

HISTORY OF WASHINGTON CREW

Washington's rowing program, born almost 100 years ago, is steeped in tradition. A cornerstone for the Huskies' entire athletic program, Washington's history reads like a Who's Who of rowing. From national championships to Olympic glory, the trademark white blades of Washington have cut through the water of race courses around the world.

Rowing at Washington dates back to 1901 when the first Class Day race was held. The Class Day races still mark the end of the winter training period and the start of the spring racing season for the rowers. Rowing was not considered a "major" sport at the University until 1904. That year, James C. Knight, who became the first crew coach in 1903, led the team to its first Pacific Coast Championship, rowing in Seattle in four-oared shells.

In 1905, Stanford and California joined Washington in the first triangular regatta. A year later racing was abandoned when California sent word that its squad would be unable to attend the meet because of an earthquake, bringing the racing scene to a standstill until a revolutionary gentleman came along in the Fall of 1906.

Hiram Conibear, whom some recognize as the founding father of Husky crew, started a spectacular coaching career in a rather unspectacular fashion. A one-time athletic trainer, Conibear took over the Husky program without any eight-oared shells and no basic knowledge of the dynamics of rowing. Undaunted by the challenges at hand, he began raising the "voluntary funds" necessary to purchase two new shells.

Conibear converted an old lighthouse from the Alaska Exposition into the first Husky shellhouse. It was not much, but it was a start. Today, Conibear would be proud to know that the Huskies' current shellhouse is named after him. The Varsity Boat Club and the Board of Rowing Stewards were other innovations instituted by Conibear and are still in existence today.

In order to better understand the dynamics of the stroke, Conibear borrowed a skeleton from the medical department and used it to study the most effective and safest body positions for rowing.

The "Conibear Stroke" was born and quickly accepted nationwide. His coaching ability resulted in Washington's coarsmen rowing to a third-place finish in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., in 1917 against the country's fastest crews. Tragically, a few months after the Poughkeepsie race, Conibear passed away and the future of Husky crew seemed uncertain.

Ed Leader emerged as Conibear's successor and the crew program moved from its makeshift boathouse/lighthouse to the corner of the Montlake Cut into what is now referred to as the Canoe House. With a new home base, and new coach, Husky crews continued the school's swimming tradition.

Taking over the helm upon Leader's departure was Russell S. (Rusty) Callow. Washington Rowing flourished during Callow's tenure (1922-

Women's rowing flourished at Washington early in the 20th century.

27), winning three Intercollegiate Rowing Association Championships and becoming the first west coast crew to win the Hudson River Classic.

Under Callow, a young man named Al Ulbrickson became the varsity stroke. Following his graduation in 1927, Ulbrickson was hired on as an assistant coach. Courted by the University of Pennsylvania for the head coaching position, Callow took the job on the east coast and Ulbrickson became the fifth coach in Washington history.

Ulbrickson took his team to even greater successes. The 1936 crew (bow-Roger Morris, 2-Charles Day, 3-Gordon B. Adam, 4-John G. White, 5-James B. McMillin, 6-George E. Hunt, 7-Joseph Rantz, 8-Don B. Hume, cox-Robert G. Moch) competed in the Olympic trials on Lake Carnegie. In dominating fashion, the Washington crew won the right to represent the United States at the Berlin Games. Coming from behind for an unprecedented victory, the crew of 1936 won the Olympic gold medal.

That was not the only time Ulbrickson escorted a crew to the Olympic Games. In 1948, the Olympics were held in London, England on the Thames River. Washington sent a coxed four that won the gold (bow-Gordon Giovanelli, 2-Bob Will, 3-Bob Martin, 4-Warren Westlund, c-Allen Morgan) and in 1952, another Washington coxed four secured a bronze at the Helsinki Olympics (bow-Fil Leanderson, 2-Dick Wahlstrom, 3-Al Ulbrickson Jr., 4-Carl Lovsted, cox-Al Rossi).

