992 West Coast Conference Championship team. Sawatzky was also an All-WCC selection, as well as a WCC Scholar Athlete. He was voted the team's Most Inspirational Player during his senior season.

After graduating from Portland in 1994 with a bachelor of science degree in organizational communication, Sawatzky played stints in the MLS with the New England Revolution (1996-97), the Dallas Burn (1998) and the Colorado Rapids (1999). He also played professionally for the Oregon Surge (USISL), Leicester City (England), Hershey Wildcats (A-League), the Portland Timbers (A-League) and the Seattle Sounders (A-League). Sawatzky was also in player pools for both the Olympic and National team during his career.

Prior to coming to Washington, Sawatzky served as the Director of Training for the Highline Heat Soccer Club. He is currently the boys' head soccer coach at Thomas Jefferson High School and led the squad to the 2005 4A State Championship title this past year.

Sawatzky and his wife, Kally, have a daughter, Kylie (6) and a son, Skyler (3).

RICHARD REECE

Assistant Coach – First Season

Richard Reece begins his first season as the Huskies' goalkeeping coach.

Reece, a native of Cullercoats, England brings an extensive coaching resume to Washington. He has served as a goalkeeping consultant for various Division I and Division II colleges, helping programs set goalkeeping coaching curriculums. Reece also has a USSF "A" coaching license, a USSF Youth license, a NSCAA Premier Diploma and a NSCAA national goalkeeping license.

Reece comes to Seattle from Houston, Texas, where he has been the Director of Goalkeeping for the Eclipse Soccer Club since 2001. While coaching in Houston, Reece mentored two national and two All-American goalkeepers and trained 21 of the 26 ODP goalkeepers in the state of Texas.

Reece is also currently a NSCAA national staff instructor for goalkeeping licenses and is the goalkeeping coach for both the South Texas Youth Coaching Soccer Association and the Olympic Development Program in Texas. Since 2003, he has been the national director of the Star Goalkeeper Academy and since 1997 has worked with adidas Goalkeeping Camps. Reece's coaching career began in 1996, training goalkeepers with the Stevenage Borough Football Club in Herts, England.

A standout goalkeeper himself, Reece spent six years playing professional and semipro soccer including stints with Gateshead FC (Vauxhall Conference), Cambridge United (English Div. II), Blyth Spartans, Lincoln City and Sunderland FC. Reece and his wife Brooke reside in Seattle.
