

2005 SEASON REVIEW

The 2004-05 Washington women's tennis team was a group which had every reason to expect a drop-off. After coming within mere points of reaching the Final Four in the spring of '04, the Huskies lost seniors Claire Carter and Erin Hoe, two of their top three players, and second and third on the career singles wins list, respectively. If the Huskies were going to make another deep run in the NAAs, everything would have to go just right. They would need continued excellence from senior Dea Sumantri at the top, elevated games from the returning players faced with playing higher in the line-up, and immediate contributions from freshmen coming in to plug the holes. There was little margin for error, and for the first two months of the season, the Huskies made very few, starting 10-1 and ranking eighth in the nation. But things slowly unraveled in the second half, as the women were hit with injuries just when the difficult conference schedule rolled around. The "rebuilding" term looked like it had finally come true. In what proved to be head coach Patty McCain's final season with the program she elevated to national prominence, Washington finished 15-9, and fifth place in the Pac-10. UCLA ousted the Huskies in the second round of the NCAA Championships, Sumantri's stellar career came to a close, and McCain left to take the coaching duties at the University of Texas. The Huskies had turned heads early on in 2005, notching five wins over top-25 teams, but were left wondering 'what if?' at season's end.

Sumantri Leaves Legacy: No player will be harder to replace for Washington than Sumantri. A native of Indonesia, Sumantri exhibited consistent excellence on and off the courts. Her 27 singles wins last year pushed her to an even 100 for her career, second most all-time. Sumantri is also third in career doubles wins with 83. Sumantri started her senior season on a tear, going 23-6 and climbing all the way to a career-high No. 5 in the ITA Rankings. She defeated 14 ranked opponents, as well as five players in the year-end top-20. Unfortunately, the final run of her season was derailed by nagging injuries, and Sumantri lost nine of her final 13 matches, ultimately preventing her from a third All-American honor which had looked like a sure thing, and her ranking fell to 22nd. Nevertheless, Sumantri left

Dea Sumantri

Washington as a two-time All-American, and the only player to earn singles and doubles All-American honors in the same year (2004). In the classroom, Sumantri was even more impressive, earning first team Pac-10 All-Academic accolades as a junior and senior, and second team status as a sophomore. To cap off her season, Sumantri was named the ITA Northwest Region Senior Player of the Year.

Huskies Fast Out of The Gate: At the start of the season, it was clear that the confidence gained from the previous year's NCAA run had carried over despite two new freshmen starting in singles. Washington faced a tough test in only the second match of the year, on the road versus No. 25 BYU. Washington more than rose to the occasion, pounding the Cougars, 6-1. From January to early March, the Huskies only played three matches on their home courts, but still compiled a 10-1 record, with the only loss coming to NCAA champion Stanford. In addition to the BYU win, Washington scored wins over No. 24 New Mexico, No. 12 Miami, and a 4-3 conference win over No. 17 California on the road. It wasn't until a trip to San Diego in early March that UW's engine stalled. Dinka Hadzic suffered an injury prior to the trip and was held out of the weekend's matches. Washington managed a 5-1 win against San Diego, but the conclusion was delayed by rain, and the Huskies then had to play a second match the same day against

San Diego State. SDSU upset the Huskies, 5-2, without Hadzic. Hadzic returned by the next match, but was clearly hampered by the injury for the rest of the season, finishing 2-10 after her 15-6 start. Dea Sumantri and Mugette Ahn both were also heavily wrapped towards season's end, surely contributing to second half swoons for each.

National Team Indoors: For the fourth time in the past five years, Washington was selected to participate in the USTA/ITA National Team Indoor Championships, the most prestigious team tournament besides the NCAA Championships. Thirteen of the top 16 ranked teams were entered, with the Huskies drawing an eight seed. The women knocked off New Mexico in the first round, 6-1, before falling to eventual champion Stanford, 6-1, in round two. One of the Huskies' biggest wins of the year came in their consolation match with 12th-ranked Miami. The Hurricane held a 3-1 lead but Washington captured the final three singles matches to sew up a 4-3 victory. Dinka Hadzic had a 6-0, 6-0 win at No. 2 singles and Mugette Ahn clinched the win with a three set win at No. 3 singles.

Pac-10 Wrap-up: The Pac-10 conference is traditionally the toughest in the country and each win is significant. The Huskies had one of their biggest wins of the season in their first Pac-10 match against California. Rain delays spread the match out over three trying days, but the Huskies came away from Berkeley with a 4-3 win, highlighted by Dea Sumantri's three set win over third-ranked Suzi Babos. The Huskies would pick up two more conference wins later in the year, a 4-3 win over Arizona and a 5-2 win over Washington State to finish with a 3-4 Pac-10 record. Against both the Wildcats and Cougars, Washington swept the third through sixth singles matches to propel them to the victories.

UW Runs Into Bruins Again: If the Huskies were to advance to their third straight NCAA Round of 16, they would have to do it as road warriors. Washington was sent to Los Angeles to the regional hosted by familiar foe UCLA. But to set up a second round showdown with the Bruins, Washington had to take care of business against Long Beach State in the first round. A doubles point and singles wins from Dea Sumantri, Saskia Nauenberg, and Tara Simpson added up to a convincing 4-0 UW win. Next up was UCLA, the tournament's 10th seed and a particular Husky nemesis in the NCAAs. The Bruins scored a 4-0 win to end Washington's season for the third time in the past four years. The match was closer than the score indicated, as Simpson and Nauenberg were both up a set in their singles matches and Allison Rainey's match was also tight at the point that UCLA clinched the win.

Underclassmen Provide Stability:

Two freshmen in the starting singles line-up will always be a question mark, but new additions Tara Simpson and Allison Rainey proved to be reliable sources of wins and bright spots for the team's future. Simpson finished second on the team with 24 singles wins, mostly coming at No. 5 singles. Simpson also stepped up against conference foes, going 5-2 in Pac-10 duals. She ended the season winning eight of her final nine matches. Rainey also turned in an impressive freshman campaign, going 15-7 in dual play with the majority at No. 6 singles. Sophomore Saskia Nauenberg also made significant strides from her freshman year, tying Simpson for the best dual record on the team at 17-6. Nauenberg spent the most time at fourth singles, but when moved up to No. 3, she was a perfect 9-0.

Doubles Handicap: Two heads are not always better than one, as the Huskies struggled in doubles play for the second year in a row last season. In 2004, Washington continually overcame doubles point losses with stellar singles play, advancing to the NCAA Quarterfinals despite a 10-16 doubles point record. The doubles point proved costly once again last year, as the Huskies managed only an 8-14 record. Sumantri and Hadzic were the most successful pair, finishing 15-13 and 60th in the final rankings, as well as reaching the semifinals of the Pac-10 Championships. Tara Simpson also performed well in doubles, going 17-15 with a total of six different partners.