Ulbrickson's 1958 crew had a new challenge. They needed to go undefeated during the racing season to qualify for the prestigious

Henley Regatta. The team made quick order of California, Stanford, and the University of British Columbia, to earn the right to row in England. There, a powerhouse team from the Soviet Union handed the Huskies their first defeat of the season. A scheduled side trip to Moscow set up a rematch. This time, on the Soviets' home course, the Huskies shocked the rowing world by overpowering the juggernaut USSR team. The event, broadcast by Keith Jackson on Seattle's KOMO Radio, is believed to be the first sporting event ever aired from behind the "Iron Curtain." Future coach Dick Erickson was a member of the crew that played one of the biggest parts in the program's history.

Ulbrickson retired after returning to the States and Fil Leanderson became Washington's head coach. Leanderson coached from 1959-1967 and then stepped down, allowing Erickson to head up the program after coaching the freshmen for four years.

Under Erickson's direction, in 1977, the Huskies won the Grand Challenge Cup and Visitor's Challenge Cup at the Henley Royal Regatta and, as a result, were invited to compete at the Nile Invitational Rowing Regatta in Cairo, Egypt. In 1984 Erickson's varsity crew won his first IRA championship.

Women's rowing, virtually non-existent following a short period in the early 1900s, eventually returned to the UW campus. In 1969 women's rowing sported a club team with Bernie Delke at the coaching reins. In 1971, the women participated in their first joint regatta with the men, the Steward's Cup race. It was a successful debut for Washington. The Husky rowers placed first and second in the women's eight race.

The Husky women competed in their first national championship regatta in 1970 on Rowing is a tradition-rich sport at the University of Washington. Husky crews have won Olympic gold, national collegiate championships and rowed overseas on numerous occasions.

Greenlake in Seattle and captured several medals, including a silver won in the pairs by Jan Harville, Washington's current head coach.

Colleen Lynch and Paula Mitchell jointly coached the women from 1972-75. During that time, Washington traveled to the national championships in Philadelphia where the lightweight eight became the first women's crew to win a national title.

In 1975, women's rowing was elevated to a varsity sport at the university.

In 1977, Title IX (under the Federal Education Act) allowed members of the women's team to join the Varsity Boat Club which, until that time, had been comprised solely of men. The Varsity Boat Club still provides leadership for the program with a membership of more than 1,000 men and women.

Bob Ernst, the freshman men's coach and Erickson's assistant for six seasons, succeeded John Lind as the women's coach in the fall of 1980. It did not take him long to put his mark on the Husky program.

In Ernst's first season, both the varsity and junior varsity crews won national championships (1981) and repeated the feat for the next five years. The 1987 season was Ernst's last year as head women's coach. His varsity, junior varsity, and varsity four crews swept at the nationals, capturing all three titles.

He became the varsity men's coach in 1988 when Erickson retired. In 1997, Ernst led the UW to a sweep of the varsity, junior varsity and frosh races to capture the IRA Championship in Camden, N.J. It marked the first time since 1950 that Washington had swept the three top races at the IRAs.

Jan Harville stepped up from the novice women's coaching position, which she held for seven years, to take over where Ernst left off. Harville, who rowed at Washington in the early '70s during the program's revival, also had a stellar head coaching debut.

In her first season, the varsity crew duplicated its performance from the year before and won another national championship (1988). The 1989 and 1994 junior varsity crews also captured national titles. In 1997, Harville made history as her crews won the first NCAA-sanctioned championship at Lake Natoma in Sacramento, Calif. It was the first NCAA championship for the UW. The Huskies duplicated the feat in 1998, winning back-to-back team titles.

In the 37 years that the men's program has competed at the Pacific Coast/Pacific-10 Conference Championships, the varsity men have won 28 titles, including the last eight in a row. The women joined the men at the competition in 1976 and have been competing at the championships for the past 21 years. They have claimed 17 titles, including the last six.

The varsity men have won a total of seven national titles, including the IRAs sweep last year. The varsity women have won nine national titles, the first in 1981 and the most recent in the second NCAA regatta last year.

History is hard to miss around the Washington crew program. There are a multitude of reminders for the current Husky oarsmen and women who spend endless hours training and studying at the Conibear Shellhouse. Banners of past regattas are scattered throughout the shell bays while photos of past crews and competitions line the hallways.

Even the shells are daily reminders to the team of the success of the program. New boats are christened and named for individuals who have worked to make the Husky crew program a consistent national powerhouse. Among those honored by this tradition are: The Olympic Champion crew of 1936; the Dolly Callow; Dick Erickson; the Varsity Boat Club and dozens more.

Washington crew is an important part in Seattle's rich maritime history.

HUSKY HALL OF FAME

In 1979, the University of Washington inducted its first members into the newly created University of Washington Hall of Fame. This year the Huskies will celebrate the 19th annual induction ceremonies in April of 1999. Among the inductees will be the 1977 Men's 8-Oared Crew.

Formed to honor and preserve the memory of those athletes, teams, coaches and members of the athletics staff who have contributed in a very outstanding and positive way to the promotion of the University of Washington athletics program, the 19-year-old Hall of Fame has honored a number of people associated with Husky crew.

1979 Inductees

Hiram Conibear, Crew Coach, 1907-17

The "Father of Washington Crew" invented the rowing stroke which today remains the accepted standard throughout the world. He laid the foundation for the very successful crew program while coaching the Huskies from 1907-1917. Dozens of his proteges went on to coach the sport long after his accidental death in 1917.

1936 Men's 8-Oared Crew

This Husky crew earned amateur sports' highest award, the 1936 Olympic Games Gold Medal. Coached by Al Ulbrickson, Sr., the crew of Donald Hume, Joe Rantz, George Hunt, Jim McMillin, John White, Gordon Adam, Charles Day, Robert Morris and Robert Moch brought the United States and the UW one of its greatest honors.

Al Ulbrickson, Sr.

Crew Coach, 1927-1958

Al Ulbrickson directed the Husky crew program for 32 years, guiding it to some of its greatest victories. Two of the biggest wins were the 1936 Olympic Gold Medal in Berlin, and defeating the Soviet Union in Moscow in 1958, his final coaching win. Ulbrickson's teams dominated the annual Washington-California-Stanford series and won six Intercollegiate Rowing Association varsity titles.

1981 Inductees

1948 Men's 4-Oared Crew

These five men represented the University of Washington and the United States in the 1948 Olympic Games in England, and returned home with the Four-Oar with Coxswain Gold Medal. Coxswain Allen Morgan, Warren Westlund, Bob Martin, Bob Will and Gordon Giovanelli defeated Switzerland and Denmark in the finals by two full boat-lengths to win the Gold Medal.

1982 Inductees

Rusty Callow, Crew Coach, 1922-27

As an undergraduate, Callow earned four rowing letters, captained the 1915 shell, raced with the first Washington crew to row at Poughkeepsie and served as president of the Associated Students of the University of Washington. He returned to his alma mater in 1922 to assume the head coaching duties and quickly compiled a phenomenal record of success. Callow's teams dominated the IRA Regatta during his five-year tenure, capturing championships in 1923, 1924 and 1926, and finishing as runners-up in 1925 and 1927. His teams also dominated arch-rival California with four victories in five competitions.

1984 Inductees

1958 Men's 8-Oared Crew

This crew of John Bisset, John Sayre, Andy Hovland, Louis Gellermann, Chuck Alm, Phil Kiebertz, Roger MacDonald, Dick Erickson and Bob Svendsen rowed to an outstanding intercollegiate season before traveling to Henley, England for the Royal Henley Regatta. The Huskies fell victim to the Leningrad Trud Rowing Club of the Soviet Union in their attempt to win the coveted Grand Challenge Cup, losing by one-and-a-half boat-lengths over the one-mile, 550-yard Henley course. Washington challenged the Soviets to a rematch in Moscow where the Huskies earned revenge. The Huskies won the Moscow Cup, beating the Leningrad Trud crew by one-and-three-quarters lengths on the 2,000-meter Khimkinskoe Reservoir course.

1986 Inductees

1940 Men's 8-Oared Crew

The 1940 eight rowed to an undefeated season and captured the prestigious Intercollegiate Rowing Association title in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. The crew of Ted Garhart, Dallas Duppenhaler, Dick Yantis, Chuck Jackson, Gerald Keely, Sr., Al Erickson, Paul Soules, John Bracken and Frederick P. Colbert picked up an easy, two-length victory over California during the regular season. The crew then met Cornell, Syracuse, Navy, Cal, Columbia, Wisconsin and Princeton on the Hudson River. Washington was challenged at the finish of the four-mile race by Cornell, but the Huskies hung on to win their sixth Intercollegiate Rowing Association championship. The group of four sophomores, three juniors and one senior was the youngest crew ever to row under UW's colors in the IRA championships.

1989 Inductees

George Pocock

Shell Designer and Builder, 1912-1976

By the end of his illustrious career, George Pocock was a revered international figure in the world of crew racing. He was a consultant to the UW on rowing matters and an able confidant of decades of winning coaches. It was, however, as a shell builder that Pocock made his mark. He introduced red cedar boats, and more importantly, added refined lines and removed weight from his racing shells. With a master's touch he built shells of his own design which year after year spread his reputation. His dedication and loyalty to the University of Washington began when varsity crew coach Hiram Conibear, convinced George and his brother to come to Seattle to build 12 eight-oared shells. He continued his craft until his death on March 19, 1976.

1981 Women's 8-Oared Crew

Competing in their first Women's Collegiate National Championship, the UW women captured the 1,000-meter title in a time of 3:20.8, defeating Yale by two seconds. The crew consisted of Debbie Moore, Madeline Hanson, Susan Broome, Karen Mohling, Peg Achterman, Kristi Norelius, Shyril O'Steen, Jane McDougall and Lisa Horn.

1990 Inductees

1923 Men's Eight-Oared Crew

The 1923 crew was the first in a long line of national championship squads. After Husky oarsmen tried for 10 years, the 1923 crew finally won the Intercollegiate Rowing Association championship by upsetting Navy in the varsity eight race. This unprecedented win helped put Seattle and the University of Washington on the map. The championship crew consisted of Max Luft, Charles Dunn, Fred Spuhn, Sam Shaw, Pat Tidmarsh, Rowland France, Harry John Dutton, Dow Walling and Don Grant.

1991 Inductees

1941 Men's Eight-Oared Crew

The 1941 crew was crowned Intercollegiate Rowing Association champions. The crew consisted of Ted Garhart, Walt Wallace, Bill Neill, Paul Simdars, Tom Taylor, Chuck Jackson, Doyle Fowler, John Bracken, and Vic Fomo. Three members of this crew - Bracken, Garhart and Fomo - won every crew race they participated in during their four years. Coach Al Ulbrickson called this crew "as great a crew as I've ever had."

1994 Inductee

Dick Erickson, Crew Coach, 1968-87

A 1958 UW graduate, Erickson took over coaching crew in 1968. His teams won the 1984 national championship and 15 Pacific Coast Rowing Championship varsity titles during his 20-year coaching career. In 1977 his crew won the Grand Challenge Cup at the Henley Royal Regatta. Erickson was voted Pac-10 Coach of the Year three times. He was a member of the U.S. Olympic Rowing Committee from 1972-76 and received the 1990 Audi Excellence Award for outstanding efforts benefitting masters and recreational rowers. Erickson currently works as the Events Manager for the UW Department of Intercollegiate Athletics and is a regular television commentator for the Windermere Cup Races each May.

1996 Inductee

Alan Forney, Rower, 1979-82

Alan Forney led the Huskies to three Pac-10 crew titles, winning in 1979, 1980 and 1981 (going undefeated in 1981). He was a member of the U.S. National team, competing in the 1982 World Championships and the 1984 Olympic Games, where he won a silver medal.

1998 Inductees

1952 Men's 4-Oared Crew

This crew is one of three from the UW to win an Olympic medal. Fil Leanderson, Carl Lovsted, Alvin E. Ulbrickson, Richard W. Wahlstrom and coxswain Albert Rossi, despite limited training time, won the bronze medal at the 1952 Olympic Games in Finland.

1999 Inductees

1977 Men's 8-Oared Crew

The team of John Stillings, Mike Hess, Jesse Franklin, Terry Fist, Mark Miller, Mark Unlauf, Ross Parker, Mark Sawyer and Ron Jackman surprised the rowing community in 1977. The Pac-10 champions defeated the British National Team at Henley in the Grand Challenge, earning the first victory for the U.S. at the Regatta in 18 years.

HUSKIES AT HENLEY

"The Henley Royal Regatta is undoubtedly the best known regatta in the world and it holds a unique place in the respect and affection of all oarsmen. Founded in 1839, it is famous both as a great sporting occasion and a social event; and people travel from all over the world to attend, either as competitors or as spectators. Winning an event at Henley has always been considered one of the greatest achievements of an oarsman's rowing career, even amongst those who have become world champions; and an oarsman's rowing life is not complete if he has not rowed at Henley.

"Unlike all other major international regattas, racing at Henley is on a knock-out basis, with crews rowing two abreast over a course which is one mile, 550 yards (2,122 meters) long. Naturally, the tactics in such races are different from racing six abreast; but oarsmen who row almost all their serious races six abreast over 2,000-meter courses have found that the variety of racing at Henley adds greatly to the interest and enjoyment of their regatta season."

—Henley Royal Regatta

Washington made its first appearance at Henley in 1958, with coach Al Ulbrickson, and lost to a crew from the Soviet Union in the final of the Grand Challenge Cup. Soviet rowing officials invited Washington for a rematch in Moscow, where the Huskies won.

It was another 15 years before Washington returned to Henley, this time with coach Dick Erickson. The Huskies again lost to the Soviet eight in the 1973 Grand Challenge event.

In 1977, Erickson brought the Huskies back to Henley and Washington became the first U.S. crew in 18 years to win the Grand Challenge when it beat the British national crew by a length.

They made another trip in 1978, when the junior varsity won the Ladies Plate and the varsity lost to a Bulgarian crew.

In recent years, coach Bob Ernst has taken UW crews to Henley in 1991, '95 and again in '97. The '97 varsity and junior varsity went to Henley on the heels of an IRA Championship that completed undefeated seasons for both crews.

The varsity entered in the Ladies Plate, and advanced to the grand final with victories over Australia's Melbourne University in the first heat and Oxford's Isis Boat Club in the semi-finals. They provided a thrilling race for spectators in the grand final, the closest match of the regatta, before losing to the British National Lightweight crew by one foot.

Washington christened a brand new boat at the Royal Regatta in 1997, an Empacher eight-oared shell that was delivered to Henley just prior to the Huskies' arrival in London. The $30,000 state-of-the-art racing shell, which was donated by an anonymous UW benefactor, is named The 101 in honor of the Seattle-based amateur sports booster organization, The 101 Club. The shell is nearly identical to the boat the Husky varsity races in the United States. The 101 will be stored at Jesus College in Cambridge and used exclusively by Washington teams training and racing in future Henley Regattas.

Husky coach Bob Ernst carried special cargo with him to Henley, a plastic bottle of finish line water from Montlake Cut, to christen the new boat. Former Seattle police chief Patrick Fitzsimmons, who represented The 101 Club, christened the new shell by pouring the home course water over the bow of the boat.

The Huskies' junior varsity advanced to the quarterfinals before finally falling to the Goldie Crew, made of Cambridge University rowers in the Temple Challenge Cup.

Former Husky coxswain Sean Mulligan works on The 101.

The Husky junior varsity competed in the Temple Challenge Cup at Henley in 1997.
